Dickerson sets deadline for trade

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Despite facing a $1-million fine by the Indianapolis Colts, running back Eric Dickerson says he'll retire on April 24 unless he's traded.

The Colts said they will hold Dickerson to the terms of his current contract, which runs through 1990. Part of those terms, according to Colts general manager Jim Irsay, state that Dickerson must pay the team "in excess of seven figures" should he not play this year.

Meanwhile, some of Dickerson's teammates are wondering whether the controversy already has damaged relations beyond repair.

"I don't think he's making it easy for himself," quarterback Jack Trudewau said. "It won't be like it was when he first came here, that's for sure. Every time he makes comments, he offends people."

Dickerson was most critical of the Indianapolis offensive line, which he said did not protect him. He was hobbled much of the season by a hamstring injury, yet he finished third in the NFL in rushing with 1,311 yards.

On Tuesday night, he told the Indianapolis News that unless he is traded, he'll retire on April 24.

"I'll call a press conference and announce it," said Dickerson, who indicated he stands by statements he made in a Monday television interview in which he said he would not play for the Colts.

He said his agent, Daryl Henry, "has tried to talk me into thinking about it and going back. I told him, 'If I have to go back there, I'll go through. Right after draft day, I will just announce that I quit. I retire.'"

Tackle Chris Hinton, a six-time Pro Bowl lineman, did not appreciate Dickerson's remarks.

"I've got to get upset with the things he's saying," Hinton said. "If he's doing it because he wants a trade or more money, he's not going about it the right way."

"The situation has gotten to the point where it would probably be more productive if they did trade him. There are some wounds that will be pretty tough to close. I'm probably one of the most understanding guys. I can imagine what some of the other guys are thinking."

"I think he's serious about it, if that's what it takes to get away from here," Hinton said. "If the Colts force it to that point, I would not be surprised if he did it."

Dickerson said Hinton was one of the linemen — he was named the others — he was named in his criticism.

"He's one of the best linemen I've seen, in both ability and the way he plays with a lot of heart. When he comes back wouldn't it be nice to have him in front of him?" Dickerson said. "But not everybody is a Hinton."

Dickerson, who would get $1.45 million from the Colts this season, has received offers from other teams until April 15 to talk with five teams — Washington, Philadelphia, Houston, New York Giants and Los Angeles Raiders — about a trade. But he said the Colts and his agent they want three round draft picks in any deal.

Spotlight: NCAA Tournament

MARCH MADNESS

Xavier wary of Longhorns', Mays quickness

CINCINNATI (AP) — Xavier University's Musketeers say they will be hoping to counter the quickness of the Texas Longhorns when the teams play Thursday night in a NCAA tournament semifinal game in Dallas.

"We have to concentrate on the areas in which they excel," Xavier coach Pete Gillen said.

"First, we have to get back on defense because they are so quick, like Loyola Marymount. Then, once we get back, we have to guard them one-on-one. What it comes down to is defense, rebounding and shooting free throws."

Xavier, 28-4, is coming off Sunday's 74-41 tournament upset of Georgetown. Gillen has been telling his team to be confident but not cocky in playing Texas, 23-8.

"We have to keep on top of their guards out front," Xavier freshman Maurice Brantley said of the Texas backcourt. "If they get the ball out front and aren't challenged, they will fire it up and they are excellent three-point shooters."

Brantley said he also hopes to help Xavier's rebounding leaders, Tyrone Hill and Derek Strong, in grabbing missed shots.

"The key is box out," said Brantley, who sneaked his 6-foot-6 frame between Georgetown's 7-foot-2 Dikembe Mutombo and 6-foot-10 Alonzo Mourning to grab six rebounds in Sunday's game.

Michael Davenport, a Xavier junior who is one of the team's best foul shooters, said his teammates also need to concentrate on hitting their free throws.

"If they foul you, make them pay," said Davenport, whose 80.5 percent free-throw average ranks second on the team behind Strong's 83.5 percent.

