Rangers, Dallas agree on $165 million park

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers announced Wednesday it had reached an agreement to build a new ballpark in the city, ending speculation that the team would move to downtown Dallas.

The team and city agreed on a $165 million project that will keep the American League club here for at least the next 40 years.

The team unveiled the model for a new open-air ballpark, to be constructed near the current Arlington Stadium, at an afternoon news conference.

The city must pass a one-half cent sales tax issue on Jan. 12 for construction to begin.

The Rangers had hoped to begin play in a new stadium by summer 1993, but team spokesman Tom Schieffer said, "It would more probably be on opening day of 1994."

The stadium, which would have natural grass and be built on what is now a parking lot about one-quarter mile southeast of the current Arlington Stadium, would seat approximately 45,000 to 50,000 fans.

The agreement breaks down like this:

—The city would create a financing authority that would issue up to $135 million worth of 30-year bonds.

—The Rangers agreed to rent and maintain the facility for about $5 million a year.

—The Rangers would agree to raise as much as $30 million through the lease of luxury boxes and seat options.

Once the debt is retired, the Rangers would have the option to buy the complex for $60 million provided they agree to remain in Arlington for an additional 10 years.

The Rangers will donate 75 acres for the new ballpark, with 7.5 acres coming from the city and the stadium authority acquiring the remaining 95 acres.

Schieffer said the project includes a road called "Nolan Ryan Expressway."

The stadium would be an open-air design for baseball only, and plans call for a park to be built along with a Little League field that would be an exact replica of the new stadium.

"Of course, we have the dream that some day a kid who plays in the Little League park will play in the World Series in Arlington Stadium."

The team moved to Arlington for the 1972 season from Washington, D.C.

ChiSox's Torborg named manager of year by AP

CHICAGO (AP) — Jeff Torborg has a hard act to follow and he knows it.

But Torborg, named baseball's Manager of the Year by The Associated Press on Wednesday because of the success of his Chicago White Sox, is ready to take on the challenge.

Torborg took a team that finished last in 1989 with a 69-92 record and led the White Sox to a 94-68 mark, second best in the American League and third best in the majors.

"Personally, this is very pleasing. But it'll be tough to win 94 games again," said Torborg, reached in Sarasota, Fla., where the White Sox are holding their organizational meetings.

Torborg received 75 of the 165 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sportswriters and sportscasters before the start of the playoffs.

Jim Leyland, who led Pittsburgh to the National League East title, finished second with 51 votes. Lou Piniella of the world champion Cincinnati Reds was third with 21 and Oakland's Tony La Russa was fourth with 11. Buck Rodgers of Montreal had 3 and one each went to Tom LaSorda of Los Angeles, Jim LeFebvre of Seattle, John McNamara of Cleveland and Joe Morgan of Boston.

Frank Robinson of Baltimore won the award last year.
