Officer's daughter outraged

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The daughter of a police officer who was killed during a service station robbery is angered that her killer, sentenced to 2,000 years in prison for the crime, could be released later this month.

Johnny Leroy Harris was assessed the punishment 17 years ago in the death of Patrolman George Jacobs.

Signatures for a petition to keep Harris, who has been imprisoned since 1973, behind bars were gathered Wednesday by Mechelle Jacobs-Hensley, 31.

"The jury sentenced him to 2,000 years, and they didn't mean him to get out in 17," said Jacobs-Hensley, who was 14 when her father was killed.

Her father, then 32, was shot the evening of Jan. 10, 1973. She said the patrolman saw Harris, then 26, running down the street in heavy sweat and offered him a ride in his patrol car to get him out of the weather.

"As my father turned to open the door for him, he shot him at point blank range in the temple," Jacobs-Hensley said.

The daughter said she was at home with her younger brother and her mother, watching television before bed. They learned during a newsbreak that a policeman had been shot, but no name was mentioned.

"My mother started to get dressed," she said. "I asked her what she was doing, and she said my brother and I would have to stay with the neighbors because there was something she was going to have to do."

"A few minutes later, the doorbell rang and it was his sergeant who informed her my father had been shot."

Before he died, Jacobs lingered for four days from the gunshot wound.

A prosecutor told jurors during Harris' trial it would be a "miscarriage of justice" if they rendered punishment of less than 1,000 years in each case. Harris received 200 years on the armed robbery charge.

Jacobs-Hensley said Wednesday she received a call from the parole board a week ago informing her that Harris would be eligible for parole in three weeks.

Woman must remove signs bolstering forces

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Hundreds of signs supporting soldiers in Operation Desert Shield must be removed from two San Antonio suburbs, angering a woman who was told she had violated ordinances.

"If I have to take them down it will be with a scream — the whole city will know I'm taking them down," Lisa Moseley said after she was told Wednesday that signs placed on utility poles in rights-of-way were illegal.

The woman spent two days this week posting the 300 signs to bolster U.S. soldiers in the Persian Gulf. The signs read, "We Support Our Troops."

Moseley, 28, put up the signs Monday and Tuesday after securing permission from officials in Live Oak and Universal City, two incorporated suburbs in northeast San Antonio near Randolph Air Force Base.

Grand jury to investigate UT fraternities for hazing

AUSTIN (AP) — Travis County Attorney Ken Oden has subpoenaed all 29 fraternities at the University of Texas for a grand jury investigation, declaring that hazing is "out of control" among the campus social groups.

The subpoenas issued Wednesday require the president of each fraternity to appear before a grand jury Nov. 26. The summons were delivered the day after Sigma Nu fraternity was suspended by its national organization amid allegations of hazing by its members.

"We have had an incredible number of criminal allegations made against UT fraternities in a very short period of time," Oden said Wednesday.

"There is significant evidence that a number of organizations at the University of Texas at Austin are out of control."

Several attorneys representing fraternities said they might challenge the legality of the subpoenas, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

"I think it's a fishing expedition," Betty Blackwell, who represents Kappa Sigma, said. "I don't think they have probable cause."

The subpoenas demand the names, addresses and phone numbers of all members and pledges, and recent photographs of any who are not pictured in the UT yearbook. They also call for any records of internal investigations by the fraternities of allegations of misconduct since January 1988.

UT President William Cunningham would not comment on the Sigma Nu suspension, but said, "I want there to be no doubt in anyone's mind about the university's absolute opposition to the reprehensible and disgusting behavior known as hazing. Such behavior is totally unacceptable to this institution and to me personally."

Oden began investigating the hazing allegations more than two months ago. He said he is investigating more than a dozen allegations.

Among them are an attack on a fraternity member who was blindfolded, bound and gagged behind a fraternity house; and an assault on an inactive fraternity member who said three men held him down and slashed "S" and "X" on his face.

The Sigma Nu incident is the latest to come to light. National fraternity officials Tuesday suspended Sigma Nu's campus charter and removed local fraternity officers.

The actions were taken hours after the parent of a Sigma Nu pledge said her son and other pledges had been beaten and subjected to other forms of hazing by several fraternity members, said Sharon Justice, assistant vice president for student affairs and dean of students at the university.

Restaurant Report

The restaurants listed below were inspected by the Brazos County Health Department between Nov. 5 and 11. Information is from a food service establishment inspection report.

SCORED BETWEEN 95 AND 100:

Ag Cafe of Texas A&M Department of Food Services. Score — 98. Points were deducted for unnecessary articles on premises. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

SCORED BETWEEN 90 AND 94:

Veterinary Snack Bar of Texas A&M Department of Food Services. Score — 92. Points were deducted for unnecessary articles on premises, improper plumbing maintenance and inaccessible toilet and handwashing facilities (major violation). It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

Sweet Temptations at 404 University Dr. Score — 92. Points were deducted for unprotected outer openings and personnel's failure to wear hair restraints. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

Airport Snack Bar of Texas A&M Department of Food Services. Score — 90. Points were deducted for unclean non-food contact surfaces, improper storage of in-use utensils and unclean food contact surfaces. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

Schlotsky's at 2501 Texas Ave. Score — 90. Points were deducted for unclean non-food contact surfaces, unnecessary articles on premises, improper plumbing maintenance and unclean food contact surfaces. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

SCORED BETWEEN 85 AND 89:

Wofford Cain Hall of Texas A&M Athletic Department. Score — 85. Points were deducted for improper plumbing maintenance, improper storage of in-use utensils and improper storage of toxic materials (major violation). It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

David Jefferson, a registered sanitarian at the department, said restaurants with scores of 95 or above generally have excellent operations and facilities. He said restaurants with scores in the 70s or low 80s usually have serious violations in the health report.

Scores can be misleading, Jefferson said, because restaurants can get the same score by having several minor violations or a few major violations. He said the minor violations can be corrected during the inspection. Point deductions or violations in the report range from one point (minor violations) to five points (major violations).

Jefferson said the department might close a restaurant if the score is below 60, the personnel have infectious diseases, the restaurant lacks adequate refrigeration, there is a sewage backup in the building or the restaurant has a complete lack of sanitization for the food equipment.

The department inspects each restaurant every six months. Jefferson said a follow-up inspection sometimes is required if a restaurant has a four- or five-point violation that cannot be corrected during the inspection, or if there are numerous small violations.
