Winless season has Cowboys fans booing

IRVING (AP) — The fans are beginning to desert the winless Dallas Cowboys. The ones who do come are getting mad.

The 44,431 fans at Sunday's 19-10 loss to the Phoenix Cardinals booed both quarterback Steve Walsh and owner Jerry Jones.

Walsh was intercepted twice, and one errant throw was returned 16 yards for a touchdown by Michael Zordich.

Jones got the razzberry treatment as he introduced Lee Roy Jordan into the Ring of Honor.

"When you're not in the win column, you know the boobirds are going to get going," Jones said.

There were 2,461 no-shows from fans who bought tickets to the Cowboys' eighth consecutive loss.

With Cowboys tickets selling at $25 each, Jones had about $500,000 worth of empty seats Sunday.

Some fans were miffed because Jones didn't invite Landry to the Ring of Honor ceremony.

One fan wore a sack over his head that read: "Gee, I miss Tom Landry."

Landry, who was fired in February when Jones installed Jimmy Johnson as the coach, said on Monday he wasn't invited to the ceremony although he coached Jordan to three Super Bowls.

"No one contacted me," Landry said. "I guess they are in an awkward position when it comes to me."

Landry has yet to attend a Cowboys game this season but keeps up with them.

"I guess all of us who are interested in the club are disappointed," he said.

Fans booed rookie Walsh and began a "We Want Babe" chant in the fourth period.

They were referring to backup quarterback Babe Laufenberg, who hasn't played yet this season.

Dallas may have Troy Aikman, in the lineup for Sunday night's game in Washington against the Redskins.

line. The other three linebackers are first-year starters, including a sophomore and a converted safety.

The defense's inexperience was a major concern for A&M Coach R.C. Slocum, who recruited Wallace in high school, at the start of the season.

"Our defense, with all the question marks, has really turned out to be effective," Slocum said last week. "It wouldn't have surprised me if we had a lot more problems this year on defense."

That success is due largely in part to Wallace, who is tied for fourth in team tackles and is tied for first in sacks.

It seemed unlikely that a quiet player like Wallace would break A&M's sack record. He always was the quiet linebacker, playing in the shadows of noisier players like Roper and inside linebacker Dana Batiste.

But Wallace, nicknamed "The Quiet Avenger," moved past them all virtually unnoticed. Upperclassmen would complain during his first two years that he would make his sacks only after someone else did all the work — another player would flush the quarterback out and Wallace would be there to finish the sack.

However, coaches always have been impressed by his work ethic, and Wallace earned the sacks he made. It's been a long road to the record, but Wallace finally got it. He's not through yet.
