Cowboys considering Austin training camp

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas Cowboys' owner Jerry Jones and Austin Mayor Lee Cooke met Tuesday to discuss the possibility of moving the team's 1990 preseason training camp to the city.

"It's just a chance for me to meet them," Cooke said after the one-hour meeting. "We're shooting for making it happen."

Jones originally had said the team would train again in Thousand Oaks, Calif., but coach Jimmy Johnson wants a warm training site.

Jones said weather was a consideration, but he also said moving to Austin would appeal to the media and Cowboys fans. "That's what Austin might mean," Jones said.

"We don't have a deal and we're just being courted by Austin," Jones said. "These are really not negotiations at this time."

Austin officials earlier sent a videotape to the Cowboys, boasting of the training facilities at St. Edward's University, a small private school, as a possible site for the Cowboys training camp.

Jones said a move to Austin also could mean the possibility of the Cowboys playing their annual exhibition game with the Houston Oilers in Memorial Stadium. "We'd have to work it out with Houston but that would be a great game in Memorial Stadium," Jones said.

Jones said another plus for Austin, is the fact that the Oilers training camp is in San Marcos, about 30 miles away.

Asked about a promise to he made California officials that the Cowboys would continue training at Thousand Oaks, Jones said, "It sounds like I'm talking out of both sides of my mouth and maybe I am."

He said the Cowboys were talking to several other cities, but he would only mention Vail, Colo.

Jones said he wants the Cowboys to train in an area that would be appealing to the media.

"That's very important to us, because they have shown us in our first year of preseason work that how they depict the experience of preseason ... is a big thing for all our fans," he said.

Also attending the meeting were council member George Humphrey, and Pike Powers, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, in addition to several city staff members.

America's Cup returned to San Diego Yacht Club

NEW YORK (AP) — The America's Cup was returned to the San Diego Yacht Club on Tuesday when an appeals court reversed a decision that awarded yachting's most coveted prize to New Zealand.

The New York State Supreme Court's Appellate Division affirmed the victory by Dennis Conner and Stars & Stripes in waters off San Diego last fall. New Zealand had sued, arguing that Conner's use of a catamaran violated the Cup's deed of gift.

Justice Carmen Beauchamp Ciparick of New York State Supreme Court agreed with New Zealand last April 7. She called the race "a gross mismatch," stripped San Diego of the Cup and gave it to New Zealand's Mercury Bay Boating Club. But a five-judge panel reversed her on Tuesday and returned the Cup to the United States.

"San Diego's catamaran was an eligible yacht," Justice Joseph P. Sullivan wrote in a 30-page majority opinion. "It was the winner of the two races held on Sept. 7 and 9, 1988, for the America's Cup and ... as the winner of the two races, is entitled to the America's Cup."

Justice Israel Ruben of the First Judicial Department concurred as part of the 4-1 majority, saying "between true yachtsmen, victory is pursued on the water and not in the courtroom."

"San Diego Yacht Club should not be deprived of its victory simply because the design of its vessel was more innovative and more successful in achieving its purpose than that of the challenger," Ruben said.

Justices E. Leo Milonas, and Richard W. Wallach joined Sullivan and Ruben in the majority opinion. Justice Bentley Kassel dissented, saying, "I cannot accept that such a gross mismatch was permissible under the deed of gift."

The Cup, first won by the yacht America in 1851, was held by the New York Yacht Club from 1857 until Conner lost it to Australia's Royal Perth Yacht Club in 1983. Conner won it back in 1987 and for two years the trophy has been in a series of lawsuits.

"Obviously, I'm pleased with the decision," Conner said in a statement issued in San Diego. "It is an exciting victory for my hometown of San Diego and the many individuals who worked to keep the Cup here. But what pleases me the most is to finally get the Cup out of the courts."

However, the decision can be appealed to the New York Court of Appeals, the state's highest court. There was no immediate word on New Zealand's intentions.

Michael Fay, chairman of the New Zealand syndicate, called the reversal "a disgrace."

"It is wrong, plain and simple," he said. "If this ruling is not overturned, sportsmanship and the Cup are out the window."

Ciparick had found competing vessels must be "somewhat evenly matched." San Diego's use of a lighter, faster catamaran "violated the spirit" of the international competition, she ruled.

But the appeals court said Ciparick failed to base her decision strictly on the 102-year-old document that governs the race.

"The deed of gift is silent as to the type boat to be used by the defender," the majority opinion stated.

Lady Ags host Lamar in volleyball match tonight

By Alan Lehmann

Of The Battalion Staff

The Texas A&M Lady Aggie volleyball team will try to improve their 3-4 record tonight when they take on the Lamar Lady Cardinals at 7:30 in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

A&M volleyball

- Match: A&M hosts Lamar in a two-out-of-three match
- Record: 3-4.
- Site: G. Rollie White Coliseum
- Time: 7:30 p.m.

The Lady Aggies are coming off of a 2-1 record last week, and have better on the road (1-1) than at home (2-3). Last week they swept Sam Houston State and beat Illinois-Chicago, but lost to Iowa State. In the four-game loss to Iowa State, the Lady Aggies won the second game and went to 17-19 in the third, before dropping the match.

A&M will probably have a new lineup tonight, said coach Givens. Freshman Elizabeth Edmiston and sophomore Alysia Gonzales could join the starting lineup, he said.

"The number one decision we had to make is who is going to be setting and running our offense," said Givens. "We've decided to move Yvonne Van Brandt back into that position, and unless there is an injury, that will not change. I think that establishing a starting lineup will help us to build continuity."

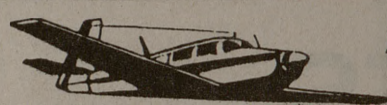

The Lady Aggies, who swept both meetings last season, lead the series with 23-15 advantage, and have won the last six matches. Givens said that the Aggies are hungry for another victory.

"We're looking for a convincing victory on Wednesday and hope that we can put together a two-match winning streak," he said. "Lamar is a well-coached team, and we'll have to play well against them. I hope that our match against Sam Houston last week was an indication of what we can expect this week."
