Los Folkloristas flood Rudder with music

Los Folkloristas, a Latin American group, brought more than 100 instruments to Rudder Theater for a musical performance Sunday afternoon. Sponsored by the MSC's Committee for the Awareness of Mexican-American Culture, the seven-member group of singers and musicians, who refers to its collection as a "valuable cultural heritage and most cherished tool," has mastered a variety of musical styles. Their instruments, along with their music, have been obtained through first-hand studies in the countries of Latin America. Group members spent countless hours with village elders and regional masters of local styles to capture the historical music. Photo by Jay Janner

Players' efforts pay off 'Best-kept secret on campus' surprises skeptic

By CAROL GLENN

The Theatre Arts Department at Texas A&M University would like to say thanks to Lincoln Savings and Loan, Shell Oil Company, Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Governor Bill Clements, President Bush, the United States Congress, TAMU Parking Services, Sadam Hussein, Gulf States Utilities, and many others. Without these people, there would be a decrease in inflation and hence no need for their production of "Non Si Paga! Non Si Paga!" (We Won't Pay! We Won't Pay!). "Non Si Paga! Non Si Paga!" is a political farce written by Dario Fo (with an American Version by R.G. Davis and the Company), directed by Mary Ellen Brennan and Michael L. Greenwald, and brought vividly to life by an A&M group of talented theater arts students. The play begins with Fulvio Bardi (Jonathan Burke) explaining the turmoil a depression is having on the people in Italy. Inflation has hit the grocery stores, the labor unions are fed-up with their low wages and the citizens are basically unhappy with the communist party. The citizens revolt and seek revenge by stealing groceries and threatening labor union strikes. They refuse to continue being the victims of the depression. The setting is Milano, Italy, at the home of Giovanni (Al Alford) and Antonia (Christie Vela-O'Connor). The action begins with a dispute between Antonia and her friend Margherita (Lanell Pena) over groceries that Antonia has stolen from the local market. At first Margherita refuses to help Antonia hide the goods, but she gives in after some persuasion. Antonia fears Giovanni will find the stolen groceries and scold her severely. Giovanni is a proud man and would never steal food or eat stolen food. As the play unfolds inflation and the depression begin to erode

(Top) Luigi (John Flores) ponders the scene before him as Antonia (Christi Vela-O'Connor) and Margherita (Lanell Pena) fumble with the stolen groceries. (Above) Margherita listens as Antonia pleads her case. I must admit that I'm as entertained-bigoted as they come, since I had never been to an Aggie Players production in the four years I've been here. I had no idea what I was missing. The Aggie Players are probably one of the best-kept secrets on campus. It's obvious that everyone involved in this production put an immense amount of effort into making this a truly memorable performance. "Non Si Paga! Non Si Paga!" continues Tuesday through Saturday at 8 p.m. with a 2 p.m. matinee on Saturday in the Fallout Theater (Room 144 Blocker). Tickets are $5 for the general public and $4 for students. For ticket information call 845-1294
