

Owls take Ags 4-2 in mixed doubles play

The Texas A&M men's and women's tennis teams lost a close one in a mixed doubles match with the Rice Owls, 4-2.

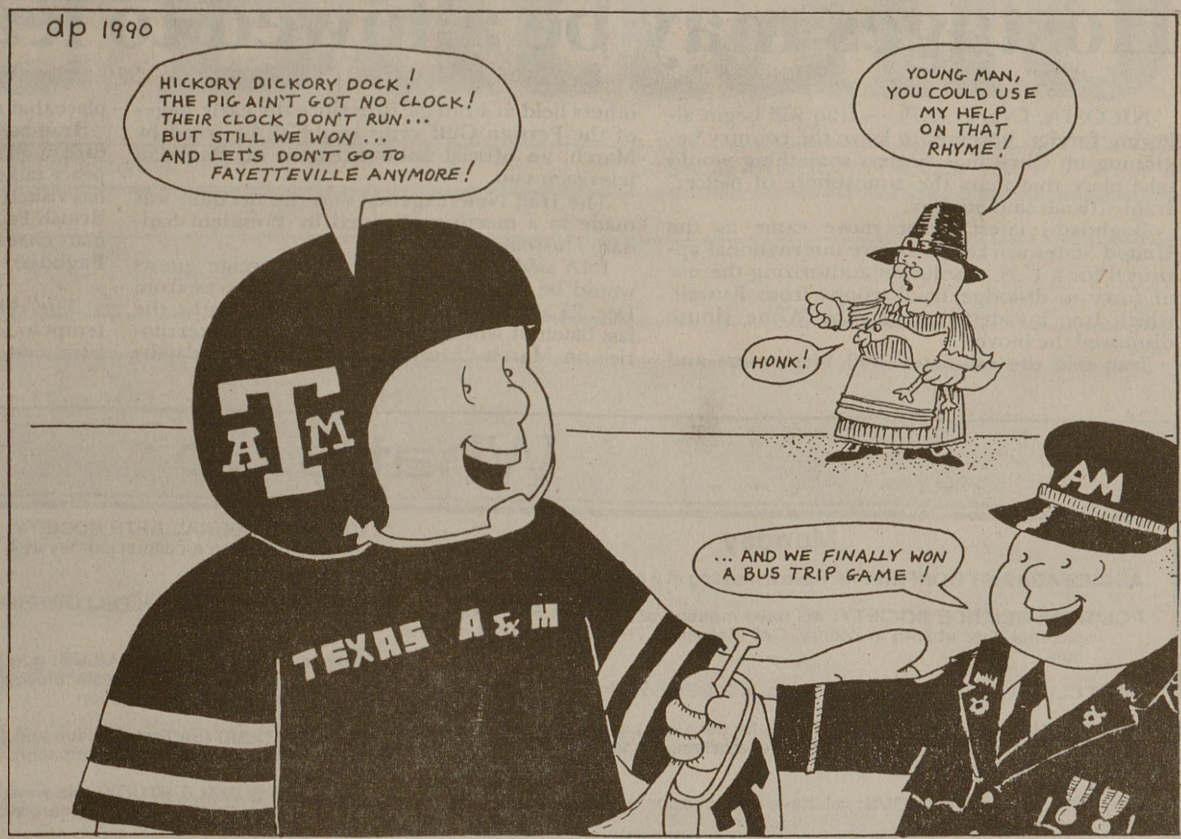

The two A&M victories were in the No. 1 and No. 2 teams.

In No. 1 doubles, A&M's Janine Burton-Durham and Steve Kennedy defeated Katy Nederveld and Steve Camp of Rice, 6-4, 6-3.

Cindy Churchwell and Doug Brown beat R. Mack and Ryan Gately in No. 2 doubles play, 6-3, 6-2.

"Rice played extremely well in the last match, which decided the close contest," said A&M men's head coach David Kent.

In the final match, Rice led A&M, 3-2, and an Aggie victory would have caused a 3-3 tie. A&M's Joanne Maki and Adam King took the first set of their match with Rice's B. Nederveld and R. Riojas, 5-7, but lost the next two, 6-3, 6-3.

Jenkins defends UH Oilers lopsided 84-21 win

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston coach John Jenkins has heard the complaints before — the 12th ranked Cougars get an opponent down and then run up the score.

Southern Methodist coach Forrest Gregg complained bitterly after last year's 95-21 loss to the Cougars.

Jenkins heard the complaints again Saturday when he left David Klingler, the nation's total offense leader, in the game until the final 8:24, allowing Klingler to complete an NCAA record 11 touchdown passes and tie the record of 47 touchdown passes in a season, en route to an 84-21 victory over Eastern Washington.

Jenkins said he just wanted his "pitcher" to get his work.

"Nolan Ryan takes so many throws in a ball game and a quarterback needs to have so many plays a game," Jenkins said. "It was just a normal Cougar game. With the week off and all the distractions of going to Japan and the holidays, I wanted to get him his plays."

