SWC Football: Texas Tech

New Red Raiders' offense faces tough opener at No. 17 Ohio State

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech football coach Spike Dykes knows the Red Raiders' offense has plenty of growing up to do and not much time to do it.

Tech, which opens Sept. 8 at Ohio State, faces a brutal early-season schedule while attempting to replace nine starters on offense.

The only offensive starters returning from last year's 9-3 team are junior quarterback Jamie Gill and senior flanker Anthony Manyweather.

After facing Ohio State in a nationally televised game, Tech returns home to play formidable Houston only five days later in the Red Raiders' first-ever Thursday night contest.

"We'd better peak about Sept. 13," Dykes told members of the Southwest Conference press tour Friday. "We can't wait till November to be a good team or we'll be about 2-9."

The Red Raiders also face traditional conference rivals Baylor, Texas A&M and Arkansas in the first half of the season. Not counting Rice, five of Tech's first six opponents had a combined 40-18 record a year ago.

"We've got an athletic director's schedule or an alumni's schedule. It's certainly not a coach's schedule," Dykes said.

Gill, who rallied Tech to late victories against Oklahoma State, Texas and Texas A&M last season, has shed 15 pounds since spring practice and reported back to school weighing 213.

"When he got back this fall, he had 69 (a lineman's jersey) hanging in his locker," Dykes quipped. "I think he got the hint. He's too slow for a pulling guard."

Texas Tech hopes to start of the 1990 season with a positive win.

Junior guard Jason Duvall, senior center Brent Barton and senior tackle Bill DuBose are the leaders of a rebuilt offensive line, but sophomore tackle Charlie Biggers, 6-4 and 277 pounds, has been impressive after losing more than 20 pounds since last season.

"We feel pretty good. We just don't have any experience there," Dykes said. "But it doesn't have to take 10 weeks for them to get pretty good together."

The Raiders are counting on junior Anthony Lynn to replace celebrated I-back James Gray, who ran for 4,066 yards in his career and set SWC career records for points (312) and touchdowns (52).

Lynn, 6-3 and 220 pounds, rushed for 568 yards as Gray's backup last year.

The bright side for Dykes is that the team has back eight of 11 starters on defense, including its full complement of linebackers and defensive backs.

"I think the defense is going to have to carry the weight early. We're going to have to bear down and play good defense early," Dykes said. "But we should. We have good people there."

The fourth-year Tech coach indicated he was pleasantly surprised by the rapid development of his freshman class.

Dykes said the following players could see time on the field this season: Round Rock tight end Scott Aylor, League City Clear Creek center Scott Fitzgerald, Grand Prairie I-back Donald Marshall, Odessa Permian wide receiver Lloyd Hill, Stamford tight end Eddie Hall and Electra defensive tackle Stephen Gaines.

"We didn't recruit anybody we didn't think could play, but they're coming on a little faster and a little better than we thought," Dykes said.

Cowboys start Smith in hope of resurrecting running game

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys cut defensive tackle Jon Carter on Tuesday to get to their 60-player limit and coach Jimmy Johnson announced he would start Timmy Smith at running back for Saturday's preseason game against the Houston Oilers.

Carter is a second-year player from Pittsburgh who was picked as a free agent in 1989. Dallas has to get down to 47 players next Monday.

The Cowboys' running game has been almost non-existent in the first three exhibition games as Johnson has alternated Smith, Terrence Flagler, and Lorenzo Hampton.

Negotiations continue with free round draft choice Emmitt Smith, who has enrolled at the University of Florida for the fall semester.

"I want to give Timmy more work and see what he can do," Johnson said. "It's obvious our running back really haven't had a lot of opportunity the way we are blocking. I would like to look at Smith over an extended period."

Johnson said he was optimistic that Emmitt Smith would be in camp before the regular season starts Sept. 9.

"I have no particular reason to be optimistic but I just have a feeling Emmitt wants to be here," Johnson said.

Owner Jerry Jones seconded Johnson's thoughts, saying "I don't think Jimmy is being overly optimistic."

Asked if he had heard about Smith helping arrest two thieves in Florida, Johnson quipped "It's a good person, a law-abiding citizen and we want law abiders with our team."

