'Get another point-and-a-half ... we'll cover the spread'
Elway predicts closer Super Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — John Elway of the Denver Broncos, in the tradition of quarterbacks past, offered a Super Bowl guarantee. "Get another point-and-a-half," Elway said, "and I guarantee we'll cover the spread."

This falls somewhat short of Joe Namath's Super Bowl III guarantee that the 17 1/2-point underdog New York Jets would beat the Baltimore Colts.

The betting line, measuring the relative worth of Denver and San Francisco, says the Broncos are double digits short of the 49ers, 12 1/2 points at last report, up from an original 10. Elway thinks his team's situation isn't quite that bad.

"People are not giving us a lot of chance," Elway said. "If we win, it will be the greatest upset of all time. If we lose, well, we're supposed to lose."

The quarterback figures that puts all the pressure on the 49ers, and that's fine with him. It takes two teams to make a Super Bowl, and the Broncos are happy to play the party of the second part, odds against them notwithstanding. "Only one other team has a chance to be world champion," Elway said. "I'd rather go to bat and take my chances than not go to bat. I'll risk humiliation for the chance."

Humiliation, of course, has been the Broncos' regular diet in this setting. This is Denver's fourth Super Bowl and the third shot for Elway. Each of the other appearances resulted in routs, and those wipeouts — especially the last two when he was the quarterback — weigh heavily on Elway.

"For me to be the quarterback who want to be, I've got to win the big game," he said. "Not too many guys who are classified as great quarterbacks have not won the championship. I don't know how many more chances we'll have. I've missed two opportunities. Hopefully, we won't miss the boat on this one."

How would he like to be remembered? Elway smiled.

"I'd like to be looked at as a good quarterback who won at least one Super Bowl," he said.

Open reaches quarterfinals
 Older, younger generations clash in matches

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Ivan Lendl, Stefan Edberg and Mats Wilander, each former Australian Open champions, stepped onto the sizzling courts Wednesday hoping to move closer to another title.

Opposing them were three young players — Andrei Cherkasov, David Wheaton and Boris Becker — hungry for their first Australian championships.

The three quarterfinal matches offered a view of some of the dominant players of the 1980s and perhaps the key players of the 1990s, the past clashing with the future in the first Grand Slam tournament of the decade.

Lendl, the defending champion and No. 1-ranked player, is the oldest in the group at 29 and faced the youngest, Cherkasov, a 19-year-old Soviet baseliner born on July 4.

Wheaton may have been a little lucky to get so far — with Krickstein slowed by a pulled groin and third-round opponent Mark Woodforde retiring in the second set with a sprained ankle — but is widely regarded as one of the top young players.

The 25-year-old Wilander, winner of the Australian in 1983, 1984 and 1988, has been struggling the past year. He faced the toughest of the young players, the 22-year-old, second-ranked Becker, winner of three Wimbledon titles and the U.S. Open last year.

Becker won six of their previous eight matches, losing only on the clay at the French Open. In their last meeting, in the Davis Cup final in December, Becker trounced Wilander 6-2, 6-0, 6-2.

The fourth quarterfinal match, scheduled at night, pitted 12th-ranked Yannick Noah of France against Mikael Pernfors, the Swedish-born former NCAA champion at Georgia who benefited from the default of John McEnroe.

Noah, who beat Lendl en route to winning a tuneup event in Sydney, won both his previous matches with Pernfors in close matches, once on clay in 1985 and another on hard courts in 1986.

There may be hotter spots on earth than center court at the Australian Open, but only fools would play tennis in them — unless they were getting a lot of money.

In earlier women's quarterfinal matches, top-seed Steffi Graf defeated Patty Fendick 6-3, 7-5; No. 6 seed Mary Joe Fernandez beat Zina Garrison 1-6, 6-2, 8-6; West Germany's Claudia Porwik beat Angelica Gavaldon, 6-4, 6-3 and No. 4 seed Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia defeated Bulgaria's Katerina Maleeva 6-4, 6-3.

Oilers' Moon named NFL's Man of Year

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Quarterback Warren Moon, who formed a foundation last March to assist disadvantaged youngsters and the homeless in Houston, was honored Tuesday as the NFL's Man of the Year.

Moon received a $25,000 charity award, which will go to the Crescent Moon Foundation. The money will fund a college scholarship program.

