Rec Sports' new rule misses mark

EDITOR:

The Recreational Sports Office has been so concerned for the safety of racquetball and handball players, that it has become mandatory for all players to wear eye protection.

It is nice to know that they are worried about our eyes, but shouldn't that be our own concern? It should be our own choice as to whether or not we want to have this protection so long as the Rec office makes it clear that they are not liable for injuries suffered on the court.

Secondly, because eye protection is mandatory, the Rec Office should at least rent, if not loan out, eye guards for players. At the present, the only option is to buy a pair of them for about $10. They could make a great deal more money, if that is their objective, by renting eye guards for 25 to 50 cents.

Hogs slip from Top 3

Arkansas said farewell to the Southwest Conference and No. 3 in The Associated Press college basketball poll.

The Razorbacks fell to No. 5 in the poll, the lowest they've been all season, after a 99-86 loss to Texas the night before. Arkansas leaves the SWC for the Southeastern Conference next season.

"It was sad to be playing here for the last time," Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson said at Austin, Texas. "I've promoted the Southwest Conference in basketball. The higher-ups make decisions about where we go."

The top two stayed the same: UNLV and Ohio State.

UNLV (27-0) got all 62 first-place votes and 1,550 points after ending its regular season undefeated with a 104-83 victory over Fullerton State on Saturday. Indiana State and Alcorn State, both in 1979, were the last teams to go undefeated in the regular season.

Ohio State (25-1) beat Michigan State 65-64 on a buzzer-beater and had 1,488 points. Indiana (25-4) moved from No. 5 to No. 3 after beating Wisconsin 74-61, getting 1,363 points, and Syracuse (26-4) was No. 4 with 1,347 points after a 62-58 victory over Georgetown.

After Arkansas, the Top Ten consisted of Duke (25-6), North Carolina (22-5), Utah (26-2), Arizona (24-6) and Kentucky (22-6).

North Carolina fell from No. 4 to No. 7 after losing to Duke 83-77 on Sunday. Kentucky moved into the Top Ten from 13th last week with a 114-93 victory over Auburn to end its season. The Wildcats are on NCAA probation and ineligible for postseason play.

and just do the things that can help the team win.

"I said I didn't want to be the one that has to make every play anymore. Don't come to me for all of the big baskets."

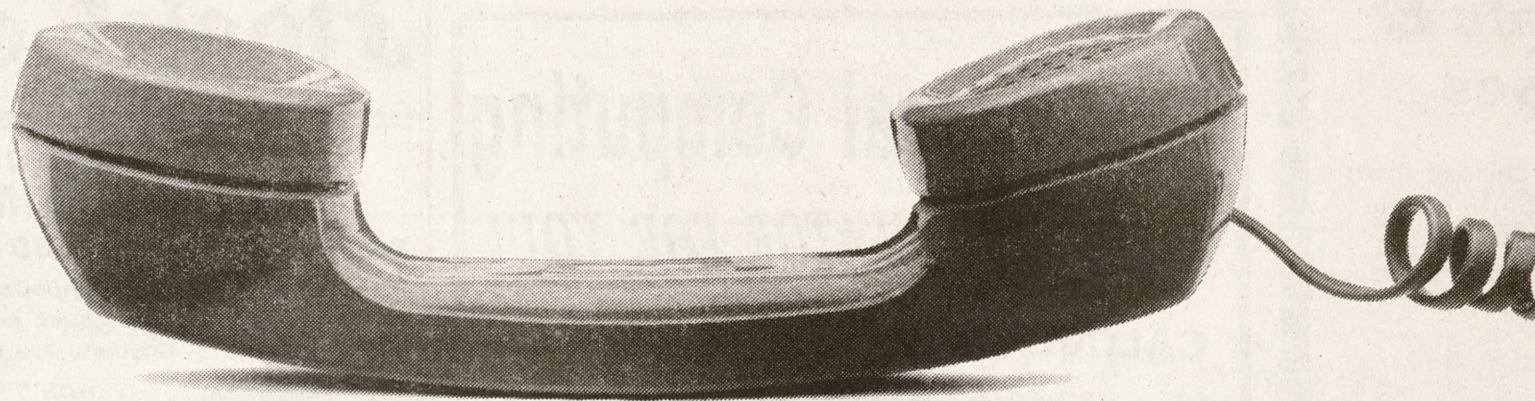

And Sunday, the Rockets didn't. They finally didn't have to rely totally on Akeem down the stretch to win a ball game. And to win against the Lakers, at the Forum, with Olujuwon playing a specific role, makes the Rockets a very happy campers.

And so the Rockets move on, increasing their cohesiveness with the new Akeem, and using the superstar to his fullest capabilities in the offensive scheme.

But if The Dream has even one slip of the tongue concerning any teammates whatsoever, the media will make sure that NBA fans are the first to know.

But for right now, many Rockets fans, would like to say, "Thanks, Oluja."
