ments on Tuesday's ballot. Unlike presidential or mid-term elections when candidates' campaigns tend to create excitement over specific issues, Brazos County voters only have amendments to approve or reject on Tuesday's ballot. Brazos County Tax Assessor-Collector Gerald "Buddy" Winn said few amendments are being promoted. Many obstacles keep students from voting, Hurlley said. For example, many students are registered in their home precincts, she said, because they do not feel they are a part of this community. When elections come up, few students actually vote in their home precincts nor do they vote absentee. Consequently, some students simply do not vote, she said. Moreover, Hurlley said college students are distracted by studying and extracurricular activities. Unfortunately, the lower the turnout, the less likely the election will mirror the public opinion, Hurlley said. Hurlley said that in 15 years, however, the turnout rate for today's college students will have increased in part because they will probably feel more a part of their community. Local school district elections, for example, will be important because their children will be in those schools. In addition, college education is one factor that has been shown to increase turnout, Hurlley said. "People just don't take them (amendments) for what they are," Winn said. "They don't realize what an impact the amendments have on everyday life. We take voting and our way of life for granted. I guess it's human nature."

and greek games. Monday is Banner Day at the houses. The banners are entered in a spirit contest that will be judged by Mrs. Janet Slocum and Mrs. Jane Mobley, Peterson said. The contest requires all entries to say "Texas A&M University" and this year's Greek Week theme, "And the Greeks shall inherit the earth." Tuesday, a greek life seminar and an award assembly will be held in Rudder Tower, he said. The banner contest results will be announced and awards given. The director and student coordinator of United Way will speak to the greeks about how the proceeds of Greek Week will be used. Peterson said the greeks have been raising funds for United Way by selling T-shirts, sponsoring a can drive and selling advertisements in a Greek Week booklet. Wednesday is Letter Day. Peterson said the greek organizations whose members wear their letters on Wednesday will win spirit points when they sign in at a designated table in the MSC. Thursday is Greek Night Out at the Zephyr Club. The cover charge will be $1 for all greeks wearing their letters, Peterson said. All dollar proceeds are donated to United Way. Friday is Children's Day at Post Oak Mall. Forty children from the Bryan Boys Club have the opportunity to shop, eat and play games with the participants in Greek Week, Peterson said. The mall will provide balloons, two-for-one food deals and arcade tokens for the children. "Last year, children's day really went well," Peterson said. "We didn't want to leave when the time came, we were having too much fun." Friday night is Greek Night Out at the Mercury Bar. Peterson said the Mercury Bar is offering the same $1 cover, also donated to United Way. Saturday, Greek Week is sponsoring Greek Games at Southwood Valley Park. Peterson said the organizations will participate in flag football, volleyball, kick ball, tug-of-war and an obstacle course competition. Although trophies will be awarded to the first and second place winners of the games, Peterson said that the day will be "more funny than competitive." Awards to the organizations who have demonstrated the most spirit throughout the week will also be given on Saturday, he said. Peterson said Greek Week shows that greeks are not just interested in having fun. "We want to be seen in a different light," he said.

Arts committee to honor A&M history professor

Dr. Betty Unterberger, Texas A&M professor of history, will be honored by the MSC Literary Arts Committee tonight at a lecture and book signing reception. Unterberger, a nationally and internationally acclaimed historian, will speak about her latest book, "The United States, Revolutionary Russia, and the Rise of Czechoslovakia" at 6 p.m. in 212 MSC. Published by the University of North Carolina Press, the book is a culmination of years of research in Czechoslovakia and the United States and has been described by the Washington Post as the definitive work on the creation of the state of Czechoslovakia. Among her honors, Unterberger has served as the first woman president of the Society for the History of American Foreign Relations, as an A&M visiting lecturer on Soviet-American relations at Peking University in Beijing and has received the American Historical Association Award for her book "American Siberian Expedition: A Study of National Foreign Policy." Attending the festivities from Czechoslovakia's Charles University will be Ladislav Sevela, director of international programs and Eduard Klika, professor and vice rector. Texas A&M has an international memorandum of agreement for cooperative studies with Charles University. The reception and book signing will follow Unterberger's lecture at 7 p.m. in the MSC Forsyth Center Galleries.
