Aggies open season

The Texas A&M men's basketball team opens its 1988-89 season tonight with an exhibition game against Simon Fraser of Canada at 7:30 p.m. at G. Rollie White Coliseum.

The Aggies are coming off a 16-15 season in which A&M went 8-8 in Southwest Conference play.

A&M Head Coach Shelby Metcalf is beginning his 26th season at the helm of the Aggie basketball program. Forwards Doug Dennis and Donald Thompson are the only returning starters from last year's team.

Metcalf is the nation's 20th-ranked coach in the nation and a winningest coach in Southwest Conference history with 413 wins. The Aggies, who finished 8-8 in the SWC last year, are picked by most publications to finish near the bottom of the conference standings this year.

Three junior college transfers are expected to start for the Aggies—guards Tony Milton and David Williams and forward Darren Rhea.

A&M Archers taking aim at regionals

The TAMU Target Archers, A&M's Archery Club, will compete in the Indoor Regionals in Austin December 3-4 against the University of Texas, Austin Community College and the University of Houston.

"Our main thrust is toward competition," club member Kathy Craig said.

The club consists of 20 members and competes in collegiate tournaments in Austin, Houston and at A&M throughout the school year.

Teams are made up of three top shooters from both male and female teams and a co-ed team of the two next best shooters from each team.

"Everyone on the team, except for one guy who came down from Penn State, started here in the beginning archery program at A&M," Craig said.

The Archers placed first across the board in the Longhorn Invitational last weekend in Austin.

Billy Varos placed first in the men's collegiate division and Sherrill Jarrell placed first in the women's collegiate division.

The regionals will determine who the team will send to the Las Vegas tournament, Craig said. The top two shooters from both the men's and women's teams will go.

The Archers will go to Dayton, Ohio, this year for the national collegiate competitions. A&M came in second behind Arizona State in last year's nationals in Austin.

"The main goal for the team is to be national collegiate champions," Archer's coach Frank Thomas said.

Armstrong fights his way to New York

Texas A&M Boxing Club member Scott Armstrong will participate in a tournament Monday honoring former heavy-weight champion, Joe Frazier.

The Salute to Boxing Greats is sponsored by the New York City Downtown Athletic Club.

For the past four years A&M students have traveled to the invitation-only event, winning twice.

Armstrong, who will be fighting a boxer from the Virginia Military Institute, expects to win.

"You can't go into a fight without believing you'll win," he said.

In addition to this tournament, eight members of the club will attend an Air Force Academy exhibition in Colorado Springs on December 2. They will participate in fights and a boxing clinic.

Boxing

"Because of football, we don't have the opportunity to participate in many events during the Fall," team member Tim Allen said. Most of the active boxing clubs are in the East and are expensive for us to attend.

A&M, the only school in the Southwest Conference with a Boxing Club, won the regional competition last year and advanced five members to the nationals.

The Boxing Club, in association with the National Collegiate Boxing Association, has been active at A&M for seven years and is designed to improve skills for novice boxers.

Ag Cycling team wraps up fall season

The Texas A&M Cycling Club has had a busy fall and is looking forward to the spring season. Members participated in races in and around Texas nearly every weekend.

Club representative Craig Tuttle said the team enjoyed its greatest successes at collegiate meets in Norman, Okla. and Lubbock. It placed in the top five at both events.

While no rider has dominated the team, Tuttle said Mike Ashton, Russell Kay and Scott Rost have been consistently strong performers in competition and training rides.

Cycling

Tuttle said Annette Wolf brought home a place in the top five from the recent collegiate nationals on the velodrome in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Although the team's season has concluded for the fall it will compete in at least five collegiate meets in the spring highlighted by the national collegiate meet in May.

Tuttle says the outlook for the spring is good, with several strong freshmen and sophomores who should improve.

Women's Soccer club falls to varsity

The A&M Women's Soccer Club won second place in the A&M Women's Varsity Soccer Tournament last Saturday. The club team advanced to the finals of the tournament before falling to the A&M Varsity team by a 2-0 score, Club President Lindsey Craig said.

The club took part in four games in the event, winning two and tying another before losing in the championship match.

The club began the day with a scoreless tie against the University of Texas and picked up wins over Rice (2-0) and Stephen F. Austin State (2-1).

Craig, on defense, and Elena Olive, on offense, were named to the all-tournament team. Other club members receiving mention for outstanding play included halfbacks Nicole Ronquille, Michelle Kilpatrick and Robin Moore.

Goalkeeper Jeana Chicovsky, fullbacks Mary Gessner, Sally Nelan, and Kim Mac Cormack also played well for the A&M club team.

Sailing team is a hit at Hate regatta

Aggie sailors made a big splash last weekend by winning the Frozen Hate Regatta at Southern Methodist University in Dallas.

In last weekend's action, the team finished ahead of Tulane University and Springhill College to take the title in the nine-team event.

The A&M "A" team of David Hiebert and Chris Stewart teamed with the Aggie "B" team of Brian Babbitt and Mark Zupcek to give A&M the title.

The victory qualified the Aggies for the Timme Angsten Regatta at the Chicago Yacht Club over the Thanksgiving weekend. Twenty-Six schools will compete in the regatta. A&M will send three skippers and three crews.

This weekend the team will compete in the Douglas Cup Qualifiers Regatta at the Dallas Rush Creek Yacht Club. The Douglas Cup will have teams from Mexico, Japan and Canada competing against A&M and seven other college teams from the United States.

Lacrosse team crushes Corpus Christi

The Aggie Lacrosse Club tore into the Corpus Christi club Saturday to win 13-7 behind the four goals of Nathan Douglas.

Tom Creeden also had an excellent match with two assists. He also won six of seven face-offs before fracturing an ankle with less than a minute to play.

A&M didn't fare so well on

Lacrosse

Sunday as Sam Houston downed the Ags 8-6 in Huntsville.

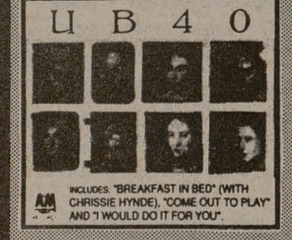

After the game, the club took a vote and decided not to play this weekend's game in Austin against the Texas Longhorns because of academic reasons.
