Inmates continue rampage on Camp Hill state prison

Police struggle to regain control

CAMP HILL (AP) — Inmates at a state prison went on a rampage for a second night Thursday, taking five people hostage and setting fires a day after 47 people were injured in rioting by 1,200 prisoners, authorities said.

State police and fire fighters were struggling to regain control of the prison at Camp Hill as thick smoke billowed over the complex. The incident started shortly after 7 p.m.

John Palakovich, assistant to the prison superintendent, said there were numerous injuries, but he did not know how many. Local radio stations reported at least 13 people being taken to hospital for treatment.

Palakovich said five people had been taken hostage, but he could not say whether they were guards or support staff.

Inmates milled around the prison yard as flames leaped from at least two buildings and a police helicopter hovered overhead.

Earlier, prison authorities said inmates had been locked in their cells and a state of emergency was in effect following Wednesday's rampage, during which four buildings were torched. Officials had no immediate explanation of how the new violence erupted.

Palakovich said state police fired shots in the prison and that fires were burning in the E, F, and H blocks, modular units 1 through 4, and the education building. The fires were reported more intense than those seen during Wednesday's outbreak.

A television view showed a police officer on top of a fire truck firing shots up and over the prison.

"There's fire trucks and tons of police," Scott Holberg, who lives nearby, said. "It was just like last night."

Earlier, Prison Superintendent Robert Freeman said Wednesday's seven-hour riot may have been caused by overcrowding and inmates' anger over policy changes.

During the uprising, eight guards were held hostage for up to four hours and some guards were beaten. Four guards and one inmate were still hospitalized Thursday.

Freeman met for an hour Thursday with six of the inmates who helped negotiate an end to the siege. He said inmates were upset by changes in the prison's medical care policy and over a decision not to allow families to bring in food during extended family-day visits.

Anderson spends 42nd birthday in 5th year of Lebanese captivity

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Today is another grim birthday for Terry Anderson, his fifth in captivity since gunmen seized him after a game of tennis that had been a brief respite from reporting Lebanon's civil war. He will be 42.

He has not held his daughter, born three months after the Saturday morning he was kidnapped — March 16, 1985. He apparently has not been told both his father and brother died of cancer.

The fate of Terry A. Anderson, journalist and non-combatant, chief Middle East correspondent of the Associated Press, appears to be caught up in a power struggle between Shiite Moslem radicals and moderates.

He was kidnapped in Moslem west Beirut by Islamic Jihad, a group loyal to Iran whose name means Islamic Holy War. His abductors demand the release of 15 men imprisoned in Kuwait for bombing the U.S. and French embassies in 1983.

Islamic Jihad also holds Thomas Sutherland, 57, an American who was acting dean of agriculture at American University of Beirut. Sutherland was kidnapped June 9, 1985.

Police say Lebanese authorities have no information on the whereabouts of Anderson or the 15 other Western hostages in Lebanon.

Three days ago, Islamic Jihad, made its first statement in a year, reviving an old offer to trade Anderson and Sutherland for their comrades jailed in Kuwait.

A copy of the statement delivered to a Western news agency in Beirut was accompanied by a photograph of Anderson similar to one released Nov. 4, 1988, soon after his last birthday.

The statement was seen as a response to a declaration Monday by President Hashemi Rafsanjani of Iran that he would use its influence to free the hostages if the United States released Iranian assets worth up to $12 billion that have been frozen since 1979.

Kuwait has refused to free the prisoners, but two members of the group were released in February after completing five-year sentences. The United States has said it will not negotiate with terrorists.

Anderson and Sutherland are among eight American hostages, most believed held by pro-Iranians. Islamic Jihad issued its statement as the leader of Iran's revolutionary radicals, former Interior Minister Ali Akbar Mohtashemi, was on a three-week visit to Lebanon. He met with prominent Shiites, including leading figures in Hezbollah, believed to be the umbrella group for kidnap gangs.

It was not clear why Mohtashemi, Rafsanjani's main political rival, came to Lebanon, but the trip underlined his power struggle with Rafsanjani.

Bush asks for legislation to keep food supply safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush called for legislation Thursday that would allow dangerous pesticides to be taken off the market more quickly, saying the government's ability to ensure a safe food supply was being called into question.

But his proposed changes in how pesticides and other chemicals on foods are regulated were criticized immediately by environmentalists and some members of Congress who said provisions of the president's plan could instead make foods less safe.

While Bush's proposal to streamline regulation was praised, critics said other provisions of his plan would ease the risks levels used to determine if a pesticide is to be banned and also would have the government preempt state pesticide-control laws that often are stronger than federal rules.

The president, in announcing the proposed legislation, alluded to widespread publicity earlier this year over the use of Alar on apples and the government's inability to remove the cancer-causing chemical from the market swiftly.

"These stories have fueled the public concern about cancer risks, and more important for us, have called into question the government's ability to ensure a safe supply of food for our citizens," said Bush in brief remarks at a White House photo session with administration officials and members of Congress involved in food safety issues.

Bush said he was convinced the country has "the safest food supply in the world" but that there also are "valid concerns about the government's slow and cumbersome process for removing pesticides from the market."

Public lewdness is a Class A misdemeanor, punishable by up to one year in jail and/or a $2,000 fine.

Indecent exposure, a Class B misdemeanor, occurs when a person exposes his anus or his genitals to arouse or gratify the sexual desire of any person and is reckless about whether another person is present who will be offended or alarmed by his act. It is punishable by up to six months in jail and/or a $1,000 fine.

Homosexual conduct, consisting of deviant sexual intercourse between people of the same sex, is a Class C misdemeanor punishable by a maximum $200 fine. People seldom, if ever, are charged with homosexual conduct, Wiatt said, because if someone witnesses the activity and is alarmed enough to report it, public lewdness charges probably will be filed.

Wiatt said that if public homosexual activity is reported by a witness, the participants may be charged with public lewdness or indecent exposure. If, however, the witness does not want to press charges, no charges will be brought.

For example, Wiatt said that several months ago, a University employee observed three men in a bathroom stall. When University police officers arrived, they found two men in the stall. By the time they opened the door, the men were not doing anything illegal. Because the complainant did not want to get involved and the police had no evidence of illegal activity, Wiatt said, the men were not charged with anything.
