Corps, sororities sponsor mixer before yell practice

By Michael Kelley

Of The Battalion Staff

The first all-University mixer will be Friday before midnight yell practice. The mixer, open to all students, will be in Duncan Dining Hall on the Quadrangle. It will be from 8:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. and is co-sponsored by the Corps of Cadets and the 11 Texas A&M sororities.

The creators and coordinators for the mixer are Corps public relations officer Clay Whittaker and Pi Beta Phi president Salli Preston. They said the idea came up during Fish Camp '88. The mixer was originally planned for last April for the Corps and sororities, but was cancelled because of inclement weather.

"We had already publicized the event and hated to cancel it in the spring, but we were afraid that nobody would show up with the possibility of rain," Whittaker said. "That's why this summer we looked at the football schedule and decided that the yell practice for the Southern Mississippi game was a good time to reschedule the mixer."

"We felt that the Southern Mississippi yell practice was early enough in the football season to get a good turnout, but late enough to allow us to publicize the event," Preston said. "The beauty of waiting until this semester was that we decided to make it an all-University event. This is to allow any interested A&M student to join us before yell practice."

Sorority rushees traditionally have a mixer with the incoming Corps freshmen during Freshman Orientation Week, the week before the fall semester begins. This is organized by Corps Staff and Panhellenic, the governing body for the 11 national sororities in the Bryan-College Station area.

Friday's mixer was put together in the same spirit as the FOW mixer, which is to make the sororities and Corps members more aware of each others' organizations. Whittaker said. By making Friday's mixer open to all students, the Corps and sororities hope to "break the ice" between Aggies from all walks of life at A&M.

Preston said that the yell leaders have spoken to the sororities this week and that the event also has been promoted to the Resident Housing Association and Off-Campus Aggies.

"We want to encourage the whole student body to get together Friday night before yell practice to show that we are a unified 12th Man, even outside of Kyle Field," Whittaker said.
