Hogs stop Aggies in SWC tourney

By Doug Walker
 SPORTS EDITOR

Texas A&M, the hottest team in the Southwest Conference, wasn't hot enough in the conference Classic to stop the steamrolling Arkansas Razorbacks.
 The resurgent Aggies, winners of eight of nine games entering the semifinal matchup with the Razorbacks, watched their season come to an abrupt end in a 94-84 loss March 11 in Reunion Arena in Dallas.
 A&M finished a rollercoaster season with a record of 16-14 while the - Final record: 16-14.

Razorbacks moved to 23-6. Arkansas eventually won the tournament and advanced to the second round of the NCAA's Midwest Region before ending the year with a loss to Louisville Saturday.

Aggie Head Coach Shelby Metcalf finished with his 23rd winning season in his 26-year coaching career. He was understandably proud of his team, which finished strong after a terrible mid-season slump.

"I'm very proud of this ballclub because they've come so far," Metcalf said. "This team will be very dear to me forever. I thought it was a heck of a ball game. We gave great effort."

The Aggies had advanced to the SWC semifinals by defeating Houston 82-70 one night earlier.

Arkansas moved on to meet Texas in the SWC tournament title game and swamped the Longhorns (100-76) for the championship.

Arkansas' pressure defense and A&M foul trouble combined to doom any Aggie upset hopes in the semifinals. A&M battled gamely before succumbing before a sell-out crowd of 16,240.

Senior forward Donald Thompson closed his Aggie career by leading A&M in scoring with 23 points and added 13 rebounds while earning a spot on the all-tournament team.

"Down the stretch (Arkansas) made the key plays," Thompson said. "They did what it took to win the game. They wanted it more than we did."

Guard Tony Milton scored 19, reserve forward Doug Dennis ended his Aggie career with 14 and guard Lynn Suber had 13 points.

Arkansas forward Lenzie Howell, the tournament's most valuable player, led the Hogs with 31 points and 12 rebounds while guard Keith Wilson, Arkansas' only senior, added 25 points.

Thompson felt Wilson was the key to the game for Arkansas.

"Keith Wilson is probably one of the best guards in the conference since Kato (Armstrong of Southern Methodist) left. He is their go-to guy in tough situations. He came out and responded."

Wilson picked up the scoring load for the Razorbacks when the Aggies made a couple of rallies in the second half.

Four Aggies fouled out of the game as the quicker Hogs simply wore A&M down. Arkansas converted 22 Aggie turnovers into 23 points and finished the game with the biggest lead of the game. The Hogs converted 11 of 13 free throws down the stretch to keep the Aggies at bay.

Forward David Williams joined Freddie Ricks, Milton and Dennis in fouling out as A&M ended the night with only two starters, Thompson and forward Ray Little, able to play.

"The refs did a good job," Milton said. "(The referees) didn't beat us. Arkansas beat us. We lost to a good team."

Metcalf also refused to blame the loss on the officiating.

"I think that overall, that crew (officials) is alright," Metcalf said. "I think that everything in the conference is on the way up."

"We got beat by a great ball club and it was a great basketball game."

A&M held leads of 4-1 and 25-22 in the first half before Arkansas nosed in front by 48-43 at the half.

The Hogs used 14 Aggie turnovers to get their fast break going and converted the miscues into 14 points in the opening period.

A&M got as close as two points twice in the final half before Arkansas got Dennis and Ricks to foul out.

A&M rallied from a 69-59 deficit to move to within 75-73 on a Milton jumper with 7:44 to go and trailed 77-75 at the 6:54 mark when he converted both ends of a one-and-one 50 seconds later.

A&M's last gasp came with slightly under three minutes to go.

Trailing 84-80, the Aggies threw the ball out of bounds on the offensive end.

Suber hit a driving 10-foot jumper to pull A&M within 86-82, but the Hogs hit their free throws during the final 1:23 and sealed the win.

Arkansas won the rebounding battle (39-37) and outshot A&M 48.5 percent to 47.5 percent.

A&M dominated Houston early in the second half of their quarter-final game to race to a 82-70 win over the Cougars.

Houston's Craig Upchurch stole the show with 29 points but A&M used 24 points from Thompson to go with Suber's 12 off the bench to defeat the Cougars.

A&M controlled the defensive boards and won the rebounding by a 44-36 margin.

Thompson said the Hoyas should have lost.

"We didn't play as well as we would have liked here, and that's attributed to the game with Princeton, it was such a strain," Thompson said.

Now, Georgetown, 28-4, goes to the regional semifinals Friday night in East Rutherford, N.J., against 19th-ranked North Carolina State.

No. 19 N.C. State 102, No. 14 Iowa 96, 2OT

Rodney Monroe scored a career-high 40 points for N.C. State, including 11 in the second overtime, and hit baskets that tied the score at the end of regulation and the first overtime at Providence. Monroe gave Iowa the lead for good at 86-85 with a 3-pointer with 4:00 left in the second overtime. His three-point play made it 91-87 with 3:06 to play, and he hit another 3-pointer with 1:18 left for a 94-89 lead.

No. 10 Michigan 91, S. Alabama 82

Glen Rice scored 36 points, and he and Terry Mills helped the Wolverines overcome a 57-51 deficit with four minutes gone in the second half, ending South Alabama's 11-game winning streak in a Southeast Regional game at Atlanta. Mills had 24 points.

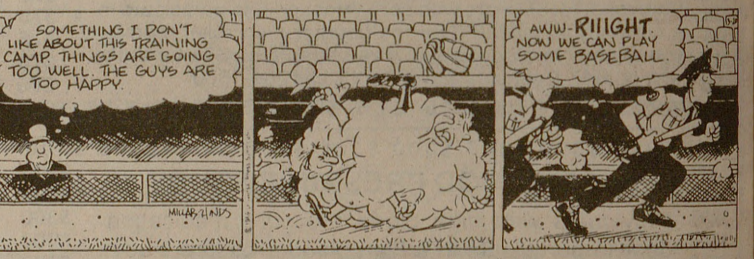

Mills' three-point play with 2:17 left broke an 80-80 tie, and Rice followed with a 3-pointer 45 seconds later.

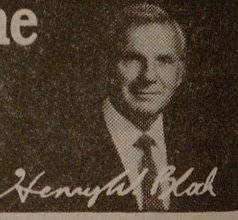

No. 11 Seton Hall 87, Evansville 73

Andrew Gaze hit a 3-pointer that gave Seton Hall a 77-73 lead, and Gerald Greene followed with a layup as the Pirates reached the West Regional semifinals for the first time as Seton Hall beat the Aces at Tucson.
