WASHINGTON (AP) — Oliver North's criminal trial opened Tuesday with the prosecutor portraying him as a liar who "places himself above the law" but with North's lawyer defending him as a patriotic Marine who obeyed unflinchingly the orders of his commander in chief

North, now retired from the service, listened intently as prosecu-tor John Keker told the jury the defendant had lied time and again to his president and to Congress about the Iran-Contra affair. Chief defense lawyer Brendan Sullivan countered that North, a former top National Security Council aide, worked in a secret world where "he always acted with the approval of his superiors; he acted al-ways with the best interests of his country

But Bush, responding to report-ers' questions at the White House, said he was "convinced that he is not only capable of doing this job, but will do it in an outstanding way.

The president said he personally reviewed the 140-page FBI report. "What I got from it was that there

Published reports have said the FBI found that Tower drank excessively in the 1970s, but no longer does so. Asked about that, and whether the former senator had undergone treatment, Bush replied:

off the shelves.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush condemned Iran's death decree against British novelist Salman Rushdie as "deeply offensive to the norm of civilized behavior" and warned on Tuesday that Tehran would be held accountable for any actions against American interests.

Bush said he strongly supports the decision of Euro-pean governments to recall their ambassadors and chief diplomats from Iran in protest of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's order for the assassination of Rushdie, the author of "The Satanic Verses," a novel that many Mos-lems consider blasphemous.

On another matter, Bush said he was not concerned that Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze's diplomatic trip to the Middle East would diminish the U.S. role in the region. Asked what role Moscow should play in the Middle Fast, Bush said emphatically, "I think it should be a limited role and I think that's what it's going to be.'

Bush said he did not feel it was necessary for the U.S. to send an ambassador on a diplomatic visit just to counter to Shevardnadze's trip.

The president made his comments at a hurriedly called news conference at the White House on the eve of his departure for a five-day Asian trip to attend the funeral of Emperor Hirohito in Japan, followed by stops in China and South Korea.

Bush used the opportunity to urge the Senate to "move forthrightly" to approve the embattled nomination of John Tower as secretary of defense after repeated allegations of womanizing, excessive drinking and questions about Tower's relationship with defense contractors.

Up until now. Bush has been silent on the worldwide

Committee, takes the stand.

Keker told the jury Tuesday that North had profited personally by using traveler's checks furnished by a Contra leader and, on a broader scale, had told lies that amounted to "a crime that goes to the soul of our self-government."

"You will hear he considers himself a patriotic person, but there is no higher patriotic purpose than to protect our system of government," Keker said. "To lie to Congress because you mistrust it then is a crime and not a defense.

Sullivan did portray North as a patriot, saying he believed in the Marine moto "Semper Fidelis" always faithful.

"He lived with that Marine Corps motto. He was always faithful to country, to commander in chief, to his family, to those whose lives de-pended on him," said Sullivan. And yet, said the defense attorney: "Lt. Col. Oliver North has in the end been abandoned by his government.

North's eyes moistened as Sullivan wound up his opening statement almost in a whisper.

The lawyer said that North was the troubleshooter at the National Security Council, and if "a secret mission had to be accomplished, it was 'Let Ollie do it.'

When Congress decided not to support the Nicaraguan freedom fighters in 1984, Sullivan said, "the president was angry ... and he vowed he would find a way to support them."

Reagan ordered National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane "to keep them together body and soul and it was then the job of Ollie North," Sullivan said.

He recited a lengthy version of the history of the Iran-Contra affair to the jury, some of whose members appeared to be nodding off. Sullivan noted that while the Reagan administration was barred by law from directly helping the Contras, officials solicited funds for the cause from other countries.

He quoted Reagan as saying privately at the time, "If this leaks out, we'll all be hanging by our thumbs outside the White House until we find out who did it.

Democrats, Bush clash over budget; Congress wants spending details

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush and his budget director on Tuesday prodded congressional leaders to join them in budget negotiations, but Democrats responded by chiding them for withholding their views on where spending cuts should be made. Talk of more talks was put on hold while, with Bush heading for Japan, Congress began budget hearings amid efforts to extract more detailed information from the White House.

"We've got an administration here that wants to embrace the concept of a line-item veto but won't give us a line-item budget," said Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee.

The president met at the White House early Tuesday with Sasser, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine; House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, and other top Republicans and Democrats from Capitol Hill.

It was the first such meeting since Bush revealed his $1.16 trillion fiscal 1990 budget in a speech to Congress on Feb. 9.

Lawmakers said they told the president that before negotiations could begin they needed more detail, especially on how he would pay for the new programs he wants for creases. education, the environment, child care and other areas.

And they said the prognosis was poor for some of the specific recommendations he did include - such as a reduction in the capital gains tax choices. rate

Bush contends cutting the rate about in half, to 15 percent, would result in more taxes being paid because economic activity would increase. Democrats not only doubt the president's supply-side math but contend the tax is a giveaway to the rich, since poor people have few cap### ital gains.

The meeting was polite but it dealt more with schedules than substance, participants said. "The symbolism is very good. We haven't really gotten down to substance," Wright said, predicting that once work begins, "some serious differences will emerge" on issues such as a $5 billion Medicare cut, one of the handful of spending cuts Bush did detail.

"It was important for us to emphasize we're on the right track, and we are," said Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., the House Budget Committee chairman. But, Panetta asked, "When does he start to make the tough choices? That's part of the process here, to find out what the choices are.

Bush's budget director, Richard Darman, appearing before the Senate Budget Committee, defended the White House budget including Bush's proposal for a "flexible freeze" on $136 billion in existing programs.

Those programs, mostly in domestic agencies, would be kept at last year's spending levels with selected increases allowed only if offsetting cuts were made. The White House has refused to say where it would cut and where it would support in-

Going into further detail now had little appeal for the administration, he said, since the chances were "close to zero" that Congress would agree with the administration's policy

"We look forward to learning of other proposals and to discussing them on the merits," Darman said. "We mean to be cooperative." Dar-man said all of the budget, not just the flexible freeze, was negotiable Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., told him "You get an 'A' for mood."

Dallas station offers Reagan talk show iob

DALLAS (AP) - A local radio station has offered former President Reagan a job as a weekly talk-show host, one of many such offers to hit the Great Commu-nicator's desk since he left office last month.

Mark Rodgriguez, president of KOJO-FM, made the proposal in a letter dated Feb. 16, but said he has yet to receive a response. Reagan's spokesman, Mark Weinberg, said Reagan has re ceived many similar offers from broadcasters across the countr including two in his hometowno Los Angeles. Weinberg wouldn't say if Reagan was considering any of the offers.

"All I can say is that each invitation will be responded to individually," Weinberg said.

Rodriguez offered the former president $200,000 to be host of a weekly 35-to 45-minute live ta show for a year on the 100,000 watt station which features a con temporary Christian music format

Reagan is reportedly asking $50,000 per speaking engagement.

But Rodriguez said the station's offer, equal to a year's sa ary as president, probably wouldn't be the determining fac tor were Reagan to accept the invitation.

"I'm assuming Reagan's not short of cash," Rodriguez said Tuesday in a telephone interview with the Associated Press.

"I'd think he'd do it for the chance to be on the radio again," he said.

During the last days of his administration Reagan said he would miss his 5-minute radio address which aired each Saturday
