GRADUATE AND POSTGRADUATE STUDIES IN BIOCHEMISTRY AND STRUCTURAL BIOLOGY AT BAYLOR COLLEGE OF MEDICINE HOUSTON, TEXAS

The Department of biochemistry at Baylor College of Medicine is expanding its graduate and postgraduate training program. We offer a broad spectrum of research opportunities including structural biophysics, protein design and engineering, macromolecular assembly, biological recognition, developmental biology, molecular genetics and regulation, neurobiochemistry and molecular immunology. Our research funding exceeds 4 million dollars annually. Since many of our research programs are highly interdisciplinary, we would like to encourage students from biology, chemistry, physics, engineering and computer science to apply for admission to our program. The annual stipend is $12,000, plus a tuition scholarship for graduate students. For more information and application package, write to Graduate Director, Verna and Marrs McLean Department of Biochemistry, Baylor College of Medicine, One Baylor Plaza, Houston, TX, 77030; Telephone number: 713/798-4527.
