Schools trade ideas at SFA

Texas A&M's Residence Hall Association members will "set up house" in Nacogdoches for a weekend in November while attending a university Residence Hall Conference.

Jean Laird, A&M student and RHA national communication coordinator, will represent A&M during the South West Affiliate of College and University Residence Hall conference at Stephen F. Austin University.

"Basically, the SWACURH conference keeps the schools in touch where they can discuss and exchange ideas," Laird says.

Universities from Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma also will attend the conference.

Laird says several different universities have contacted A&M to ask how a conservative school passed a 24-hour visitation proposal and will seek information from A&M about the policy at the conference.

Laird says RHA wants more student involvement. If more members become involved, RHA could better serve A&M residents, she says.

Laird presently is trying to find out the conference dates, which fall on school days. The absences will be University excused.

A deadline will be set for those interested in attending, but there is no limit on how many students go.

Conference registration will be in the A2 lounge between Hughes and Moses halls on the north side of campus.

For further information, call the RHA office at 845-3051.

Act Now

The Crime Prevention Unit of Texas A&M's University Police Department wants students, faculty and staff to know you are a driver when you ride your bike in traffic.

- Learn and obey these bicycle laws:
 - Obey all traffic signs and signals.
 - Warn other traffic by using hand signals when stopping or turning.
 - Always ride as near to the right side of the road as possible and in the same direction as motor vehicles.
 - Be careful when passing parked vehicles or vehicles traveling in the same direction.
 - Not more than two bicycles should be driven side by side.
 - Ride only upon the bicycle's regular seat.
- Do not carry packages that will prevent keeping at least one hand on handlebars.
- State law requires every bicycle have working brakes. When used at night, bikes must have white lights on the front and a red tail light which can be seen at 500 feet. Bikes also must have a red reflector visible for 300 feet.
- Breaking any state bike or traffic law could lead to a citation with fines amounting to $217.50.
- Register your bike with either UPD, the Department of Parking, Transit and Traffic Services, or the College Station or Bryan police departments.
- Record your bike's serial number, and secure it with a case-hardened steel lock.