The Cougars (9-1) close out their season Dec. 1 against Arizona State in Tokyo but Eastern Washington coach Dick Zornes didn't get a holiday feeling from the beating his Division I-AA Eagles took.

"He just might be building up a repertoire of people who want to get back at him," Zornes said. "I might not be one of them but I encourage everyone else to do it."

Eastern Washington accepted the Houston matchup for economic reasons, after being assured $175,000 from the game. Houston had scheduled the game after Temple discontinued the series, leaving the Cougars with an open date no one else wanted.

Klingler threw touchdown passes on Houston's first six drives of the game en route to a 42-14 halftime lead.

"This is a true run-and-shoot," Cleveland safety Felix Wright said. "He doesn't hold the ball long, and if he does, he usually gets crunched."

Moon threw first-half touchdown passes of 3 yards to Lorenzo White and 46 yards to Haywood Jeffries.

Duncan, working mostly against Adams, caught seven passes for a career-high 130 yards.

Cleveland (2-8) lost for the fifth straight time overall and matched a team record with its fourth consecutive home loss. It was the head coaching debut of Jim Shofner, elevated from offensive coordinator to replace the fired Bud Carson on Nov. 5.

"We missed our two starting corners," said Shofner, referring to Minnifield and Mark Harper, who has been out since dislocating his shoulder during the preseason. "It's tough to go against a team like that. I thought we gave it a good go."

Houston (5-5) ended a two-game losing streak during which the Oilers' high-powered offense had managed a total of 25 points.

"We came into the game knowing we wanted to go deeper," Moon said. "We wanted to get some big plays, rather than dinking the ball downfield like we had been."

The Browns took advantage of Houston turnovers for two first-half touchdowns. Kosar hit Ozzie Newsome with a 13-yard touchdown pass less than two minutes into the game after Houston's Bernard Ford fumbled away the opening kickoff. Derrick Gainer then scored his first career touchdown on a 1-yard run following Moon's fumble on a sack.

ending with a 10-yard quarterback keeper. Fullback E.D. Jackson powered ahead for two runs of 15 and 31 yards, bringing the down-and-out Hogs to within reach, 13-10.

Wilson took control of the ball in the next A&M drive, and added 47 yards to an 82-yard offensive front. Richardson kept on a third-and-three from the 10 and ran right for the score. Talbot's extra point put the Aggies ahead, 20-10.

The Razorbacks threatened again in the fourth quarter with a first down at the A&M 11. But the Aggie defense held tight, allowing just an eight-yard gain and put Arkansas in a fourth-and-two situation at the three-yard line. Grovey went to the air, but safety Larry Horton broke up the pass in the endzone.

A&M took over possession, but the Razorbacks recovered a Robert Wilson fumble on first down. The Razorbacks scored in four plays, and chose to go for a two-point conversion. Grovey escaped from the grasp of linebacker Anthony Williams and threw into the endzone only to have the pass broken up again by Horton.

Arkansas' last hope was an onside kick. Aggie cornerback Kevin Smith caught the ball and fell on it, ending the Razorbacks' hopes for their first SWC win in 1990.

"We didn't play well enough to win," Arkansas first-year head coach Jack Crowe said. "Our young players played well. We did some things right that are indicative of a good football team."

with continuity," Aikman said of the Rams.

While the Cowboys' offense moved the ball well, linebacker Ken Norton came up with the key play of the game. Los Angeles had a second-and-goal at the Dallas 6 when Norton hit Cleveland Gary, forced a fumble and fell on the ball at the 5.

Aikman then drove the Cowboys down the field for Willis' deciding field goal.

"What's happening to us is nightmarish," said Rams coach John Robinson, whose team was touted in the preseason as a strong contender for a Super Bowl berth. "It's very disappointing to all of us and very painful."

Hoops

"The second half was the best we've played so far as a team. I knew we could play better. Defensively, we really stepped it up in the second half."

Davis said he was pleased how Lynn Suber responded in the second half. The senior finished the first half with four points, one assist and no steals.

"I jumped him (Lynn) hard at halftime and he responded very well and that's what your senior's supposed to do," Davis said. "We spend a lot of time talking about guys responding to constructive criticism and he did really well."

Suber finished the game with eight points, six assists and four steals.

Shedrick Anderson had 12 points and 11 rebounds, Rashone Lewis was the leading rebounder with 12 and chipped in 14 points, Issac Brown got 16 points in just 22 minutes. All are junior college transfers.

Chuck Henderson started the game as the Sixth Man representative and with the Aggies' last start, he played the first 4:05 of the game.

A&M won both of its exhibition games (beating St. Petersburg AAU 104-67 Nov. 10) and will begin the regular season Friday and Saturday at the Bearcat Classic in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Cincinnati, Kent State and Sam Houston State are scheduled to play.

The Aggies' home opener is Nov. 28 against Oklahoma. Tipoff is 7:30 p.m.
