Canadians cruise to win over A&M

By Stan Golaboff
Sports Writer

Experience. That word sums up the Canadian national women's basketball team's 90-62 win over the 18th-ranked Texas A&M Lady Aggies Monday night at G. Rollie White Coliseum.

Texas A&M Coach Lynn Hickey said, "We got beat by a very experienced team. I am glad this one doesn't count."

"They have been playing together all summer and this is the end of their season. They probably have 30 games under their belt as a team, while this is our first game."

A&M played even with the Canadians for the first three minutes, but then the bottom dropped out.

Team Canada went on a 26-6 run over the next 13 minutes. A&M failed to score for almost seven minutes.

Canada's run was fueled by sloppy play from the Aggies, who committed 17 turnovers in the first half. Canada committed seven.

"We came out in the first half scared to death of this team and we played like it," Hickey said. "If you take out that scoring drought we had, we are right back in the ball game."

A&M made a small run at Canada and pulled to within 17 points right before the end of the half.

A&M started the second half strong. A&M shot 46 percent in the half — a big improvement from the 32.1 percent they shot in the first half.

Canada was led by guard Carol Hamilton with 20 points. Post Chantal St. Martin had 18 points, and guard Jodi Evans added 16 points.

Canada shot 57 percent from the field for the game.

"They spread you out and force you to guard them one on one," Hickey said about the Canadians. "We didn't play defense. We stood around and were standing straight up. They went right by us."

A&M was led by senior guard Donna Roper with 14 points. Freshmen Dena Russo and LaTanya Irving each added 10.

"Our young players really played outstanding," Hickey said. "I was glad to see that because we have been talking all summer about how good our recruiting class was, and they showed it tonight."

"It has to make you wonder if some of our first-year players should be starting, but only time will tell."

Hickey said she didn't think the loss would hurt the team.

"We needed to be awakened, and we were," she said. "It is nice to be ranked, but you still have to work hard, and this game helped us make our point with the players."

A&M's next game will be against the University of Texas-Arlington at G. Rollie White Coliseum Nov. 25 during the two-day Lady Aggie Classic.

The Canadian national team plays the University of Texas tonight in Austin, which is the second stop on a ten-game tour of the southern United States.

Coogs crack Top 20; Hogs move to No. 10

Associated Press

Notre Dame and Southern California are within one step of a showdown between the nation's No. 1 and No. 2 college football teams, while Arkansas made the Top 10 for the first time this season, and Houston cracked the Top 20 after an eight-year absence.

Houston, which last appeared in the Associated Press poll in September 1980, upped its record to 7-2 by defeating previously unbeaten Wyoming 34-10 Saturday night and dropping the Cowboys from 10th place to 16th. Colorado, No. 19 last week, fell out of the rankings by losing to No. 7 Nebraska 7-0.

Auburn and Oklahoma swapped places, Auburn rising from ninth to eighth and Oklahoma slipping from eighth to ninth.

Notre Dame, idle last weekend, received 40 of 59 first-place votes and 1,156 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. The 9-0-0 Irish, who play Penn State on Saturday, are No. 1 for the third consecutive week.

Southern Cal, a 50-0 winner over Arizona State, received 18 first-place votes and 1,131 points. The Trojans, also 9-0-0, are No. 2 for the third week in a row. They face No. 6 UCLA on Saturday and Notre Dame on Nov. 26.

Last week, also with 59 voters participating, Notre Dame led USC 42-15 in first-place votes and 1,160-1,122 in points. In the last two weeks, Notre Dame's lead has increased from 47 points to 38 to 25.

The other first-place ballot went to defending national champion Miami, which was idle. The Hurricanes, 7-1-0, received 1,060 points.

Unbeaten West Virginia, 10-0, remained No. 4 with 977 points following a 35-25 triumph over Rutgers. For the first time in three weeks, however, the Mountaineers failed to receive a first-place vote.

Florida State beat Virginia Tech 41-14 and held onto fifth place with 937 points. UCLA's 27-17 victory over Stanford enabled the Bruins to remain No. 6 with 866 points and Nebraska is again No. 7 with 845 points after edging Colorado.

Auburn's 20-10 victory over Georgia lifted the Tigers into eighth place with 769 points while Oklahoma received 750 points and had one spot after struggling past Missouri 16-7.

Arkansas, 10-0-0 and one of five teams with perfect records, moved from 11th place to 10th by downing Texas A&M 25-20. The Razorbacks received 657 points.

The Second 10 consists of LSU, Michigan, Oklahoma State, Syracuse, Clemson, Wyoming, Houston, Alabama, Washington State and Georgia.