Hill, a senior, is within 19 points of 2,000 for his career. He would be one of only 61 players in NCAA history to score 2,000 and grab 1,000 or more rebounds.

Strong, a senior who has scored 1,264 career points, needs 12 to move past Jerry Helmers into 12th place on the Xavier scoring list. Hill, with 1,981 points, is second to all-time school scoring leader Byron Larkin, who scored 2,696 in a career ended in 1988.

Strong also needs 16 rebounds to pass No. 5 Joe Viviano, with 906, on Xavier's all-time rebounding list.

Junior Joey Wright, who led Texas in Sunday's upset over Purdue, hopes to guide the Longhorns to another win Thursday.

Hogs return to Barnhill South battle Tarheels

The Midwest Regional's three seeds — Oklahoma, Purdue and Georgetown — are going to the NCAA tournament, a situation that leaves Arkansas in a risky position.

The Razorbacks, at No. 4, are the highest remaining seed in the Midwest.

Arkansas (28-4) meets North Carolina (21-12) in the first of two Midwest games Thursday night at Reunion Arena in Dallas. In the second game, Xavier (28-4) meets Texas (23-8).

While the trend in the Midwest seems to portend bad things for the Razorbacks, geography is on their side. The Southwest Conference tournament was held at Reunion Arena, and an estimated 80 percent of the fans who bought tickets were from Arkansas.

It's estimated that about 10 percent of the NCAA regional tickets also went to Arkansas fans, many of whom bought NCAA tickets during the conference championships.

"They're talking about it being like a home court for Arkansas," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said. "Not only the crowd, but the fact they've won six games through the Southwest Conference tournaments."

North Carolina upset the region's top seed, Oklahoma, to get to Dallas.

Xavier also will be going against a hometown favorite in Texas, revitalized under coach Tom Penders. Xavier ousted No. 3 seed Georgetown, while Texas eliminated No. 2 Purdue.

"They penetrate and shoot well," Xavier coach Pete Gillen said. "They like to run, and they like to run. It should be fun."

If Arkansas is fortunate enough to defeat North Carolina and if the Longhorns are able to shut down Xavier, then the two would face off for the fourth time this season in the final round of the semi-finals.

In other East Regional tournament action, Connecticut (30-5) meets Clemson (26-8), and Duke (26-8) plays UCLA (22-10). The winners play Saturday night the right to go to the Final Four in Denver.

On Friday, it's Minnesota (23-8) vs. Syracuse (26-6) and Michigan State (28-5) vs. Georgia Tech (26-6) in the Southeast Regional, and Loyola Marymount (25-5) vs. Alabama (26-8) and Nevada-Las Vegas (31-5) vs. Ball State (26-6) in the West Region.

Coaches: mirror images

DALLAS (AP) — Xavier coach Pete Gillen and Texas coach Tom Penders were once teammates on a semi-pro baseball team. They're both East Coast guys who enjoy a good laugh. They coach an up-tempo style.

And they're both hot commodities. Real hot.

In Gillen and Penders, the NCAA Midwest Regional has two of the most highly regarded young coaches in the game. Penders' name already has been linked to the vacancy at the University of Florida, and hardly a basketball season goes by that Gillen's name isn't mentioned as a leading candidate for one opening or another.

"I don't have much money because I send checks periodically out to 210 writers to mention my name every three weeks," Gillen, 42, said Wednesday on the eve of his team's regional semifinal against Texas.

In the other semifinal, fourth-seeded and seventh-ranked Arkansas (28-4) plays eighth-seeded North Carolina (21-12). The winners will play Saturday for the right to go to the Final Four in Denver.

Gillen's and Penders' names continue to pop up for a simple reason — they're successful.

Gillen was an assistant at Notre Dame for five seasons before getting the Xavier job in 1985. He has failed to win 20 games only once, in 1986-87, and that year the Musketeers still won the Midwestern Collegiate Conference tournament and played two games in the NCAA tournament.

This year, the Musketeers spent 10 straight weeks in the rankings, something no Xavier team had done. At 28-5, the Musketeers have set a school record for victories.
