Student dies in game of Russian roulette

DONNA (AP) — A 15-year-old student playing with a pistol fatally shot himself Wednesday in a high school biology class as horrified classmates watched, police said.

The ninth grade student, Raul Calvo of Donna, died shortly after the shooting, said Lt. Gilbert Gonzalez of the Donna Police Department.

"What happened was he jokingly pulled out a weapon and he said 'Let's play Russian roulette,' and he put one of the bullets in there," Gonzalez said. "He attempted to spin the cylinder and the gun went off."

Gonzalez said a single .38-caliber bullet struck the student in the right side of the neck. Officials say Calvo was pronounced dead at Knapp Medical Center in Weslaco at 2:14 p.m.

"All indications show that it was an accident," said Gonzalez, who interviewed several of the students who witnessed the incident.

School principal Gene Kirby said Calvo was a football player known to have a cheerful disposition.

Kirby said the shooting produced a somber mood among the school's

2,000 students, who were informed of the incident via the public address system.

"When the bells rang for dismissal, it was very quiet in the halls," Kirby said.

The shooting occurred about 1:25 p.m. as the sixth-period biology class was beginning, Kirby said.

Police said Calvo was in the back of the room standing with his back to the teacher when he pulled out the .38-caliber revolver and started playing with it.

School officials counseled the other 19 students who were in the biology class. Police said they were investigating who owns the gun and how Calvo obtained it.

Acting Police Chief Antonio Lopez said he could not recall any previous incidents at the school that involved guns.

Calvo was the sixth Donna student to die from gunshot wounds within the past two weeks.

Officials believe the five other deaths were drug-related.
