Agency seeks tire thieves in 4-month investigation

During the last four months, Brazos County Crime Stoppers has run several different Crime of the Week segments involving the theft of tires. After printing these stories, Crime Stoppers has received calls from other victims of tire thefts and little information about any suspects. In most cases, the thieves are stealing tires from parked vehicles or equipment.

While individual losses normally are not significant, collectively the losses add up to thousands of dollars. Detectives believe the tires are the targets of thieves because tires are not identifiable and because there is a ready market for them. Detectives also believe thieves are selling or trading the stolen items outside of Bryan-College Station.

This week the Texas A&M University Police Department and Crime Stoppers need your help to identify the persons responsible for these thefts.

If you have information that could be helpful, call Crime Stoppers at 775-TIPS. When you call you will be assigned a special coded number that will protect your identity.

If your call leads to the arrest and grand jury indictment, Crime Stoppers will pay up to $1,000 in cash. Crime Stoppers also pays cash for information on any felony crime or the location of any wanted fugitive.

Texas bank company faces Federal Reserve in bankruptcy court

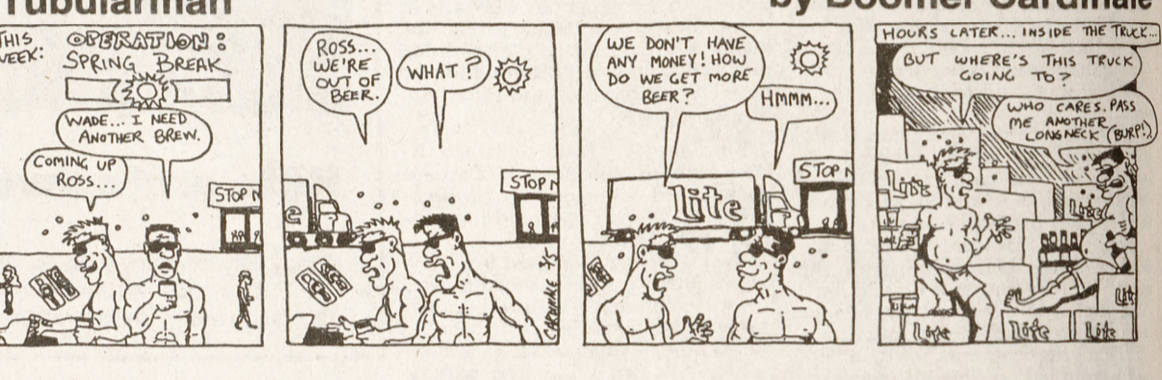

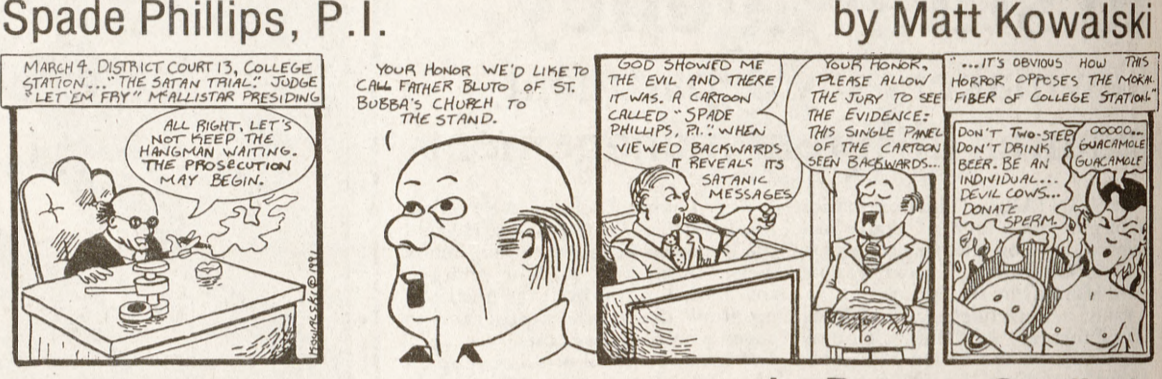

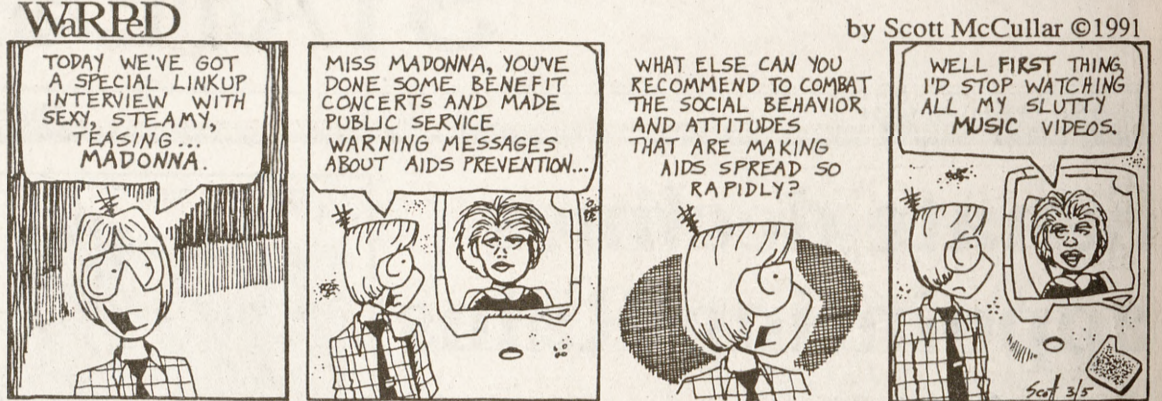

DALLAS (AP) — MCorp, once Texas' second-largest bank holding company, is now facing a Supreme Court appearance in a dispute with the Federal Reserve Board.

But by the time the justices make a decision, at least a year from now, MCorp may have no more banks and the case may be moot, attorneys said.

The argument central to the case — whether the Federal Reserve can require bank holding companies to maintain adequate capital for subsidiary banks — will remain though.

"It will come up again," said Howard Cayne, an MCorp attorney in Washington. "The briefs are out there and arguments are out there for someone else to make."

The disputed Fed policy, created in 1984 and 1987, requires the parent company of a bank to be a "source of strength" for it. The com-

Super collider awaits contribution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unrest in the Baltics may undermine the Soviet Union's pledge to contribute significantly to the costs of building the $8.2 billion super collider, Energy Secretary James D. Watkins said Monday.

