Charity pays bills charged by leaders

Thousands spent with credit

HOUSTON — Thousands of dollars in questionable charges - ranging from restaurant bills to the purchase of residential homes — have been paid out by a feeding program for the elderly to the charity's leaders, according to published reports.

Union Y Progreso Barrio Development Inc., a 15-year-old program that feeds senior citizens at several centers and on a home-delivery basis, has paid thousands of dollars a month for four American Express credit cards held by the charity's ex-ecutive director, its chairwoman and her husband and son, the Houston Post reported Thursday in a copy-

Chairwoman Mary Tudon, 47, her husband, Fred Tudon Jr., 47, and their son, Fred Tudon III, 23, and Executive Director Frank Velasquez, 45, have charged air fare, hotel bills, restaurant tabs, clothing and jewelry, concert tickets, flowers and designer items to the charity's credit cards, the Post reported.

In addition, the Post reported, two businesses run by the elder Tu-don received thousands of dollars most months from the charity for services left unspecified in contracts and most vouchers. Between July 1987 and June 1989, Tudon's firms, TU Enterprises and Capitol Catering, received more than $300,000 from the charity for invoices specifying only "services rendered," the pa-

The charity also has purchased properties around the city, including a $1 million apartment complex and property next door to the Tudons' home, the paper reported. Some of the property is boarded up and has been refused tax-exempt status because the county appraisal district ruled the properties are not used for charitable purposes, the newspaper

In addition, records from Union Y Progreso Barrio Development show that the charity, which delivers meals to homes, has spent thousands of dollars each month renting vehicles and purchasing gas, car insur-ance and paying tickets, the Post re-

This fiscal year Union Y Progreso, which has been getting money for food and elderly programs through the city since 1979, also will receive $580,000 in state and federal money through city-controlled contracts, city records show. The Post reported that the charity feeds senior citizens at El Centro and at six other senior center locations around town and through a meal delivery program.

Police detain twins abandoned at store

HOUSTON (AP) — Two-yearold twin girls abandoned at a convenience store were placed in foster

Children's Protective Service Sunday morning, and officials there were trying to verify her identity. Other people claiming to be relatives also called, said Judy Hay, Children Pro-

Officer R.E. Sisk said the mother has not checked in with police.

"We know who she is and know who (the girls) are," Sisk said, but declined to release their names.

Police will have to talk to the mother before deciding whether to file charges, Sisk said. "We really have to talk to her and determine the store later Saturday, and didn't appear upset when the caller told her the children had been taken as a significant state."

Plan to delay gun sales angers rifle association has drawn the fire of the Texas State Rifle Association who label the proposal an empty gesture.

The proposal, which would require a 10- to 14-day waiting period on the sale of firearms, is among 11 steps suggested by Police Chief Mack Vines to help eliminate the drug problem in Dallas County.

The measures were laid out in a report sent to the City Council late Friday. The report also recom-mended more money for drug prevention programs, narcotics investigators and equipment. The report, however, does not say how much the new efforts would cost or how they would be funded.
