Mom accused of negligence in child's alcohol overdose

EVERMAN (AP) — The mother of a 5-year-old boy who died after drinking 10 ounces of bourbon at a party has been charged in the boy's death, police said Monday.

Patricia Griffin, 31, was charged with injury to a child by gross negligence in the death of her son, Raymond Thomas Griffin II, last week, said Everman Police Chief Roger Larm.

The offense is a third-degree felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

"We feel she was negligent in getting him the medical attention when it was needed," Larm said. "An ambulance wasn't called until 16 hours after the original consumption of alcohol, and 12 hours after he started being seriously ill."

Larm said witnesses told police Griffin didn't see her son drink the alcohol, but she was told immediately afterward and apparently did nothing.

The child died last Wednesday, 11 hours after being removed from life support machines.

Police say Raymond was urged to drink the alcohol "like a man" by an adult at the neighborhood gathering at his home March 2.

Anthony Jimerson, 21, has been charged with first-degree felony injury to a child and is being held in the Tarrant County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bond. Griffin is being held under $10,000 bond.

Witnesses have told police that Jimerson wanted the boy to go to sleep so he could be alone with Griffin, Larm said.

Griffin has said the statements upset her. "I didn't know he was saying that," she said last week.

Another child, Rasad Griffin, 2, has been removed from the home since Raymond's death. A hearing Tuesday will determine whether he stays in foster care.

Doctors say the boy suffered irreversible brain damage after ingesting the bourbon and some beer and had a blood alcohol content of .55, which is five times the legal definition of intoxication in Texas.

Officers said the boy drank roughly the equivalent of a fifth of alcohol for an average adult.

Hearing date set for Canadians charged with federal bribery

DALLAS (AP) — A hearing has been set for Tuesday to consider allowing three Canadian defendants accused of federal bribery charges to return home until their trial here.

Darrell Lowry, Donald Castle and George V. Morton are free on bail of $100,000 apiece, but they are not being allowed to leave the Northern U.S. Judicial District of Dallas, according to the office of U.S. Magistrate John B. Tolle.

Federal prosecutors have contended that the three men are not accused of an extraditable offense and should not be allowed to leave the country unless they sign a document promising to return for trial, said a source in Tolle's office who asked not to be identified.

A Texas man — Vernon P. Tull of Brownsville — also has been indicted in the case, which involves an alleged plan to pay Castle and Lowry a $50,000 kickback in the sale of 11 buses.

Castle and Lowry are the president and vice president of Saskatchewan Transportation Co.

Morton has been identified as an agent for Eagle International Inc., which was arranging the sale of 11 buses to the Canadian firm.

Tull, who is free on personal recognizance, is executive vice president of Eagle International, which is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Dallas-based Greyhound Corp.

The four defendants were charged under the Federal Foreign Corrupt Practice Act of 1977 that makes it a felony to offer or pay a bribe to any foreign official for the purpose of influencing any act or decision of such foreign official in his official capacity.

Conviction carries a possible penalty of imprisonment up to five years.

Tuesday's hearing is set for 2:30 p.m. CST.

Hobby proposes raising 'sin taxes' Clements repeats vow to veto cigarette, liquor price increase

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby called Monday for increasing the state cigarette tax by 14 cents per pack, which would raise an estimated $150 million a year to help fund court-ordered school-finance reform.

"That's quite a few hundred million dollars out there, just lying on the table, to be raked in," Hobby said.

But Gov. Bill Clements repeated his vow to veto any new taxes in the special session in which lawmakers are dealing with a Texas Supreme Court ruling that the current school funding system is unconstitutional.

"There is not going to be any tax bill as far as I'm concerned," Clements said.

The current cigarette tax of 26 cents a pack yields $374 million annually, said John Bell, director of cash flow forecast for the state Treasury, which administers the cigarette tax.

A 14-cent increase would yield about $150 million in additional money over a year's time.

The state could get federal matching funds if it dedicated the cigarette tax to Medicare and other health-care services, freeing up other state funds for education, Hobby said. The Department of Human Services has reported a funding shortfall.

