"I told our team at the end of game if you make your free throws and it's a different game," Davis said. "Not just Rashone's (Lewis) to be but the whole game. If we just shoot 70-75 percent, then we have a chance to win the game for sure today."

The disappointment of losing a fifth straight conference game and seventh of the last eight outings, overshadowed the performance of Anderson.

The junior college transfer from Metairie, La., broke out with his best offensive performance of the season, scoring 26 points.

Anderson, a 6-8, 250 pound center, also grabbed eight rebounds while sinking 11 of 13 shots. The most amazing thing about Anderson's play was that in a game where a total of 55 fouls were called, he played the last 13:11 of the second half with four fouls.

Anderson said he feels much more at ease on the court.

"I feel much more comfortable on the court and I think I'm playing up to my potential," Anderson said. "I just have to keep working hard every day in practice."

Anderson added that the team will have to keep on improving and stay together.

"After the win against Centenary we were really pumped up, but unfortunately we came up a little short," he said. "We won't hold our heads down. We will keep working hard and hope for the best."

Davis said Anderson played exceptionally well and that he was proud of his improvement.

"Shedrick played very smart with four fouls," Davis said. "He was the best player on the floor today inside. Shedrick is really starting to run the floor and his conditioning has gotten better. He's going to continue to get better."

Anderson fouled out with five seconds remaining, but the play that probably hurt the most was when guard Brooks Thompson fouled out with 7:07 remaining in the game.

With Thompson out, the Aggies were minus one of their most potent three-point shooters, forcing Freddie Ricks to try and fill his shoes late in the game. Thompson was three of four from three-point range before fouling out and Ricks never could find the mark as he was zero for five.

Senior captain Lynn Suber did not play in the first half for disciplinary reasons because he was late for the pre-game meal.

Suber was one of the four who were late for the pre-game meal last weekend for the Southern Methodist game.

Davis said he was disappointed that his senior captain would skirt the rules.

But hold Montana, the best quarterback in history, in check a second time?

Giants' defensive lineman Leonard Marshall more than held Montana in check, he pounded Joe into the Candlestick turf.

With the 49ers leading 13-6, early in the fourth quarter, Montana rolled right out of a collapsing pocket and looked downfield to find his receivers blanketed by the Giant secondary. He pulled and started to pass, but was blind-sided by Marshall as the ball squirted free.

It was ruled an incomplete pass rather than a fumble, but the damage was done. Montana, suffering from a bruised sternum, left the game and the 49ers' will to win seemed to go with him.

After the Giants drove for another field goal, the stage was set.

Up by only a point, substitute quarterback Steve Young drove his team to the Giant 43 yardline. And then disaster struck.

Craig fumbled into the arms of Lawrence Taylor, who proved all day that he is again ready to be a dominant force in the NFL.

It was over at that point. The 49ers knew it. The fans knew it. The Giants, who needed only cover 33 yards to get into Bahr's range, knew it.

Bahr casually toed the field goal from 41 yards away, and the 49ers' dream of a threepoint was over.

With it goes the San Francisco dynasty. So what happens now?

The 49ers will fly off into the sunset (literally and figuratively) and try to rebuild their dynasty.

DeBartolo — who had already reserved office space in Tampa for the Super Bowl — will be the key to the 49ers' future. He held the team together in good times by doling out generous bonuses to his players treating them like kings.

But how will he react now that their Super Bowl string is snapped? If DeBartolo retools the 49er machine, he'll be making a big mistake. This team doesn't need wholesale changes.

They were a fumble away from the Super Bowl, and are still a great team. Changes can only hurt them.

Can they begin another dynasty? Only time will tell, but I hope so. The NFL needs teams like San Francisco.

Whether you love the 49ers or hate them, you pay attention to them. And that (along with winning) is the mark of a dynasty.

They went on a 12-4 run and ended the game having shot 4 of 17 from three-point land, choosing to go inside on less than half of their possessions.

Hickey also credited the crowd of A&M supporters.

"In the second half I really thought the crowd was a major factor," she said.

Jennings came off the bench to score 11 points including two three-pointers and reserve Yolanda Brown added 12 points and 14 rebounds.

