A&M Cadets come out on top in competition

By Andrea Warrenburg

REPORTER

The Texas A&M Army ROTC Orienteering Team retained its title of national champions at a national intercollegiate competition and the Ranger Challenge Team finished third in the Third Annual Ranger Challenge Championship.

The orienteering competition in St. Louis, Mo. was a dual competition of intercollegiate teams and ROTC teams. The competition brought together more than 250 collegians from across the nation.

The Ranger Challenge Team competed in Ft. Riley, Kan., against ten other teams from the midwestern and southern United States.

The 12-cadet orienteering team, coached by Capt. Lee Knight, divides into three four-man teams to compete in a cross-country race through unfamiliar terrain using only a map and a compass.

Each team must locate 15 consecutive points in a six- to eight-mile wooded and hilly course. The competitors have three hours to locate the points or be disqualified. The team that locates the 15 points in the fastest time wins. The Aggie team won the national ROTC championship last year.

The team had the two top finishers among the ROTC teams and brought home second and third place trophies in the overall competition. The Army ROTC National Championship team consisted of cadets Mike Miller, Eric Layne, David House and Greg Christopher. Christopher finished second overall in the competition.

The Ranger Challenge Championship consists of competition in eight events conducted over 36 hours between 9-man teams. Points are awarded for each event with the best cumulative total winning the competition.

The Aggie Team won the orienteering and the 10 kilometer road-march events and finished third overall — one point shy of second place and 15 points out of first place.

House approves bill to require cycle helmets

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite arguments that requiring all motorcycle riders to wear helmets would violate adults' personal freedom, the Texas House tentatively approved such a mandate Wednesday by an 82-55 vote.

During the debate, a hushed House listened to Rep. Fred Hill describe a young man in his district who is struggling to recover after a motorcycle accident in which he was not wearing a helmet.

The man had achieved his dream job of being a pilot shortly before the accident, in which the back of his skull was crushed, Hill, of Richardson, said.

After emerging from a coma, Hill said, "He didn't know how to do the very simple, basic things that you and I take for granted."

"He had to be taught everything all over again. His recovery has been slow and agonizing," Hill, who described the effect on the young man's family as a tragedy, said.

Rep. Ralph Wallace of Houston staunchly defended an individual's right to make choices.

"I own a motorcycle, and I own a helmet. Sometimes I wear a helmet, and sometimes I don't. It's a matter of choice. Sometimes I like to feel the wind blowing through my hair," Wallace said.

Rep. Larry Warner of Port Isabel derided the bill as "a nanny bill." He said the current law requiring helmets for those under age 18 is sufficient.

Astronaut to give flag to Corps officials

A flag representing the Texas A&M Corps of Cadets made especially for the recent space shuttle Discovery mission will be presented to Corps officials Sunday afternoon by mission specialist Col. Robert Springer.

Springer, father of Corps freshmen Chad Springer, will present the flag that accompanied him on his first shuttle mission after the 2:30 p.m. Corps review and awards ceremony on Kyle Field.

The 30-by-48 inch flag has a maroon shield on a field of white with "Texas A&M Corps of Cadets" emblazoned around the shield.

Since no official Corps flag existed, the design was conceived by Corps' Commandant Thomas Darling and Assistant Commandant Donald "Buck" Henderson, and rushed to Houston seamstress Reba Ray.

Ray, who has made other flags for the Corps, was told the flag had to be at NASA headquarters in five days to be packed for the mission then scheduled for February.

Each astronaut is allowed to carry a limited number of personal items and Springer chose an Aggie memento to accompany him in space.

Discovery was launched March 13 on a five day mission to deploy a $100 million tracking and data relay system satellite.

Agriculture secretary to speak on media

Department of State Agriculture Commissioner Mike Moeller will speak to agricultural journalism students and a public policy class at 5 p.m. Thursday in 504 Rudder. Moeller will talk about mass media coverage and the Sunset legislation. The public is invited to attend.

Political Forum brings S&L panel to A&M

"SOS — Saving our Savings," a forum on the Texas banking and savings and loans industries will be at 7 tonight in 701 Rudder.

