The lectures will resume at 9 a.m. Friday and continue until 4:30 p.m. A banquet will be held Friday night at the Ramada and the conference will conclude with a luncheon Saturday at the Hilton.
About 250 students from all over the country will participate. De La Garza said. The conference also will include workshops to allow participants to further discuss the debt problem.
"We want a lot of audience participation," De La Garza said.
There will be no admission fee for the speeches, but students must register to participate in the workshops and attend the banquet and luncheon. The fee is $25 for A&M students and $50 for non-students.

Officials try to interview officer who shot woman

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Police Department internal affairs investigators tried for the first time Tuesday to interview an officer who fatally shot a woman during a free-way shootout last week but failed because he was "too medicated," officials said.
Officer Alex Gonzales, 25, has remained in Hermann Hospital since the shootout Oct. 31, in which he was wounded and Ida Lee Delaney, 50, was killed.
Both the FBI and the police department on Monday acknowledged Gonzales had consumed nearly the amount of alcohol allowed by law before he shot and killed Delaney. A police official confirmed Gonzales' blood tests — acquired from Hermann Hospital through a Harris County grand jury — revealed a percent alcohol-blood content. Under state law, a person is considered intoxicated with at least a .10 percent measure of alcohol.
