

Chang defeats Lendl; moves to quarterfinals

PARIS (AP) — Using moon balls, sheer guts and even an underhand serve to overcome painful leg cramps, Michael Chang upset top-seeded and three-time champion Ivan Lendl in five sets Monday in one of the most dramatic matches in French Open history.

When Chang crowded the service line and rattled Lendl into double-faulting to end the four-hour, 38-minute match, the 17-year-old American fell onto his back on the red clay of Center Court in a mixture of exhaustion and exhilaration. He left the court in tears as the capacity crowd of 14,000 gave him a standing ovation.

By winning 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3, Chang ended Lendl's chances this year of winning the Grand Slam of tennis and became the youngest male player ever to reach the French Open quarterfinals.

"I'm just surprised I was able to hang on so long," said the 15th-seeded Chang. "At one point in the fifth set I thought I wouldn't be able to play anymore."

"It hasn't sunk in yet. I just want to get a good message, go back to the hotel and sleep."

In other fourth-round matches, Andrei Chesnokov of the Soviet Union ousted surprising Jim Courier of Dade City, Fla., 2-6, 3-6, 7-6, 6-2, 7-5; fourth-seeded Mats Wilander defeated Lawson Duncan of Asheville, N.C., 7-5, 6-3, 6-2; and Haiti's Ronald Agenor downed Sergio Bruguera of Spain 2-6, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2.

The quarterfinal matchups will send Chang against Agenor, Wilander against Chesnokov, Alberto Mancini against Stefan Edberg and second-seeded Boris Becker against Jay Berger of Plantation, Fla.

Lendl frequently complains about the court conditions, the noise of the crowd and the line calls. He even received a penalty point in the fourth set, but afterwards said Chang fully deserved to win.

"He showed a lot of courage and deserves credit for it," said Lendl, who won here in 1984, 1986 and 1987. "When you get cramps, it's very painful and it's almost impossible to play."

Unseeded Ronald Agenor of Haiti, Chang's next opponent, beat 17-year-old Sergi Bruguera of Spain 2-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2. Andrei Chesnokov of the Soviet Union ousted 18-year-old Jim Courier of Dade City, Fla., 2-6, 3-6, 7-6, 6-2, 7-5.

In the final fourth-round match of the day, the No. 4 seed and defending champion Mats Wilander, Sweden beat Lawson Duncan of Asheville, N.C., 7-5, 6-3, 6-2.

"It wasn't a great match," said Wilander, the only player who has not dropped a set in the tournament. "It was just the circumstances. It was pretty hard to go out and play a great match after what happened in the match before."

Anderson returns to Detroit after recovery from exhaustion

DETROIT (AP) — A subdued Sparky Anderson returned as manager of the Detroit Tigers on Monday after spending more than two weeks recovering from exhaustion brought on by what he said was his refusal to follow his own advice.

Anderson said he always has admonished his players to leave baseball — especially a loss — at the ballpark. He said his inability to do that made him a physical and mental wreck.

"There has never been another manager who takes losses harder and keeps them inside longer — maybe Gene Mauch — than me," Anderson said at a news conference at Tiger Stadium.

He said he always has told his players "there is nothing so important about baseball (to let it) ruin your life."

"I have always taught those words, but I've never lived them," Anderson said. "Inside, I die a thousand deaths" after a loss.

Anderson, 55, is the 10th-winningest manager in major league history. He is in his 20th season of managing a major league team, his 11th in Detroit after nine years at Cincinnati, where he led the Reds to four National League pennants and two World Series championships. The 1984 Tigers, under Anderson, won the World Series.

Anderson said he began to feel bad after a Tigers' exhibition loss to their Class AAA affiliate, the Toledo Mud Hens, on May 11. He said he barely slept during a three-game road series at Cleveland. Finally, on May 19, before a home game against Kansas City, Anderson was ordered home to Thousand Oaks, Calif., to rest.

"The first day I was home, I slept 16 hours, and that wasn't because I was physically tired," Anderson said. "I was mentally tired."

Anderson's wife, Carol, blocked all calls from well-wishers, including San Francisco Giants manager Roger Craig, who phoned twice. Anderson said he appreciated being alone by the media.

He said he underwent a battery of physical tests in California and was pronounced in excellent health. What he and Tigers team physician Dr. Clarence Livingood described as a minor blood abnormality is being studied.

Anderson said he will reduce off-field activity, specifically charity golf outings. He also said he will ease his heavy load of hospital charity work and will come to the stadium later than he has over the years.

Livingood said he was encouraged by Anderson's news conference during which the manager spoke calmly and deliberately.

"He's a driver," Livingood said. "I suppose you would say he's a Type-A personality, but he doesn't have any of the risk factors for cardiovascular problems."

The doctor said Anderson probably was frightened into changing his behavior, even though the exhaustion was never a life-threatening condition.

"I think this has made him realize he's not a superman," Livingood said. "I think he realizes there's a limit."

Byrum's first PGA victory jeopardizes U.S. Open bid

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Byrum's first victory on the PGA Tour threw a kink in his schedule and ended his qualifying bid for the prestigious U.S. Open next week.

Byrum, who Sunday won the Kemper Open in Potomac, Md., was scheduled to tee off at 7:30 a.m. Monday at Dallas Athletic Club in a 36-hole regional qualifier for the U.S. Open.

But he missed the last flight to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport on Sunday while honoring post-victory commitments in the Baltimore-Washington D.C. area.

"We didn't hear anything from him whatsoever. We really expected him to be here," Frank Anglim, a U.S. Golf Association official at the Dallas qualifier, said Monday.

Byrum's five-shot Kemper victory paid him $162,000. He shot a final-round 68 on the par-71, 6,917-yard Tournament Course at Avenel to finish at 16-under-par 268, two strokes under the previous tournament course record set by Tom Weiskopf in 1987.

But the Kemper victory did not guarantee Byrum exempt status in the Open, which begins June 13 in Rochester, N.Y.

Another regional qualifier was being held Monday in Rockville, Md., but USGA officials at the Woodbridge Country Club said Byrum had not shown up.

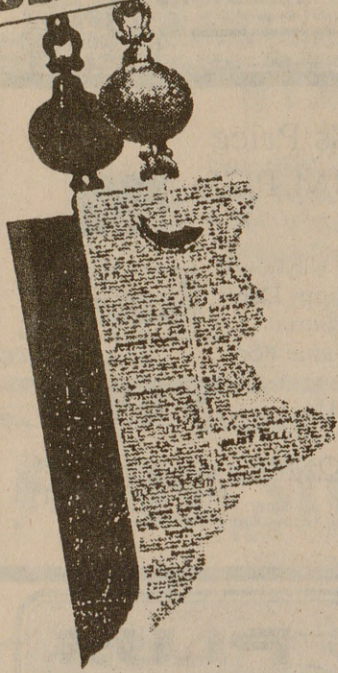

Three golfers there did not tee times, but under USGA rules those spots went to alternates who had tried unsuccessfully to qualify for the regional tournament.

"It's too late, no transfers can be made at this late time," said Anglim.

In applications filed with the USGA, golfers must specify through which regional tournament they attempt to qualify. The deadline is April 26.

Larry Adamson, USGA manager of championship administration at Far Hills, N.J., said no exceptions could be made for Byrum.
