Grand jury issues subpoenas to bulk buyers of Wright book vestigating former House Speaker Jim Wright's book deal and has subpoenaed documents from at least three groups that bought bulk copies of "Reflections of a Pub-lic Man," for which Wright earned royalties of 55 per-

The Justice Department refused Tuesday to disclose the nature of its investigation. Attorneys for the two organizations said it involved Wright's book, and a spokesman for a third said it had been subpoenaed for documents related to the former congressional leader.

The House ethics committee, after a year's investigation, said it had reason to believe Wright, a Texas Democrat, had tried to evade House limits on outside income through bulk sales of the book. That investigation ended with Wright's resignation in June.

Attorneys for Southwest Texas State University and the National Association of Realtors said they had received subpoenas from a U.S. District Court grand jury here. A spokesman for Ocean Spray, a cranberry and citrus growers cooperative in Massachusetts, said documents from the group also were being sought by the Southwest Texas attorney Bill Fly said the university received a subpoena, dated July 14, on Monday, and has until Friday to submit documents surrouding Wright's speech to the school in the fall of 1984 and the subsequent purchase of $3,000 worth of the book.

Laurene Janik, general counsel for the Realtors organization, said the group also is responding to a grand

Jack Pettit, managing partner of the Washington of-fice of the law firm of Hopkins, Sutter, Hamel and Park, said it had been asked to "supply some documents in connection with the grand jury investigation of Wright and we're happy to comply Pettit, who testified before the ethics committee, said that "as far as I can tell, what they are asking for is pretty much what was asked for in the ethics committee in-

Larry Shannon, administrative assistant at Wright's office in Fort Worth, said that the investigation appears "very routine" and that it resulted from the media attention focused on Wright during the ethics investiga-

Justice Department spokesman David Runkel said the agency's inquiry is continuing. "I can't comment on any aspect of the investigation, except I will confirm that is ongoing," he said.

Southwest Texas State attorney Fly said the university had agreed to pay Wright $3,000 for a speech. After Wright's appearance, someone in the speaker's office called the university to say Wright had reached his limit on outside income. Wright's staff member then asked if the speaker could use the $3,000 to instead purchase copies of his book for the university, Fly said. "We received about 504 copies of that book," Fly

Under an agreement with the publisher of his book, Wright was to receive 55 percent royalties.
