Sponsors struggle to save anti-crime bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sponsors scrambled to save a wide-ranging anti-crime bill containing new curbs on semiautomatic weapons Thursday after the Senate failed to stop a filibuster.

Democratic leaders first pronounced the bill dead, blaming the National Rifle Association, after the Senate voted 57-37 to limit debate, three votes short of the number needed.

But then the Democrats, with support from Republican leaders, called for talks aimed at a compromise.

"The only way we're really likely to get a bill is if we can enter into negotiations," declared Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del.

"I think we can work it out," said Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.

Much of the discussion of the bill has focused on its ban on the manufacture or importation of nine kinds of semiautomatic assault rifles, but it contains other significant provisions as well.

The legislation contains remnants of President Bush's crime program, sent to Capitol Hill a year ago, but has been largely rewritten since then and few of its provisions now find favor with the administration.

Under various provisions:

- The death penalty would be established for 30 specific federal crimes.
- Courts would be able to consider evidence gathered with flawed warrants in some cases.
- An end would be sought to long delays — up to a decade in some cases — in carrying out executions.

Democratic leaders said they needed to limit debate because of

"Tom Daschle betrayed every honest gun owner in South Dakota by voting for it ... because Daschle bought the big anti-gun media lie that gun control equals crime control"

— letter from National Rifle Association

300 pending amendments that could delay passage indefinitely. The time limit sought by Democratic leaders would have squeezed action on all amendments and the overall bill into 30 hours.

On the roll call, 11 Republicans joined 46 Democrats in voting for a time limit. Seven Democrats and 30 Republicans opposed it.

That gave bill sponsors three more votes than they gained Tuesday when they made their first run at a time limit but still not enough.

Biden blamed the NRA for the proliferation of amendments. "The NRA says they want to kill this because it contains guns," he declared.

Indeed, in the days before he voted the NRA sent messages to Executive Director Wayne LaPierre to gun owners in eight states, urging them to put pressure on their senators.

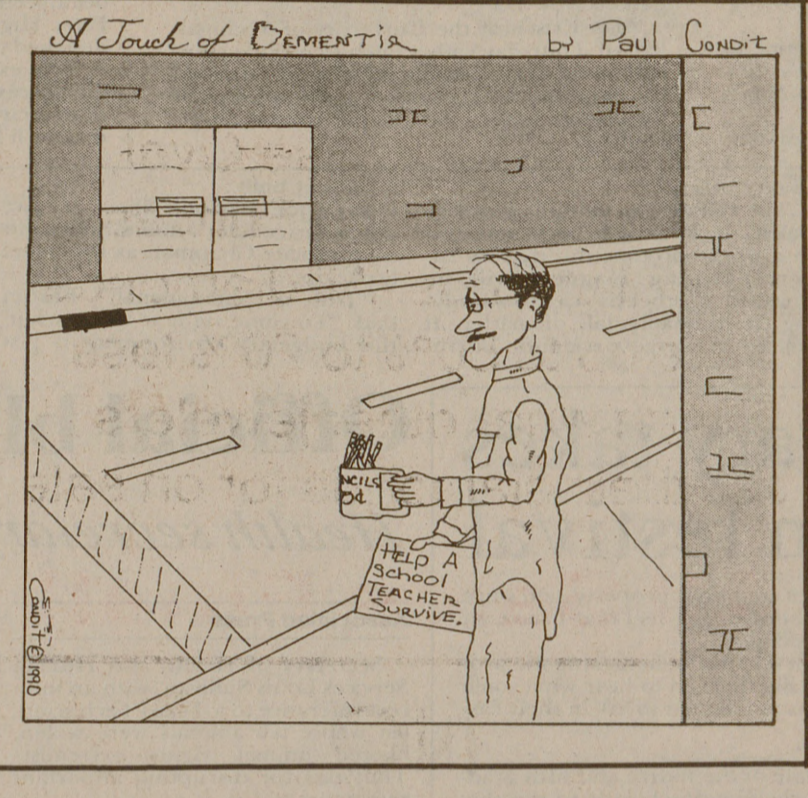

One mailed to South Dakota ripped into Sen. Tom Daschle, S.D., saying the gun provisions he survived in an earlier skirmish, one vote.

