Ad challenged

Volvo pulls 'monster truck' ad after Mattox calls it misleading

AUSTIN (AP) — Volvo Cars of North America pulled an advertisement showing a Volvo withstanding attempts by a "monster truck" to crush it, after Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox challenged the ad as misleading.

"Volvo was touted as a car that you can believe in," Mattox said Monday. "Unfortunately, these ads, you could not believe in them."

William Hoover, senior vice president of Volvo Cars of North America, said the company does not want to mislead the public and emphasized that Volvos are safe.

"We agree that the consumers in the state of Texas, as well as consumers throughout the country, deserve better advertising," he said.

But Hoover added, "The mistake was not with the claim that Volvos are safe cars, because there are numerous independent studies that substantiate that Volvos are in fact among the safest, if not the absolute safest, cars on the road today."

Under an agreed court judgment, Volvo will not make claims about their vehicles that are not proven through evidence; will run corrective newspaper ads in the form of a letter to consumers; and will pay the state $316,250 in investigative costs. Volvo admitted no fault and no legal violations.

In the ad, filmed in Austin in June, a Volvo appears to be the only car left standing after being run over by a large-tire pickup. The ad is a dramatization of a 1988 Vermont event, according to the company.

However, the ad is not billed as a dramatization. And Mattox said the other cars in the ad were weakened structurally, while the Volvos were reinforced with steel or wood.

Hoover said Volvo did not let the cars be modified until told the attorney general. The modifications were made to ensure the safety and to allow the Volvo to withstand the number of runs required by the truck in filming, according to the company.

Some of the shots of the "Foot" running over the Volvo may have been fabricated, Mattox said.

The ad was broadcast nationally and a print ad also was produced.

Keep Judge Terry Means

ON THE TENTH COURT OF APPEALS

"Judge Terry Means is an excellent judge doing an outstanding job on the Texas Court of Appeals. He is as concerned about the victims of crime as he is the rights of the accused. Judge Means believes as I do that judges should interpret the law, not re-write them. I urge you to keep Judge Terry Means on the 10th Court of Appeals." U.S. Senator Phil Gramm

Group wants to end use of NC-17 label

DALLAS (AP) — The movie industry's new adult rating will open the floodgates to movies featuring pornography and excessive violence, say Texans who are determined to topple the NC-17 category.

"Hollywood will now be able to pump celluloid sewage into the country's neighborhood theaters," John Evans of Richardson, Texas, wrote in a letter to the Motion Picture Association of America on Sept. 26, restricts children under 17 from viewing movies with adult themes and replaces the notorious "X" category.

Evans and other opponents of the new rating argue it will enable movies featuring pornography and excessive violence to be advertised more extensively and shown in the multiscreen theaters that many families patronize.

The rating, announced by the Motion Picture Association of America on Sept. 26, restricts children under 17 from viewing movies with adult themes and replaces the notorious "X" category.
