Evert avoids retirement in easy victory at Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert, playing nearly perfect tennis against a psyched-out 15-year-old, postponed retirement and kept alive the dream of a final U.S. Open championship Sunday.

Evert, 34, looked as youthful in pink and white, with a rose ribbon in her short ponytail, as 12th-seeded, hard-hitting Monica Seles. But Evert showed greater patience and precision to reach the quarterfinals for the 19th straight year.

Evert, the No. 4 seed and six-time Open winner, moved Seles around the court like a puppet on a string, sending her chasing balls from corner to corner, in and out, in winning 6-0, 6-2.

In rallies that sometimes lasted more than 50 shots, Evert matched the moonballs and power strokes of the grunting, squealing Seles, and wore her down with angled and deep shots that frequently kissed the lines.

"I don't know where it came from," Evert said. "I haven't seen that form all year."

Seles, who had said she was worried about the match and might feel sad if she were the one to end Evert's career in major tournaments, didn't play close to her own potential.

Seles, a left-hander with two-fisted shots on forehands and backhands, certainly was not the player who beat Evert in the finals of a tournament at Houston this year.

Evert said Seles probably will be one of the world's top three women players within the next few years, but may have been bothered by the crowd cheering for Evert.

Evert, who received standing ovations from the packed crowd on her entrance and exit, next faces fifth-seeded Zina Garrison, who beat Donna Faber 6-4, 7-6.

If Evert survives that match, reaching the semifinals for the 17th time, she would go against the winner of the quarterfinal match between No. 2 Martina Navratilova, who beat Regina Rajchrtova 6-2, 6-0, and Manuela Maleeva, who beat Natalia Zvereva 6-2, 6-0.

"I knew she was not going to lose to Seles today," Navratilova said of Evert, a longtime friend. "It's nothing against Monica, she's a nice girl, but I knew she would not lose to a youngster like that in a round like that."

Jay Berger, the 11th seed, beat unseeded upstart Pete Sampras, the 18-year-old who beat defending champion Mats Wilander.

'Horns, Buffs open seasons with doubts

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — While Texas may be coming off a 4-7 season with an inexperienced team and a number of question marks, Colorado Coach Bill McCartney leaves no doubt as to his personal assessment of CU's season-opening opponent here Monday night.

"Texas looks the way Texas used to look," McCartney said. "This is a formidable opponent. They've had three good recruiting years in a row. They're every bit as big as we are. They have a lot of talent. They match up well with us. Playing a team like this is just what you'd want for an opener."

The Longhorns, in their third year under head coach David McWilliams, appear to be on their way back — perhaps to the same level as during Darrell Royal's tenure from 1957 to 1976, when Texas won or shared 11 Southwest Conference titles, made 10 Cotton Bowl trips and claimed three national championships.

Last year's injury-plagued season represented a low point in Longhorn history. They expect to be significantly better in 1989, although most observers, including Texas defensive coordinator Leon Fuller, believe they're still "a year away."

One of the reasons for that cautious approach is the fact that of the 44 players on Texas' two-deep depth chart, 13 will be playing in their first collegiate game. Among the key returnees from last year are quarterback Mark Murdock and flanker Tony Jones. Redshirted in 1987, Murdock passed for 1,189 yards last year, becoming the first UT freshman to surpass 1,000 yards passing.

Jones, although only 5-foot-7 and 144 pounds, is in position to claim nearly every Texas receiving record. He needs only 211 yards to surpass Johnny "Lam" Jones' career reception yardage record of 1,603.

McCartney hopes the nationally-televised game will confirm CU's status as a nationally-ranked team. The Buffaloes were ranked 14th in the AP preseason poll — their first appearance in the rankings since 1977. "This is the best (preseason) camp we've ever had in terms of effort, leadership and morale," McCartney said.

It should be his best team as well, even better than last year's 8-4 team that fell only three points shy of Oklahoma and seven points shy of Nebraska and which lost to Brigham Young 20-17 in the Freedom Bowl. Sixteen starters return from that squad, including tailback Eric Bieniemy, who rushed for 1,243 yards last year, and standout linebackers Alfred Williams and Kanavis McGhee.

The Buffs have dedicated their season to ailing quarterback Sal Aunese, who is battling inoperable stomach and lung cancer. Sophomore Darian Hagan, who pushed Aunese for the starting job a year ago, is the successor.

Rozier now says trade; Hill just wants to play

IRVING (AP) — Oilers holdout Mike Rozier said he wants to be traded, while player Drew Hill has indicated he probably will soon be in a Houston uniform.

Rozier, who has hung around the Oilers since preseason without a contract, said Saturday night he wanted a trade.

Oilers General Manager Mike Holovak said he will oblige Rozier, but he added it won't be easy.

The Oilers' latest offer to Rozier is $2.4 million over three years with salaries of $600,000, $800,000 and $1 million.

They previously had offered a reported five-year, $5.2 million deal.

"I'll try to trade Rozier. Why not?" said Holovak, who has been pleased with second-year running back Lorenzo White. "It probably will be the hardest thing I try to do since I've been here ... (considering) the amount of money they want and what we need in return. We don't have a prayer."

Rozier, meanwhile, said he is not mad at Holovak or the team. The Oilers were in Dallas on Saturday where the Cowboys beat them 30-28 in an exhibition game.

"I don't get mad. I'm disappointed. I wanted to play for the Houston Oilers," said Rozier, the team's leading rusher each of his four seasons with the Oilers.

But Rozier added he shouldn't play for Houston if he is not satisfied.

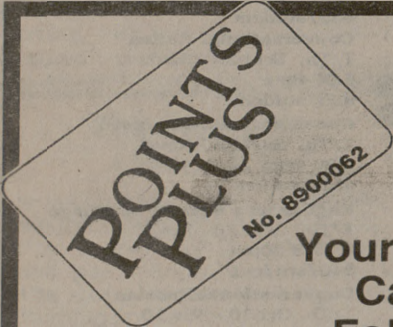

"If my contract is always going to be in the back of my mind, that's just going to hurt my game. I'll go to Green Bay. I'll go anywhere," he said.

But holdout wide receiver Hill said Saturday that it "looks pretty good" that he will be in uniform early this week and will make himself available for the opening game next Sunday at Minnesota.

"That will be up to Coach (Jerry) Glanville," said Hill, who returned to Houston Saturday from Los Angeles where he went for second opinion on a neck injury he suffered in the playoff loss at Buffalo.

"My neck is fine," Hill said. "I'm ready to go."

Asked if he will report for his present salary of $400,000 — Holovak's terms — and settle for a hefty raise in 1990, Hill said: "That's a probable scenario."
