Rally

sues, but "not peace in the Middle East."

The outburst went unchallenged by Diane Sarver, who was reading Gramm's message.

The rally also included tearful testimony by Teresa Swords of the Brazos Valley Crisis Pregnancy Service.

Swords, a former A&M student, said she chose to have an abortion several years ago.

"When I made the choice to end my child's life, I didn't realize I also chose to end my life as well," Swords said. "A quick fix became an eight-year ordeal."

The pregnancy service provides information on all options, as well as counseling, to anyone in need of help, Swords said.

Dwight Edwards, pastor of Grace Bible Church in College Station, said abortion will remain one of the most important issues of the 1990s.

"God, without a doubt, considers a fetus a person," Edwards said. "If abortion is murder, then America is guilty of a genocide more than triple that of Nazi Germany."

Mike Bradham, Aggies For Life vice president of activities, said his group had little trouble enlisting aid from other groups and had taken precautions in case trouble developed with pro-choice demonstrators.

"I didn't think we would have any trouble until I got a crank phone call at about 1 a.m.," Bradham said. "That made me put up my defenses."

With the absence of opposing pro-choice demonstrators, however, the rally proceeded smoothly.

Tip toe through 29-cent tulips for new stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The governors of the U.S. Postal Service made official Tuesday a broad range of rate increases, including a four-cent boost, to 29 cents, for a first-class stamp.

The increase will take effect Feb. 3. Millions of new stamps have been printed and are ready to go on sale Wednesday.

The postal service had originally asked for a 30-cent rate for first-class mail, but the governors reluctantly accepted an independent rate commission's recommendation earlier in the month to trim that increase by a penny.

"By delaying action, our alternative would be to accept up to $20 million a day in lost revenue that we sorely need after three years of no price increases," Postmaster General Anthony Fyank said.

"We are concerned that the commission's calculations of volume are incorrect," said Norma Pace, chairman of the postal governing board. That could be too little income to run the agency, she said.

The cost of sending a first-class letter will rise to 29 cents for the first ounce and 23 cents for each additional ounce. That's up from 25 cents and 20 cents.

Replacing the new first-class rate will be the "F-Flower" stamp, featuring a red tulip on a yellow background. It's the sixth in the series of stamps printed with letters instead of prices, because the printing had to start before the official rate was known.

In addition, for the first time the Postal Service is issuing what it calls a make-up rate stamp. Its design is hardly striking.
