The government acceded to their demands, but has been unable to fulfill its promises. In the meantime, miners' demands have become increasingly political.

According to information compiled from strike leaders in Donetsk, the Kuznets Basin of western Siberia and Vorkuta in the Far North, miners at about 200 shafts were on strike

No figures were available on the number of miners who actually walked off their jobs. But judging from the number of mines on strike in the Donetsk region, it appeared that about 100,000 miners stayed away. Strike organizers claimed that about 300,000 miners would halt work in western Siberia alone.

Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev told the Communist Party's 28th congress in Moscow that the strike was not of a general nature.

LONDON (AP) — The code hat governs British treatment of royalty is largely unwritten but always strict, and novelist A.N. Wilson has violated one of the ster-est rules of all. His sin has been to report a linner-table chat with Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth The Queen

That her remarks to Wilson were fairly innocuous, and that the conversation took place nearly a decade ago, matters little. The affair has provoked some sharp language from London society "Scoundrel!" thundered Lord Wyatt of Weeford.

'An intolerable betrayal!" echoed Nicholas Soames, member of Parliament and scion of the Churchill family.

Wilson, 39, is a gifted novelist and acute social commentator who clearly knew he was courting trouble when he published "The Queen Mother's table-talk" in the weekly Spectator magazine two weeks ago "It is probably the grossest im-propriety to embarrass her, or-her host, by repeating our conversation," he wrote.

"I do so, however, without very much compunction, since she never gives 'interviews,' and I can think of no better person than Queen Elizabeth with whom to start off an occasional series of conversations with men and women who have lived through most of the years of this century and whose memories stretch back far.

In the conversation, reproduced in dialogue form, the mother of Queen Elizabeth II and widow of King George VI was said to have revealed a fondness for detective stories, and a problem with her cash flow glehold on Managua but demanded that the government of President Violeta Barrios de Chamorro reopen talks within hours.

There was no specific answer from the 10-week-old government, although it did indicate a willingness to negotiate a settlement.

There were signs of continued discord, meanwhile, in the fragile and fractious 14-party coalition that brought Chamorro to power.

The strikers say they want an end to what they call mass firings of public employees by the Chamorro government and also seek a voice in government economic policy. They won 100 percent pay rises in a strike in Chamorro's U.S.-backed government has declared the strikes illegal, saying they are inspired by political instead of economic issues. The government suspended talks over the weekend.

A statement issued by the Sandicity came down. The gunfire that had crackled across the capital which controls most of the striking unions, urged strikers "to create conditions favoring the start of talks, allowing the circulation of people and transport in areas where the Sandinista police demand it."
It said, "In agreement with what

The statement, read on pro-Sandinista Radio Ya, proposed that the negotiations begin at 3 p.m.
It did not say what strikers would do if talks are not held.

The strikers' statement followed one a day earlier from Chamorro, who said Central American presidents had asked that violence be ended "to create a climate of calm to permit a negotiated solution.

Information Secretary Danilo Lacayo said Chamorro thanked the Central American presidents who offered their support on Tuesday and told them she believes the problems should be resolved among Nicaraguans.

Guatemalan President Vinicio Cerezo, who was visiting Honduras, said he thought Chamorro could

L. William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit this year's congressional races. Insurance Corp., said his agency was investigating whether to file suit against the officers of 1,300 failed thrifts and banks and has already filed suit against officials of 500 institutions.

Approximately $100 million was recovered last year and more than $200 million in the first half of this year,

'That is in excess of $1 million per day in recoveries" in 1990, he said.

President Bush's son, Neil, could be among the defendants in a suit. He served as a director of Silverado Banking, Savings and Loan Association, Denver, which collapsed in December 1988 at an estimated cost to taxpayers of $1 billion.

• The Senate approved a broad crime bill that stiffens prison terms for savings and loan fraud and offers rewards to whistleblowers for turning in S&L looters.

In other savings and loan developments:
 • Seidman and Timothy Ryan, director of the Office of Thrift Supervision, both promised to treat Neil Bush's case no differently than any other S&L case before them. In Houston, President Bush repeated his promise not to interfere with regulators and said he has had to "calm down" his other sons who want to "go to the barricades" on Neil's behalf.

• Documents released by the Office of Thrift Supervision show that regulators believed Neil Bush was "unqualified and untrained" for his position as director of Silverado. "Certainly he had no experience in manag-