"Tom Daschle betrayed every honest gun owner in South Dakota by voting for it ... because Daschle bought the big anti-gun media lie that gun control equals crime control" and "has now joined Ted Kennedy and the national gun crowd ..."

It urged gun owners to vote Daschle's state offices in Aberdeen, Rapid City and Sioux Falls and provided the phone numbers. Messages with the names of other senators and similar accusations were mailed to a number of other states.

That gave bill sponsors three more votes than they gained Tuesday when they made their first run at a time limit but still not enough.

Restaurant Report

The restaurants listed below were inspected by the Brazos County Health Department between May 21 and June 1. Information is from a food service establishment inspection report.

SCORED BETWEEN 95 AND 100:
Kroger #997 at 2412 S. Texas Ave. Score — 97. Points were deducted for potentially hazardous thawing of food and the storage of single-service articles. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

Texan Burger at 3109 S. Texas Ave. Score — 95. Points were deducted for improper storage of utensils, maintenance of non-food contact surfaces, inadequate hand-drying devices, inadequate hair restraints and inadequate hand cleanser. The restaurant was inspected for its opening.

SCORED BETWEEN 85 AND 89:
Kentucky Fried Chicken at 3321 Texas Ave. Score — 86. Points were deducted for unsatisfactory hygienic practices by personnel (major violation), unsatisfactory food protection and storage, unsatisfactory non-food contact surfaces of equipment and utensils, inadequate hand-drying devices, improper storage of utensils, unclean food-contact surfaces, unsatisfactory maintenance of plumbing and improper waste receptacles. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

SCORED BETWEEN 80 AND 84:
Kettle Restaurant at 2712 S. Texas Ave. Score — 84. Points were deducted for unsatisfactory food protection and storage, inadequate hygienic practices by personnel (major violation), unclean non-food contact surfaces of equipment and utensils, uncovered garbage containers or receptacles, unclean floors, unsatisfactory plumbing maintenance, unsatisfactory outside storage area construction, unsatisfactory walls and ceilings, litter on the premises and unsatisfactory container labels. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

A&M Steakhouse at 108 College Main. Score — 82. Points were deducted for potentially hazardous food storage (major violation), inadequate hair restraints, unsatisfactory access to toilet rooms, unsatisfactory walls and ceilings, unsatisfactory protection and storage of food, improper storage of single-service articles and inadequate protection of outer openings. It was a follow-up inspection.

SCORED BETWEEN 64 AND 69:
Schulman Six Theater at 2002 E. 29th St. Score — 69. Points were deducted for potentially hazardous food preparation (major violation), unsatisfactory food protection, unclean non-food contact surfaces, inadequate dishwashing thermometers, unsatisfactory plumbing installation and maintenance, unclean floors, unclean dressing rooms, unsatisfactory maintenance of premises, inadequate thermometers, inadequate hair restraints, unsatisfactory dishwashing facilities, inadequate sanitization rinse, inadequate hand washing devices and toilets, unsatisfactory walls and ceilings, and maintenance and improper storage of toxic items (major violation). It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

David Jefferson, a registered sanitarian at the department, said restaurants with scores of 95 or above generally have excellent operations and facilities. He said restaurants with scores in the 70s or low 80s usually have serious violations in the health report.

Scores can be misleading, Jefferson said, because restaurants can get the same score by having several minor violations or a few major violations. He said the minor violations can be corrected during the inspection. Point deductions or violations in the report range from one point (minor violations) to five points (major violations).

Jefferson said the department might close a restaurant if the score is below 60, the personnel have infectious diseases, the restaurant lacks adequate refrigeration, there is a sewage backup in the building or the restaurant has a complete lack of sanitization for the food equipment.

The department inspects each restaurant every six months. Jefferson said a follow-up inspection is sometimes required if a restaurant has a four- or five-point violation that cannot be corrected during the inspection, or if there are numerous small violations.

Inspectors at the department are registered sanitarians.