The four-member panel discussion sponsored by MSC Political Forum will include speakers Larry Morgan, representing the FDIC; Larry Chilton, from the Texas Department of Banking; Tom King, president of the Texas Savings and Loan League; and FBI Special Agent Michael Williamson. Dr. Arthur James, a Texas A&M economics lecturer, will be the moderator.

"The forum will be about Texas banking and savings and loans problems in the past, and possible solutions to those problems," Michael Bitter, the forum's state program director, said.

"Each speaker will make his opening remarks, then the moderator will step in and ask some general questions to the speakers and then the floor will be opened up for questions from the audience," Bitter said. "We want to generate audience participation."

The forum is free and open to the public. A reception will follow the program.

MSC Variety Show to feature local talent

The annual MSC Variety Show will begin the Parents' Weekend activities Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Rudder Auditorium.

The show, "Catch a Rising Star," will feature 13 acts in a competition for trophies and cash prizes. Judges will include Peggy and John Erickson, 1988-89 Parents of the Year; Stephanie Smith, Miss Texas A&M 1988-89 and Dayna Steele, former A&M student and disc jockey at KLOL 101-FM in Houston.

Master of ceremonies will be Eric Kornfeld, a stand-up comedian who has performed at such comedy clubs as New York Stand Up and The Comic Strip. He also has appeared on MTV's "Half Hour Comedy Hour" and "Night Flight" on the USA cable network.

Several musical groups will compete in the show; the Texas A&M Reveliers, the barbershop quartet After Class, the Kappa Pickers, None of Your Business and the Sequins.

Other acts scheduled to perform are guitarist Hank Townsend, hammered dulcimer player Hal Mueller, vocalist Jill Setina, pianist Stephanie Eiswirth, flamenco dancer Roxane Cuellar and comedian Chris Rand.

A juggling duo called Throw Up and a dance quintet called In Motion also will perform.

The Aggie Wranglers and Amy Hopkins, Miss Texas A&M 1989-90 will be featured performers. Both of their acts were winners in the 1988 variety show.

Tickets are on sale at Rudder Box Office. Student tickets are $4 and tickets for the general public are $5.

Kappa Alpha Theta sponsors 5K charity run

By Sharon Maberry

STAFF WRITER

Kappa Alpha Theta sorority will sponsor its fourth annual 5K charity run Saturday at 9 a.m. to benefit Phoebe's Home and the Institute of Logopedics.

Phoebe's Home is a shelter for abused women and their children in Bryan-College Station and the Institute of Logopedics, in Wichita, Kan., helps children overcome speech, language, hearing and developmental disabilities.

Participants either run the 3.1-mile course or walk the 1.5-mile course through neighborhood streets between Oaks Park and Woodstone Shopping Center.

Cynthia Chamberlin, chairman of Kappa Alpha Theta's service committee, said the 5K charity run is important to the sorority's members.

"We do service projects throughout the year for Phoebe's Home and the Institute of Logopedics," Chamberlin said. "They are two worthwhile causes and it's nice to help them. Last year's run raised $1,400.

The entry fee is $8 per person before Friday or $10 on Saturday. Each participant will receive a T-shirt.

Participants may pick up race packets at the Kappa Alpha Theta House, 1503 Athens, Friday from 4-8 p.m. or Saturday from 7-8:30 a.m.

Racers will be placed in divisions and trophies will be awarded to the top three finishers in each division for the 3.1-mile run. Age divisions for both male and female include under 19, 20-29, 30-39, over 40 and overall. There also will be drawings for prizes during the awards ceremony 30 minutes after completion of the race.

05407100Zephyr Club is the title sponsor for the run. Other major sponsors include Tom's Bar-B-Que, Fajita Rita's, 31 Treats Dessert Shoppe, Wolf Creek Car Wash, Carney's Pub and KKYS-FM radio station. KKYS 105 will broadcast live on the race course.

Anyone interested in the race may contact Chamberlin at 696-1527, the Kappa Alpha Theta House at 693-5289 or John Turton of Running and Multiport Event Consultants at 846-3361.