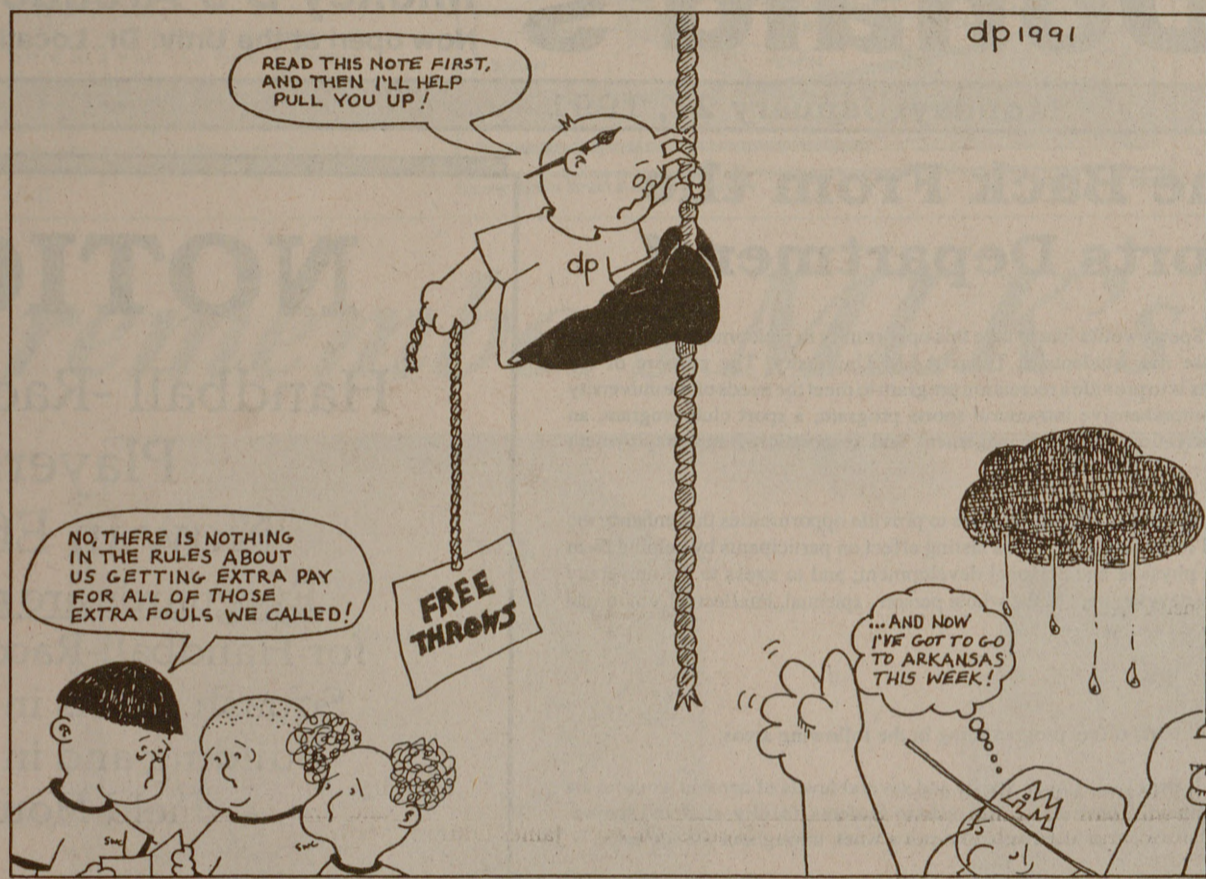

The second half was a different story for the Baylor players.

After shooting 66.7 percent from the field and 60.0 percent from three points land in the first half, the Bears could only manage 29.6 percent from the field and 25 percent from three point range in the second.

"We've had problems throughout the year about having the killer instinct, and we showed a little bit of that tonight," Hickey said. "When we got the lead we didn't let them back into it."

It doesn't get any easier for the Lady Ags as they take their three game win streak to Arkansas tomorrow night.

Coach Hickey remains positive about her team's chances, however.
