Aggies challenged to give more blood

By JAMES M. LOVE
 Of The Battalion Staff

To bleed or not to bleed, that is the question the Wadley Blood Center is asking Aggies this week.

The Aggie Blood Committee, a cooperation between service fraternities Alpha Phi Omega and Omega Phi Alpha, Student Government and the blood center, is encouraging students to donate blood during this week's drive.

Students can donate today through Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Academic Plaza, Sbsa, and by the Blocker Building; 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Commons Lobby; and 12 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Medical Sciences Library.

Mark Longworth, Aggie Blood Committee chairman, says the group expects to receive about 2,000 pints of blood during the drive.

"Last year, we pulled about 1,900 pints, and that was after many people had just been immunized for the measles and were not allowed to donate," he says. "We're expecting a much bigger turnout this year."

Texas A&M once again has been challenged by the University of Arkansas to see which can get more students to donate blood. A&M has not won the Southwest Conference blood-drive competition in the last five years.

"The University of North Texas collected over 2,700 pints, and we collected only about 1,600," Longworth says. "They have about half the student body we do at A&M, too."

"Last year, we lost to Arkansas by only seven pints of blood. We're doing pretty bad. We can do better than this."

The entire donation process takes about 30 minutes, and the actual draw time is about five minutes. The process includes a mini-physical with cholesterol count, HIV test and hepatitis check.

Donators receive a free T-shirt and coupons from a local restaurant.

Blood collected by the center will be serviced and tested in Dallas. The blood then is distributed to major hospitals in the area.

One pint of blood will help approximately three people after it is separated into red cells, plasma and platelets.

Each unit of blood donated by A&M students earns the Aggie Blood Club a credit, which is guaranteed to be replaced by Wadley if any A&M student or former student needs blood.

The Wadley Blood Center has been coming to A&M since 1959, and has collected more than 62,000 pints of blood from participants at the University.

Restaurant Report

The restaurants listed below were inspected by the Brazos County Health Department from Oct. 29 through Nov. 2. Information is from a food service establishment inspection report.

SCORED BETWEEN 100 AND 95:
Burger Boy at 301 Patricia. Score - 98. Points were deducted for personnel's failure to wear hair restraints and unclean non-food contact surfaces. The inspection was due to a complaint.

Zachry Snack Bar of Texas A&M Department of Food Services. Score - 96.

Points were deducted for unclean non-food contact surfaces, unnecessary articles on premises and unclean wiping cloths. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

Bus Stop Snack Bar of Texas A&M Department of Food Services. Score - 96. Points were deducted for unnecessary articles on premises, improper waste receptacles and improper storage of in-use utensils. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

Pelican's Wharf at 2500 Texas Ave.

Score - 95. Points were deducted for improper storage of in-use utensils and inaccessible toilet and handwashing facilities (major violation). It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

SCORED BETWEEN 94 AND 90:
Pavilion Snack Bar of Texas A&M Department of Food Services. Score - 91. Points were deducted for unclean non-food surfaces, improper food protection, improper storage of in-use utensils, unprotected outer openings and improper construction of non-food surfaces. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

SCORED BETWEEN 89 AND 85:
Pie Are Square of Texas A&M Department of Food Services. Score - 89. Points were deducted for unclean non-food surfaces, improper food protection, improper waste receptacles, unprotected outer openings and presence of vermin (major violation). It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

David Jefferson, a registered sanitarian at the department, said restaurants with scores of 95 or above generally have excellent operations and facilities. He said restaurants with scores in the 70s or low 80s usually have serious violations in the health report.

Scores can be misleading, Jefferson said, because restaurants can get the same score by having several minor violations or a few major violations. He said the minor violations can be corrected during the inspection.
