Texas officials debate installation of fast rails

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas could become an international transportation leader if it builds a proposed high-speed railroad, the head of the Federal Railroad Administration said Tuesday.

The train system being considered by the Texas High Speed Rail Authority "may become a real world leader ... for the United States," said Federal Railroad Administrator Gilbert E. Carmichael.

Carmichael likened a 200-mile-per-hour train line linking the state's major cities to the first stretch of turnpike built by Pennsylvania, which eventually became the current interstate highway system.

"This nation is watching Texas," he said. "You're one of the leading states ... Where Texas goes and California goes and Florida goes, the rest of us tend to go."

Two groups are vying to build a Texas rail system that officials said is to be constructed with private funds. High Speed Rail Authority Chairman Charles Wylly said Tuesday that final proposals for the project must be submitted by Jan. 16, 1991. The panel hopes to choose a winner by mid-May.

"We're moving along on a pre-final track" toward awarding the franchise, Wylly said.

High-speed trains currently operate in Japan and Europe. Although the final proposals aren't complete, officials have said that construction of such a system in Texas could carry passengers from Dallas to Houston in about 90 minutes.

In the bidding are two groups which utilize European technology.

One group includes a French train manufacturer and the Morrison Knudsen Corp., a Boise, Idaho, construction company. The second consortium includes the German industrial giant, Siemens AG, and three Texas construction companies.

Last summer, former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, a member of the French-based group, said an initial Houston-Dallas line would cost about $2.2 billion and take about five years to build.

Hit and run kills officer; suspect jailed

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston man who told police where to find a car involved in the hit-and-run slaying of a police officer was arrested Tuesday.

William E. Byrd, 51, was charged with failing to stop and render aid to the death of Officer John Salvaggio. He was being held at the Harris County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bond until an arraignment set for Wednesday morning.

Salvaggio, 39, was struck by a car Sunday on Interstate 10 as he prepared to write a speeding ticket to a motorist.

Police spokesman Dan Turner said authorities are considering additional charges against Byrd, but must find evidence placing Byrd behind the wheel of the car at the time of the accident.

Byrd, accompanied by his lawyer, walked into the Houston Police Department's downtown station Monday and told officers where the car would be found. The car was found in a parking lot at an apartment complex three miles from where Salvaggio was killed.

The attorneys, who spoke directly with the officers, would not say who owned the car. But after the car was towed by police, it was determined to be registered to Byrd.

Salvaggio, a father of three and a seven-year police force veteran, died moments after he was struck about 2:10 a.m. Sunday. He had been making holiday speeders on the westbound lanes with his radar when he pulled over a 23-year-old man driving a blue Honda CRX.