Watkins, under pressure from Congress to raise $1.6 billion in foreign contributions for the superconducting super collider, refused to tell a House committee that he was optimistic it could be done.

"I do believe this is the year that we have to come up to you and say here's where we stand on this, and we have very active efforts going to try to get these monies," Watkins told the House Appropriations subcommittee on energy and water development.

"I hate to say I'm optimistic (about the foreign fund-raising)," Watkins said. "We're going to fight hard for it... but I'd like to think at this point in time we have a good shot at it."

The House voted last year to spend no more than $5 billion in federal money on the project, a 54-mile underground ring around the city of Waxahachie in which scientists hope to learn more about the origins of the universe by studying collisions of high-speed beams of protons.

The legislation, however, never passed the Senate and did not become law. Under the House plan,

Court leaves tort reform laws to states

The court, upholding a $1 million award to an Alabama woman victimized by insurance fraud, stopped short of saying such judgments never may violate the Constitution.

But the ruling essentially leaves it in the hands of legislatures to adopt, or reject, so-called "tort reform" to restrict jury discretion by limiting damage awards. Many states already have approved such limits; those laws are not affected by Monday's ruling.

In other action, the court:

- Rejected a challenge by Nevada officials to federal plans for a nuclear waste dump near Las Vegas.

- Left intact a New York "lemon law" that gives buyers of chronically defective cars more legal protection than they get under federal law.
- Refused to protect church groups fighting local landmark preservation laws. The court refused to let a New York City church tear down its community house and build a commercial skyscraper, and told a lower court to reconsider a ruling that churches are exempt from a Seattle landmark ordinance.

In the punitive damage case, the court upheld a $1 million award against the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Newport Beach, Calif., won by Cleopatra Haslip, a former $8,800-a-year librarian for Roosevelt City, Ala., Haslip discovered her insurance coverage had lapsed after she incurred $3,500 in hospital and medical bills in 1982 for treatment of a kidney infection.

The insurance agent who arranged health coverage for Roosevelt City workers had absconded with the premiums.
