Developer plans to build toll road across 5 counties

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A developer is rolling along with plans to icle in June that they believe more build a toll road to Laredo using a than $100,000 is missing from the little-known 1913 law. But some local officials may put a roadblock in his way.

The high-speed corridor Ralph Durden envisions would cross five South Texas counties: Nueces, Duval, Jim Wells, Webb and Kleberg, including a portion of the King Ranch, one of the world's largest operating cattle and horse ranches.

Durden, who said he had given up on waiting for state and federal officials to show interest in the proposal, derives his company's authority from the little-known law.

Jimmy Delao, an attorney in the Texas Secretary of State's office in Austin, said the law allows a private venture, such as Durden's, to build, operate and maintain a toll road. It also allows a private venture to condemn property along the 200-mile stretch through eminent domain procedures.

But Tio Kleberg, vice president of agribusiness for the King Ranch, said he would adamantly oppose attempts to condemn ranch property for the corridor. Kleberg said it would be more logical for the state to improve the existing link between Corpus Christi and Laredo — U.S. Highway 59 and State Highway 44.

'This doesn't make sense when you've got a perfectly good highway that already exists," Kleberg said. Durden on Sept. 5 filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state's office for the purpose of building a rail and highway corridor that would connect Corpus Christi to the burgeoning industrial activity in Northern Mexico, Delao said.

Durden named the company Camino Falcon Inc., the working name for his corridor concept.

Along with former partner Joe Fulton, Durden built major bayfront developments including One Shore-line Plaza and the Wyndham Corpus Christi Hotel.

He acknowledged Monday that he had formed the corporation but declined to discuss the details of his toll-road proposal. Durden said he would hold a news conference when he is ready to reveal the specifics of his proposal.

Alleged misconduct leads to investigation

HEMPSTEAD (AP) — Indictments alleging financial wrongdoing by officials of Prairie View A&M University are only first among several arrests and charges to come, authorities say Special prosecutor A.M. "Buddy" McCaig Jr. says the indictments allege misconduct by current and for-mer university officials, including some at the top.

Investigators refused to identify those named in the six indictments until they are arrested. They are accused of misconduct in the filing and payment of athletic department travel vouchers. Authorities estimated it would take up to 10 days to arrest those indicted, who include "high-ranking officials" at the university. The Texas Rangers started investigating Jan. 24 following an internal audit of the athletic department and a meeting of law officers and the general counsel of the Texas A&M University System.

Officials told the Houston Chronathletic department.

Harris County grand jury is looking at allegations including financial misconduct in the athletic director's office; misconduct in filing or payment of athletic department travel vouchers; and misconduct in the awarding of grades and scholarships to athletes at Prairie View.

Some allegations involve poor management in which the suspects did not profit personally, the special ton's been cleaning house.'

possible fraud, deceit and personal profit, McCaig said.

"In my opinion, it was — from the top down — failure to enforce existing policies or to implement ad-equate policies," he said. "Any time you take two Texas Rangers and devote them to one case for nine months, you've got a major prob-