Hobby said a cigarette tax increase would pass the Legislature "in a minute."

The money from such an increase would not be enough to solve the state's financial problems, but it would help, he said. Hobby said he called for the cigarette tax increase at a Texas Cancer Council luncheon he attended with Clements and House Speaker Gib Lewis.

Sen. Carl Parker, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said Clements might be privately less averse to increasing cigarette or liquor taxes for school-finance reform, but the governor said that's not true.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, said, "I'm hearing talk about all kinds of schemes. I've heard that the governor may not be as opposed to so-called sin taxes as his public posture indicates."

Clements responded: "I don't think Parker really knows very much about me, one way or the other. ... I haven't seen any bill, but I guarantee you if there are any taxes that are in there, I will veto it."

A Senate subcommittee on Monday discussed school-finance reform proposals, including a bill co-sponsored by Parker, Hobby and Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, that would cost the state an estimated $783 million the first year.

The special session that began Tuesday, two weeks before the March primary, was called by Clements for lawmakers to address the Supreme Court's school-finance decision and a federal court ruling that calls for the state to change the way state judges are elected.

Child abuse case under investigation

AUSTIN (AP) — The attorney general's office is investigating the way the Texas Department of Human Services handled the case of a 2-year-old boy who was fatally beaten after coming to the agency's attention three times.

A state Senate committee that oversees the department also is monitoring the case of Christopher Wohlers, who died Jan. 3.

The Office of Youth Care Investigations, a division of the attorney general's office, is conducting an independent review even though the welfare agency cleared employees of wrongdoing after an internal investigation, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

Mike Feary, supervisor of criminal investigations, said the staff decided to review Christopher's death to see whether DHS guidelines were followed and appropriate actions taken. Depending on its findings, Feary said, the office may make recommendations to the Human Services Commission later this month.

Examiner claims airline reports misinterpreted by news media

NEW YORK (AP) — Texas Air Corp.'s agreement to pay its Eastern Airlines subsidiary about $280 million was not an admission that it bought assets from the airline at unfairly low prices, Eastern's court-appointed bankruptcy examiner told congressional leaders Monday.

Examiner David I. Shapiro said his report investigating dealings between Texas Air and Eastern, which concluded Eastern was underpaid by hundreds of millions of dollars, had been misinterpreted by the news media as a finding that Texas Air was liable for the money.

"I did not find that Texas Air had improperly diverted assets from Eastern," Shapiro wrote in a letter to House Speaker Thomas S. Foley and House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel. "Instead, I set forth the grounds on which such a claim could be asserted."

"The settlement is not an admission of liability by Texas Air," the letter read. "Rather, it is an agreement between Texas Air and the examiner as to what is needed to assure the economic viability of Eastern Airlines."

Shapiro declined any comment on the matter Monday. A copy of the letter, sent Monday, was obtained by the Associated Press.

Texas Air spokesman Art Kent called Shapiro's letter "a very significant clarification," while a union attorney described it as "comical."

Shapiro's report filed last Thursday in federal bankruptcy court concluded Texas Air purchased Eastern, and some of its assets at unfairly low prices and owed the carrier $285 million to $403 million.

"There is sufficient evidence to warrant the bringing of charges that (12) transactions provided Eastern with less than fair consideration of reasonably equivalent value," the report said. "... The court could therefore appropriately authorize litigation of these 12 claims ..."

Texas Air agreed at the time to pay Eastern $280 million in cash and assets, but vehemently objected to Shapiro's findings and said it had not engaged in any wrongdoing. The company said its payment was merely to help bolster Miami-based Eastern.

Sources have said Texas Air had agreed to pay Eastern the money on condition that Shapiro's report not assign any liability to Texas Air. The sources, who asked not to be named, said over the weekend that Texas Air Chairman Frank Lorenzo and his associates believed they had a deal with Shapiro but the Washington town attorney did not uphold it.

Kent said the company would say more at a news conference Eastern scheduled for 2 p.m. EST (1 p.m. CST) Tuesday in New York.
