A&M's Lisa Edmonds crosses the finish line to win the 400-meter hurdles Saturday at the A&M Quadrangular meet.

Aggie track team victorious at home

By Stan Golaboff
SPORTS WRITER

Melinda Clark and Regina Gentry set school records as the Texas A&M track team won both the men's and women's divisions of the A&M Quadrangular Saturday. It was the first team-scoring meet at A&M in seven years.

In the men's division, A&M overcame a slow start and injuries to three All-Americans to win the meet with 66 points. Clemson University placed second with 53 points, followed by Baylor University with 49 and the University of Alabama finished last with 28 points.

Injuries to All-Americans Andre Cason, Mike Stulce and Stanley Kerr didn't hurt A&M in the team standings. Cason was hospitalized Friday night after he suffered a broken jaw following an altercation in Cain Hall.

Stulce, the defending NCAA champion in the shot put, withdrew from the event due to a leg injury. Stulce did compete in the discus, and placed second behind teammate Robert Graf.

Kerr competed on the 400-meter relay team, which again failed to qualify for the NCAA championships, then pulled up in the 200-meter dash with a muscle spasm.

A&M won seven of the 18 events and placed second in six others. Clemson and Baylor both won five events.

A&M was led by Derrick Florence, who posted an NCAA qualifying time for the second straight week in the 200-meter race. Florence won the 200 and was on the 400-meter relay team which, despite not qualifying for the NCAA championships, still won the relay by over half a second.

Richard Bucknor, who qualified in the 110-meter hurdles last week and is a member of the 400-meter relay team, won the hurdles in 13.69 seconds, which tied the track record he set last week.

"I felt good about my time in the hurdles, and we will have to work on the exchange in the relays this week," since Andre will be out for a while," Bucknor said.

In the women's division, All-American Melinda Clark set the standard for the day when she set a school and track record in the high jump with a jump of six feet, 1 1/4 inches. She also qualified for the NCAA championships with the jump.

"It feels good to finally qualify. I think the wind helped me today and I almost made 6-2," Clark said.

Clark electrified the crowd when she just missed jumping 6-2. If she had made the jump, she would have tied the Southwest Conference record held by Jolanda Jones of Houston in 1987.

Inspired by Clark's performance, the Lady Ags raced away from the rest of the field and easily won the meet with 97 points. Alabama was second with 54 and Baylor finished last with 31 points.

A&M won nine of the 17 events and placed second in 10 others. A&M took the top three places in the long jump, high jump and the triple jump.

Gwen Buck and Sandra Hines finished second and third, respectively, in the high jump as each cleared a height of five feet, eight inches. Yolanda Taylor won the long jump with a jump of 19 feet, 11 1/2 inches. All-American Alissa Bell was second at 19-5 3/4 and Cheryl Henderson was third at 18-7 3/4. Taylor also won the triple jump followed by Sheryl Pavelka and Renee Williams.

Regina Gentry broke a seven-year-old school record in the 100-meter dash with a winning time of 11.54 seconds. Gentry just missed qualifying for the NCAA. The qualifying time in the 100 is 11.50.

"It's nice to set the record, but the wind helped a lot today and we need to work on getting out of the blocks better," Gentry said.

The only bad news for the women came in the relays. A&M won both the 400- and 1600-meter relays, but failed to qualify for the NCAA championships.

"We need to work on the baton exchanges. We are still way to slow," Gentry said.

"He answered the call and kept us in there to win it."

In the final game of the series senior Keith Langston went the distance striking out six and surrendering just two walks in a 12-2 Aggie win.

"Keith did a good job," Johnson said.

said. "He got into trouble sometimes but he was able to work his way out of it."

Despite the number one ranking and a new winning streak (seven games), Johnson said his team shouldn't get complacent.

"We're still scrapping," Johnson said.
