

Japanese drummers perform Friday

By Pamela Lee

The sounds of Japanese drums will boom throughout Rudder Auditorium to remind Aggies of the brotherhood of the world.

Kodo, a Japanese percussion company, will perform courtesy of OPAS Friday night.

Kodo, which means heartbeat, symbolizes the heartbeat of the child in its mother's womb and the company's desire to play the drums with the purity of a child's heart.

The drums, called Taiko, were used for communication among neighboring villages in ancient Japan. Now Kodo uses the Taiko as a means of expression on their Earth Celebration tour.

Kodo combines the use of different sized drums with dancing and mime.

Their fourth annual Earth Celebration tour started Jan. 20 in California and will end in March in Olympia, Washington. Their performances have been seen throughout the world.

Angie Lee of OPAS said she is excited because Kodo hasn't ever had this many performances on a tour. She said that Kodo's performance provides the public with a variety of entertainment, not just musicals and plays.

Kodo performs Friday at 8 p.m. Regular ticket prices are $16, $13.50, $11.50, $9.50 and $7.50. Student prices are $13.50, $11.50, $9.50, $7.50 and $6. Tickets are now on sale at the MSC Box Office. For more information call 845-1234.

Photo exhibit to be displayed in library

A traveling photographic exhibit called "Toward a Better Living for Rural Texas Blacks, 1930-1960" will be exhibited on the first-floor of Sterling C. Evans Library beginning Friday. The marks the start of Black History month.

The photographs will be displayed in the library until Feb. 3 and then will be moved to the lobby of Rudder Tower for display through March 22.

A short symposium will be held Friday at 2 p.m. in room 204 of the library to officially open the exhibit. Speakers will include A&M history professor Robert Calvert, Dr. Dempsey H. Seastrunk, retired assistant director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Fort Bend County farmer Fletcher Morgan, a 4-H member in 1932 and operator of a family farm for almost half a century.

The exhibit includes more than 50 photos.