"As a player, a lot of different awards have been brought my way," said Moon, the AFC's starting quarterback in the Pro Bowl. "As a total person, this award means more. It talks about not only on-field excellence but what you give back to the community and the kind of person you are."

Moon recently donated $200,000 to the construction of the Kingdom Builders Community Center in Houston. Its 73 ministries support small businesses, youth activities, the elderly and people with debilitating diseases.

Mavs' Tarpley hoping to make it back by himself

DALLAS (AP) — During a strict drug after-care program, suspended Dallas Mavericks forward Roy Tarpley recovered from dependency on his own, without help from team officials, the physician who approved his reinstatement to the NBA said.

He was enthusiastic, focused on his own recovery. He didn't ask me, "When am I going to get back?"

them in helping the Mavericks turn around what has been a mediocre season.

heads in our direction. Granted, Texas is not all that well known for producing quality basketball players. But with the help of better facilities, maybe we could attract better players.

Next on Crow's list should be getting more national TV exposure. This goes for the whole SWC as well.

The thing that really hurts the conference is the lack of TV exposure. Schools from the Big East, Big Ten and Atlantic Coast Conference grab all of the big players because they're attracted to the TV time given these schools.

If A&M and the rest of the SWC want to make a better name for Texas basketball, they'll do something about it.

Yet another issue that may be looming in the back of Crow's head, is the fact that A&M is known more for its football team than its basketball team because Metcalf hadn't enjoyed as much success as Jackie Sherrill and R.C. Slocum.

We've just got to say, "We're going to get the job done."

Then go up East and find a promising coach who can make the basketball program work.

Then do it.

Tarpley, who was left on his own throughout his latest suspension on orders of Mavericks majority owner Donald Carter, made the recovery on his own, said Dr. Dave Lewis of the ASAP Family Treatment Center in Van Nuys, Calif.

"Mr. Carter was taking a 'tough-love' approach," said Lewis, who lifted the suspension Monday. "A person who's an alcoholic or an addict needs to take responsibility for the recovery."

"That's one of the things I saw Roy doing for the last two weeks, for Tarpley, who said his enthusiasm to play again isn't dampened by his need to prove himself again, listed his toughest thing to handle in returning from the 34-game absence as "Akeem," referring to Houston Rockets' All Star center Akeem Olatunji.

Other Mavericks players said they were relieved that Tarpley didn't feel like he could immediately reclaim his starting position.

"I think he's going to have to be sensitive to the fact that we've put some things together here without him," said center James Donaldson. "He's going to have to work his way back into the rotation and earn his starting job back."

Some teammates also want more proof that Tarpley won't disappoint

"We can't be married to the guy, emotionally, anymore," said team captain Rolando Blackman. "I don't know if he can handle himself, at this point. We thought that before, and he couldn't."

Tarpley told a news conference at Reunion Arena Monday evening that many have heard his story before.

"A lot of people ... were trying to help me and I think it's important for me to take responsibility for myself. And that's what I have done," said Tarpley, who resumed practice Tuesday. "I really don't expect you to believe me because you're probably hearing the same thing you heard before."

"I'll just have to make my actions speak louder than words," he said. "What I'm all about today is actions."

UTEP under NCAA scrutiny

EL PASO (AP) — Texas-El Paso's football coach and athletic director will go before the NCAA Committee on Infractions next month to explain their hiring of former Memphis State assistant football coach Charlie Bailey.

Bailey, hired as UTEP's new defensive coordinator, resigned as head coach of Memphis State last May while the school's football program was under NCAA investigation. Three months after Bailey resigned, the NCAA placed the football program on a three-year probation.

At the time, the NCAA said in its order that if Bailey were hired by another NCAA school before August 1994, both Bailey and the school that hired him could be summoned before the NCAA infractions committee.

UTEP Coach David Lee said he and athletic director Brad Hovious will appear Feb. 2 with Bailey before the committee in San Diego.

The NCAA could limit Bailey's duties at UTEP, possibly barring him from recruiting.

"If they don't let him recruit for a year or they won't let him participate in our summer job program, he won't do it," Lee said Tuesday. Bailey was accused of NCAA violations in Memphis State's summer job program for football players. "I believe in Charlie Bailey. I believe he's an honest person."

Lee said he needs Bailey's pro football experience to field a defense that can stand up to the sophisticated pass attacks characteristic of Western Athletic Conference teams.

The Miners finished 2-10 last season, allowing 35 points a game.
