Texas organ banks need tissue donors

ODESSA (AP) — Directors at some organ banks in Texas are reminding donors that skin, like blood, is also needed to help soldiers injured during the Persian Gulf War.

The thought of donating their deceased loved ones' tissue may upset some people, but Becky Cameron, field coordinator for the Southwest Organ Bank, says tissue donations are essential to the survival of severely burned persons.

Ellen Heck, director of transplant services at Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas, said unlike organ donations, which are made when a person is brain dead, skin can be donated up to 18 hours after death.

Heck keeps officials at Brooke Army Hospital in San Antonio, where most burn victims from Saudi Arabia would be taken, informed about supplies at her tissue bank.

Skin donations already are badly needed, she said.

"(The war) should increase people's awareness," she said. "But we haven't seen an increase in donations. The system is already strained and when a major disaster occurs, either civilian or military, it's going to be really hard."

Most people know about giving blood, but few prepare to donate skin, Cameron said.

"I always try to make it a point to tell people that tissue is taken from places of the body that will still allow there to be an open casket funeral," she said.

A thin layer of skin is removed from the back, buttocks and legs, she said.

Cameron said skin donations do not have to be matched to a recipient. Donated skin is used as a temporary dressing to retain fluid in the body and prevent infections before a skin graft can be done.

Skin grafts usually are done with a burn victim's own skin or with donated tissue if burns cover a great percentage of the body, Cameron said.

Restaurant Report

The restaurants listed below were inspected by the Brazos County Health Department between Feb. 4 and 8. Information is from a food service establishment inspection report.

SCORED BETWEEN 100 AND 95:

Pop's Barbeque, Inc. 2319 S. Texas Ave. Score — 98. Points were deducted for unclean non-food contact surfaces and inadequate repair of walls and ceilings. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

Student Korner 1802 Welsh Drive. Score — 98. Points were deducted for inadequate hand cleansers. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

Sonic Drive-In 2900 S. Texas Ave. Score — 96. Points were deducted for inaccessible toilet and handwashing facilities. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

Confucius Chinese 2322 S. Texas Ave. Score — 96. Points were deducted for unclean non-food contact surfaces, unclean floors and reuse of single service articles. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

SCORED BETWEEN 94 AND 90:

Jack In The Box 1504 S. Texas Ave. Score — 91. Points were deducted for unmaintained food surfaces, inaccessible toilet and handwashing facilities, inadequate hand drying devices and hand cleansers and unclean non-food surfaces. It was a regularly scheduled inspection.

SCORED BETWEEN 89 AND 85:

Fuddrucker's 2206 S. Texas Avenue. Score — 88. Points were deducted for unclean floors, inaccessible toilet and handwashing facilities, inadequate single-service articles, inadequate food protection during service, unclean nonfood surfaces, unmaintained plumbing and inadequate hand drying devices.

David Jefferson, a registered sanitarian at the department, said restaurants with scores of 95 or above generally have excellent operations and facilities. He said restaurants with scores in the 70s or low 80s usually have serious violations in the health report.

Scores can be misleading, Jefferson said, because restaurants can get the same score by having several minor violations or a few major violations. He said the minor violations can be corrected during the inspection. Point deductions or violations in the report range from one point (minor violations) to five points (major violations).

Jefferson said the department might close a restaurant if the score is below 60, the personnel have infectious diseases, the restaurant lacks adequate refrigeration, there is a sewage backup in the building or the restaurant has a complete lack of sanitization for the food equipment.

The department inspects each restaurant every six months. Jefferson said a follow-up inspection is sometimes required if a restaurant has a four- or five-point violation that cannot be corrected during the inspection, or if there are numerous small violations.

Inspectors at the department are registered sanitarians.

Carswell AFB makes hit list for Pentagon base cut backs

FORT WORTH (AP) — Carswell Air Force Base is on a Pentagon "hit list" of bases targeted for closure, sources close to the base say.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported that although the final closure list is still far from complete, some supporters of the base said the facility appears to be a prime target.

Carswell Air Force Base officials refused to confirm or deny the rumors.

"We cannot speculate what will happen," a Carswell spokesman said. "That announcement would not be made locally."

Pentagon officials are targeting bases for closure as part of a three-step plan approved by Congress last year. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney has said he will send the final list of closure candidates to a special Base Closing Commission on April 15.

The eight-member commission, which has the authority to change Cheney's proposal, is scheduled to send its recommendations to President Bush on July 1.

"The only place that the Department of Defense is dropping more bombs on than Tarrant County is Baghdad," Rep. Pete Geren, D-Texas, of Fort Worth, said. "I hope this isn't true. Carswell is a big part of our community."

The Defense Department plans to scale back its strategic bomber force from 268 aircraft to 171 by late 1993. The cutback will involve retiring B-52 bombers, the backbone of the Strategic Air Command. Carswell Air Force Base has about 265 B-52s.

"I certainly see SAC being a much smaller force in the future," Tech Sgt. Alan Dockery, a SAC spokesman, said. "I know we're going to be retiring B-52s."

Geren said: "I'm hopeful that we won't end up on the list, but if we do, our community is going to make as strong a case as possible to convince the commission that Carswell deserves to continue. It would be a real tragedy to lose that facility."
