Inquiry into refinery blasts begins

SWEENEY (AP) — Investigators from Phillips Petroleum's Oklahoma headquarters arrived Sunday at the Old Ocean refinery, where a series of explosions rocked the plant and injured two workers.

"The fire's out now, and it's a little easier for them to get in there and figure out what happened," plant spokesman Bill Wicker said.

Wicker said no possible cause had been determined for the explosions and fires, which burned themselves out at 5:45 a.m.

The initial explosion occurred about 2:25 p.m. Saturday in the heavy oil desulphurization unit, with secondary explosions at 2:55 p.m. and 3:12 p.m.

The unit, used in refining crude oil into gasoline and other petroleum products, was shut down, along with two adjacent units.
