foresee any problems with the center.

Peel says other construction projects around campus are continuing as scheduled. The following are updates:

- The Corps of Cadets Center is ahead of its construction schedule.
- A pipe burst and flooded the Offshore Technology Research Laboratory during Christmas break. Laboratory repairs almost are completed.
- The System coordinating board approved resurfacing the runway at Easterwood Airport.
- Bidding will begin March 7 for reconstruction of Houston and Throckmorton streets. The construction will be similar to that of Bizzell Street.

would be more important to the legislature than an individual country's desires, Collester said.

He added that the "sovereign model" for a nation's government, under which problems like environmental destruction are seen solely as a country's internal concern, was becoming obsolete.

"With Chernobyl, we asked why the Soviets used inept equipment," Collester said. "With the deforestation in Amazonia, who pays the price?"

"Europe is the drawing board for world architecture. The European Community is not making history, it's making a future."

was trying to wage "a just war in a just way," trying to minimize damage to civilians and to religious and cultural sites.

He repeated a warning to Saddam that any use of chemical or biological weapons "will have the most severe consequences."

Baker did not say what actions the United States might take in such circumstances. "They could be both political and military," he said, hinting that Bush might then try to remove Saddam from power.

The secretary also looked ahead to the postwar Middle East, calling for healing not only the wounds of gulf states but also "the rest of the region which

Senate

Off-campus students will have their voice represented by 20 elected senators.

The number of senators also was reduced by eliminating sections in the previous statute, which called for representation for international students, graduate students and students living in University Owned Apartments.

Hampton said all students will be represented either by college or residence.

"We (Student Senate) don't need to be dividing the student body into sub-groups according to race or religion," he said. "If we did, we would have to represent

Gender

The ruling came after two UT women filed a complaint last fall when they were denied membership in the all-male Longhorn Hellraisers.

Certain organizations, such as Aggie Hostesses, Aggie Men's Club or Diamond Darlings, by virtue of their name or activity, are single-sex organizations, Adair says.

"The name and activity of some organizations may not be inviting enough so the opposite sex will want to join," Adair says.

Aggie Hostesses is an all-female organization that helps the athletic department recruit prospective student athletes, particularly for football, says Angela Green, coordinator resent all kinds of sub-groups within the student body."

Charles Phipps, rules and regulations chairman, pointed out that graduate students have their own student council.

"They still will be represented by the Student Senate by appointing a graduate student liaison," he said.

In other business, the Senate passed Bill 91-7 introduced by Senator John Ansbach.

The bill stated that the student body will no longer elect chairpersons for Student Government Academic Affairs, External Affairs, Student Services and Fi-for Aggie Hostesses.

Green says Aggie Hostesses do not have any men in the organization because male athletes act as hosts for prospective student athletes.

"The guys that help us are players," Green says. "They offer recruits a perspective of what life is like as an athlete at A&M."

Penny King, adviser to the Diamond Darlings, says the organization does not specify that their members have to be men or women, but she does not think that men would want to join. Diamond Darlings, an all-female organization, promotes the baseball team, works the stands to collect foul balls and helps take nance committees.

Instead, a selection committee will nominate two candidates after reviewing applications. The Senate then votes for one.

A bill proposing off-campus workers to be ineligible for pre-registration was introduced by Senator Glen Taylor. However, the bill was referred to the Academic Affairs Committee for further discussion.

Taylor said out of the 6,200 students who registered early last semester, 4,200 were working students, not honors students. He says the large turnout stems from students abusing this privilege.

statistics in the press box, King says.

"We never had a male try out, but there is nothing to keep him from doing so if he wishes," King says.

The Aggie Men's Club, a Christian fellowship group, is an all-male organization. Adviser Timothy Gronberg says gender has never been an issue with the Aggie Men's Club.

"This organization is more of a support group," Gronberg says. "It provides an alternative to regular fraternity kind of service."

Gronberg says although The Aggie Men's Club does not have women in its membership, it does have a little sisters program.

Gorbachev tightens grip, demands union of republics

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev made a surprise television appearance Wednesday night to declare his determination to hold the country together and urge full participation in the Kremlin's referendum on the union.

"All my convictions are based on preservation of the union," the Soviet president said, sitting at a desk to deliver a 15-minute address at the beginning of the evening newscast.

"The Soviet Union is a superpower," he said. "Huge efforts were made to make it so powerful, and we could lose it very quickly."

It was Gorbachev's clearest declaration to date that he will not let any of the 15 republics secede. While acknowledging that areas were brought into the union by force, he said the fate of all now depends on remaining in a common economic system.

He did not, however, threaten specific action against secessionist republics. He said only that lawmakers should ensure everybody has the chance to vote in a Kremlin-ordered referendum March 17 on preserving the union.