The Cowboys have only averaged three yards per rush and that includes some long scrambles by quarterback Troy Aikman.

Johnson said he would use Smith in Houston game as an opportunity to look at four or five players on the bubble before the next cut of players is made.

"Our starters will not play more than a half," Johnson said. "We're going to hold (fullback) Darrell Johnston out because of an injury and probably won't play guard Crawford Ker."

Johnson said the Dallas offense needs to start clicking.

"Obviously we're not a great offensive team at this stage," he said.

Johnson said the signing of rookie wide receiver Alexander Wright will help the offense.

"He's a great talent," Johnson said. "He has great speed and the surprising strength. He can bench press 360 pounds. That says something."

Dallas, 1-2, will host the winter Oilers at 8 p.m. Saturday at Texas Stadium in their annual Texas professional championship game.

Father-son duo likely in Seattle

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — First, son followed father into the major leagues. Now Ken Griffey Sr. and his son, Ken Jr., could become the first father-son combination on the same major-league team.

The Cincinnati Reds placed the elder Griffey on waivers Friday, making him eligible to play for another team this season. And that team could be the Seattle Mariners.

"We have an interest and we're looking into the possibility," said Woody Woodward, the Mariners' vice president for baseball operations, who attended Friday night's game between the Mariners and Royals in Kansas City.

Woodward said because the waiver would not be effective for three business days, he had no other comment.

"He's still the property of the Reds," said Dave Aust, Mariners director of public relations. "I don't see us doing anything before September first, if we do."

Ken Griffey Jr., who suffered a slight hyperextension to his knee in Friday night's loss to the Kansas City Royals, had no comment about his father.

The Griffey family became the first father-son combination to play in the major.

Edberg falls, McEnroe struggles in U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Stefan Edberg, a victim of tennis burnout after a summer fling in the No. 1 spot, succumbed to his U.S. Open jinx and the rocketing returns of a young Soviet star.

Alexander Volkov, the Kaliningrad Kid, wielded a bright red racket under a brilliant sun and methodically took apart a surprisingly slow Edberg, 6-3, 7-6 (7-3), 6-2, Tuesday in the first opening-round defeat of a top-seeded man here in 19 years.

John McEnroe, who burned out on tennis several years ago and has been struggling to come back ever since, survived pressure and tamed his temper to beat Javier Sanchez 7-6 (10-8), 7-6 (7-3), 6-4 in two hours, 42 minutes of high drama on the stadium court.

McEnroe's bizarre countenance — his eyes glowed through a mask of white sunscreen beneath a broad pink bandana — was outdone only by the strange ensemble of neon lime, black and white worn by Andre Agassi, a 6-4, 6-2, 6-2 winner in the evening against Grant Connell.

Agassi, who completed his rakish look with a dangling earring, scraggly beard and white bandana around long, black and blond hair, put on a show of power tennis in one of his best efforts since reaching the French finals.

Jennifer Capriati, 14, fashionably dressed by her multimillion-dollar sponsors, saved a set-point in the first set and won her Open debut as a pro, 7-5, 7-5, against a very tough 15-year-old, Anke Huber.

Capriati, astonishingly cool and strong for her age, won the first two games at love and took a 4-0 lead before Huber stormed back to win the next five games. But Capriati dug in and Huber yielded, losing a set-point in the 10th game and double-faulting on set point in the 12th.

Capriati, who won the juniors here last year, had similar problems holding a lead in the second set. She jumped ahead 5-2, powering deep groundstrokes against the moonballs of Huber, but let the lead slip away as Huber tied it 5-5 with a crafty mixture of shots. Again facing trouble, Capriati bore down, held serve, then broke Huber with another hard forehand that Huber lunged at but could only tap backhand into the net.

Ivan Lendl, aiming to regain the top ranking that Edberg took away Aug. 13, five weeks after winning Wimbledon, easily won his first-round match and said he wasn't totally surprised by Edberg's defeat.

"Of course it's an upset, but when you think about it deeply you can see how it happened," Lendl said after beating Martin Laurendeau, 7-5, 6-2, 6-2.
