J.D. Crow made bad decision

two years of Division I success in Idaho enough?
And what big names did they beat to give Davis that kind of reputation?

I questioned Crow's move long ago. But the big people, with the big paychecks and constant media attention, get to make the big choices, even when they don't know what they're doing.

Davis' only apparent ties to the inner-city were to Rob Johnson, an alleged player broker.

Johnson is the type of guy that wears the NCAA's scarlet letter on his sweater.

Why would Davis, knowing that Jackie Sherrill recently got caught in the football program, even associate with Johnson?

Because Davis was young and naive? Maybe.

Davis even considered Johnson for a graduate assistant position on the Aggie team, although there is no record of him having graduated from anywhere.

And Davis really blew the handling of the whole Tony Scott affair. The young coach got nervous when the transfer scandal began to fall through the roof.

His actions left room for speculation that he was scrambling to save his own hide, knowing he didn't want to go down in only his first season on the job.

And will somebody please tell me why Scott would say he came to A&M for the new arena, among other things.

Scott should be working for a Big 8 accounting firm by the time the arena is finished in 1993, shouldn't he?

And let's not forget the season itself.

The Aggies were 8-21, with "key" victories over Texas College and Centenary. Beating Baylor and Tech showed me little.

Boy, Longhorns must be chuckling at this scenario.

Discipline seems to be one of Davis' weak points. The players cracked like eggs under late-game defensive pressure throughout the year. That is a coaching problem. The only way nervous players break pressure is if they practice doing it constantly.

Nonetheless, the book is closed on a dismal season. And another book, A&M's 95-page internal report, is headed to Kansas City for what should be an interesting review by NCAA investigators.

Where does Davis take his teenage looks and hot reputation now?

Ironically, Mississippi State could be a way out, and it would have nothing to do with the fact that the school was Sherrill's escape hatch.

Davis' father, Kermit Sr., is associate director of the Bulldog Club booster group and was head coach of the basketball team from 1970-77.

But I'm sure the last word Davis Jr. wants to hear is booster.

I don't think anyone else is going to touch this hot potato for quite some time, and if someone does, may the force be with them.

And if Davis can't find a job anytime soon, he can always guest host for Big Bird.

Mavericks bury Kings

DALLAS (AP) — The Sacramento Kings tied the NBA single-season record with their 28th consecutive road loss, falling 104-86 Monday night to the Dallas Mavericks, who got 31 points from hot-shooting Rolando Blackman.

Previous losers of 28 straight on the road in a single season were the 1974-75 New Orleans Jazz and the 1989-90 New Jersey Nets. Those losing streaks are the fourth-longest overall in NBA history.

The Kings, who lost coach Dick Motta to an ejection, go for the record Tuesday night in San Antonio. Motta was chased with 2:47 left in the second quarter by referee Joe Crawford after collecting his second technical foul.

Blackman made 11 of 15 shots to lead the Mavericks, who got 18 points from Derek Harper. James Donaldson added 17 points and 12 rebounds while Rodney McCray tied a career high with 18 boards.

Lionel Simmons had 19 points for Sacramento, 1-31 this season on the road.

After trailing by as many as 21 points late in the third quarter, the Kings made a fourth-quarter charge. But they got no closer than 86-77 with 5:07 to play on Rory Sparrow's jumper.

Rockets' Smith Player of Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Kermit Smith of the Houston Rockets, who averaged 25 points, and 7.7 assists in four victories, was named NBA Player of the Week on Monday.

Smith, who shot .567 on 34-for-60 from the field and .931 on 27-for-29 from the free throw line, has led the Rockets to eight straight victories and 10 in the last 11 games.

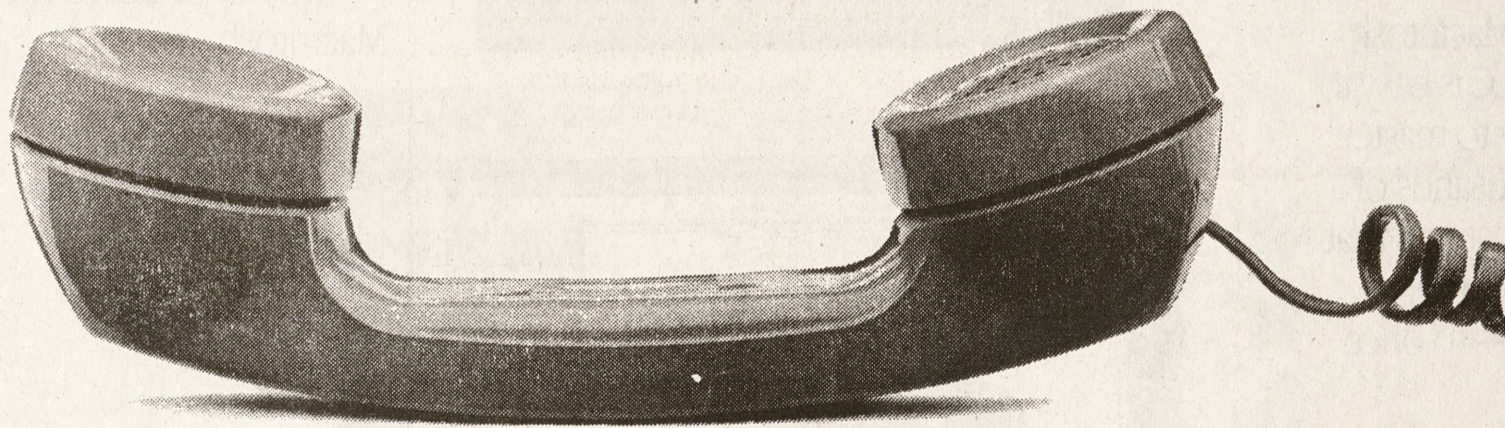

His best game of the week came in a 123-119 victory over Golden State when he scored 28 points and had 10 assists. He also scored the game's deciding four points on a field goal and two free throws in the final 20 seconds.

Smith had 24 points, including 13-for-15 from the foul line, six assists and two steals in a 93-87 victory over Seattle. His four free throws in the final 17 seconds clinched the victory.

He had 22 points and five assists in a 119-95 victory over Orlando and 28 points with eight assists as Houston snapped Phoenix' seven-game winning streak, 125-118.

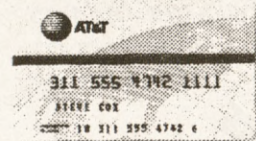

Other candidates for Player of the Week were Michael Jordan and Horace Grant of Chicago, Houston's Hakeem Olajuwon, Detlef Schrempf of Indiana, Miami's Sherman Douglas and Rony Seikaly.
