Ags lose fourth straight Sanders leads Red Raiders to 75-68 win

By Jerry Bolz

ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

The search continues for the missing link in the Texas A&M basketball attack.

Texas Tech defeated the Aggies 75-68 Saturday. It was A&M's fourth straight Southwest Conference loss. A&M had the homecourt fans, an opponent that had a worse overall record, and expectations of halting a losing skid. It wasn't enough. There was just something missing.

The Aggies are now 8-11, including a 1-6 conference mark. The loss was A&M's ninth in the last 10 games.

"We're struggling," said senior forward Donald Thompson. "It's a 1-2 punch, but three's not there."

"It's very frustrating. We've practiced and practiced and we're still not winning. We're missing something but don't know what it is. We'll figure it out."

Coach Shelby Metcalf was equally baffled.

"We're working hard and we're trying," he said. "We don't have any excuses."

Tech didn't need any excuses. The Red Raiders brought in a 7-10 record (2-4 in SWC), and came away with a thrilling victory—at least thrilling to them.

Tech's post-game jubilation didn't even seem to bother the Aggies—fans, players or coaches. Taunting was meaningless to the Aggies. They just want to win.

But it was Tech's night. More specifically, it was Todd Duncan and J.D. Sanders' night.

Sanders, 6-8 and 230 pounds, was Tech's inside game. Duncan, a 6-1 sharp-shooting guard, was their outside game.

The two combined for almost half of the Red Raiders' points (37) and were always there to counter the Aggies comeback attempts.

Sanders led Tech with 18 points.

Duncan hit seven of nine from the field, including four of five from three-point land in a substitute appearance.

A&M's Ray Little (43) tries to score over a defender.

"Duncan killed us," Metcalf said. "We knew he was that kind of a shooter—the guys covering him didn't do a good enough job."

The second half opened with Tech on top 34-28. After pulling out to an eight-point advantage on a Duncan three-pointer, Tech let the Aggies close the gap at 41-37. That was as close as it would get.

Tech mounted up and rode. Senior guard Sean Gay hit a 16-foot jumper before two Sanders' buckets—a layup and a dunk. Duncan put the finishing touches on the nine-

Texas Tech shocks Lady Ags

By Stan Golaboff

SPORTS WRITER

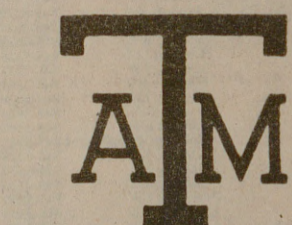

Some traditions just aren't worth keeping. Slow starts by the Texas A&M Lady Aggies are becoming a tradition.

The Lady Aggies lost to Texas Tech 84-77 Saturday in G. Rollie White Coliseum, after falling behind 11-2 at the start of the game.

It was the fourth time in as many games that the Lady Aggies have gotten away to a slow start and the second time they lost because of it.

"I guess it's an Aggie tradition to fall behind and have to play catch-up ball the rest of the night," A&M center Lisa Jordan said. Jordan led the Lady Aggies with 18 points.

Saturday's loss marked only the seventh time this season that Donna Roper was not the leading scorer. Roper finished with 17 points and Louise Madison scored 16 before fouling out late in the game.

Texas Tech was led by freshman Jennifer Buck with a career high 22 points and center Stacey Siebert with 21.

"(Tech) killed us with their inside game," A&M head coach Lynn
