Captain charged with negligence

FREPORT (AP) — A tugboat captain has been charged with negligence in a 30,000-gallon oil spill in the Intracoastal Waterway, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

merged vessel and ruptured, spilling 830 barrels of light crude into the waterway, officials said.

"The current was a factor, but he should have compensated accordingly," Whipple said.

The waterway opened to two-way traffic Tuesday after an all-night effort by cleanup crews. One-way traffic was restored Monday morning.

Coast Guard Warrant Officer Mike Shoul said a federal judge will conduct a hearing and decide by July either to revoke or suspend Sanders' license, or dismiss the charge.

Sanders is free and can continue to pilot vessels pending the outcome of the hearing, Shoul said.

The barge, owned by LeBeouf Brothers Towing Co. of Houma, La., was traveling from Mobile, Ala. to Corpus Christi. It was carrying a light grade of crude oil called condensate, which is extracted from natural gas wells.

Lt. Cmdr. Frank Whipple said Arthur Sanders, 32, of Houma, La., could have avoided the accident by staying in shipping lanes instead of veering too close to the shoreline Sunday night.

Sanders' tug was pushing the 190-foot oil barge that struck a submerged vessel and ruptured, spilling 830 barrels of light crude into the waterway, officials said.