Last week, it was Arkansas, LSU, Michigan, Oklahoma State, Syracuse, Clemson, Georgia, Alabama, Colorado and Washington State.

Duke starts at No. 1 as basketball begins

Associated Press

Duke, a Final Four team two of the last three seasons, was named the No. 1 team Monday in the Associated Press' preseason college basketball poll.

The Blue Devils, who finished fifth in the final regular-season poll last season and went on to the Final Four and a semifinal loss to eventual champion Kansas, received 33 first-place votes and easily outdistanced No. 2 Georgetown, which had eight first-place votes.

Duke, which last held the top ranking over the final three polls of the 1985-86 season — another in which it reached the Final Four — finished with 1,257 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters, well ahead of the Hoyas' 1,107.

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski wasn't overly pleased at being No. 1. "If you're ranked very high early, there's a tendency to think you've already accomplished something, and you really haven't accomplished anything," he said.

Michigan, Louisville and Oklahoma — another Final Four team from last season — rounded out the Top Five in a voting that showed the quick turns of the fortunes of collegiate basketball programs.

Five teams from last season's final poll — Purdue, Kentucky, Bradley, Wyoming and Xavier, Ohio — did not even receive a vote in the preseason balloting and another, Kansas State, got just one.

Kansas, which wasn't expected to fare that well following the graduation of Danny Manning, the NBA's No. 1 draft choice and the player most responsible for the Jayhawks' title. However, a three-year probation for recruiting violations was handed down to Kansas and the Jayhawks will not defend their title at the NCAA tournament.

Nine of the teams in the preseason poll, including Georgetown, were unranked in the final poll of last season.

Eight teams received first-place votes and 51 of the 293 Division I teams eligible for receiving votes did.

Michigan received four first-place votes and 1,090 points, 74 more than Louisville, which got seven No. 1 votes. Oklahoma had nine first-place votes and 1,001 points.

North Carolina was sixth with three No. 1 selections and 911 points, just four more than Iowa, which had two first-place votes. No. 10 point separated No. 8 Syracuse, 833 points, and Illinois, while Nevada, Las Vegas, the final team to receive No. 1 vote, rounded out the Top 10.

Hershiser sweeps to All-Star honors; Pitcher 1 of few NL players on team

NEW YORK (AP) — Orel Hershiser of the Los Angeles Dodgers threw another shutout Monday, when he was picked unanimously as the right-handed pitcher on the 1988 Associated Press Major League All-Star team.

Hershiser, the 1988 National League Cy Young Award winner and Most Valuable Player of the NL playoffs and the World Series, received 165 points from a nationwide panel of writers and broadcasters. No other right-handers received votes.

Third baseman Wade Boggs of Boston and relief pitcher Dennis Eckersley of Oakland were nearly unanimous selections. Boggs received 155 points at third and Gary Gaetti of the Twins got nine, the only other players to receive votes.

Eckersley beat John Franco of Cincinnati by a similar 155-9 margin.

The American League dominated the AP team, filling eight of 12 spots, including all three in the outfield.

Alan Trammell of Detroit was picked as the shortstop, Frank Viola of Minnesota as the left-handed starter and Paul Molitor of Milwaukee as the designated hitter.

Jose Canseco of Oakland, Kirby Puckett of Minnesota and Mike Greenwell of Boston are the outfielders. Puckett was named to the team for the third straight year.

National Leaguers picked were first baseman Will Clark of San Francisco, second baseman Ryne Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs, catcher Benito Santiago of San Diego and Hershiser. Santiago last year became the first rookie named an AP All-Star.

There were three close races. Clark, who led the NL in runs batted in with 109 and was tied for third in homers with 29, got 58 votes, eight more than Montreal's Andres Galarraga. Clark displaced Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees, who had been the first baseman from 1984-87.

Sandberg beat Cleveland's Julio Franco 37-29 at second and Santiago beat California's Bob Boone 39-32 at catcher. Santiago hit .248 with 11 homers and 46 RBI.

The outfield voting was a runaway for the three American Leaguers. Canseco got 149 votes, Puckett 131 and Greenwell 118. Kirk Gibson of Los Angeles was next with 31.

Trammell, a repeater from last year, was a runaway selection in shortstop, getting 118 votes to 22 for the Reds' Barry Larkin. Viola, the AL Cy Young Award winner, got 148 votes as left-handed pitcher to 15 for the Reds' Danny Jackson.

Molitor won at designated hitter with 99 votes to 54 for Jack Clark, traded after the season from the New York Yankees to San Diego.
