Police arrest wife in doctor's death

LIVE OAK (AP) — The wife of a pediatrician stormed into his office Wednesday and shot him to death while a room full of waiting patients listened, authorities said.

Dr. Luis Valdez Fuerte was dead on arrival at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio after the shooting at about 3 p.m., officials said.

After negotiating with the woman to come out of the office, police arrested the doctor's wife, Lourdes Fuerte, said Live Oak Police Chief Mark Jackley. Charges against the woman were pending.

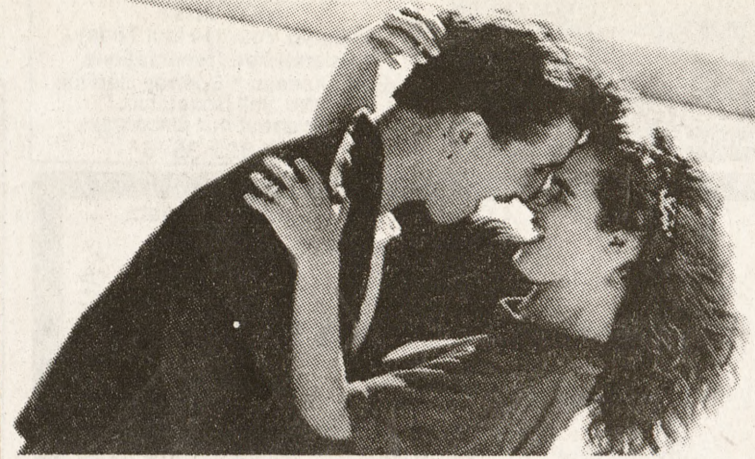

Jackley said Mrs. Fuerte apparently bought the .38-caliber handgun used in the shooting earlier in the day.

Witnesses said they were not sure what was happening.

"It was like a helium balloon bursting," said Jane Miller, one of those within earshot. "And I heard the doctor go, 'Aye-yi-yi.' We thought that he was just playing with a child."

"Then I heard the second explosion, and he made some more noises and was pleading. By the time I heard the third one, I knew it was not balloons."

Nurses immediately came to the waiting room and told the patients there had been a family problem and that they needed to leave immediately, Miller said.

"We've told each other 'I love you' a thousand times. But it took a diamond like this to leave her speechless."

Sex, AIDS, high school Paper angers parents

AUSTIN (AP) — The publication of a student newspaper that featured articles on AIDS and safe sex drew more than 100 people and a heated discussion to a PTSA meeting at Bowie High School.

"We felt that it was an important topic that needed to be discussed because it was very relevant," said Tara Trower, editor of the student paper.

The newspaper was published Friday and included several articles and columns on safe sex and AIDS.

Laura Rarity, a parent whose son is a senior at Bowie, said the paper was irresponsible and too focused on sex. She said it gave the impression that most students in high school were sexually active.

"They presented only one side," she said. "And they presented it in a way that took up practically the whole newspaper."

John McCartney, the journalism teacher who oversees student publications for the school with about 2,000 students, said he believed the students responsibly and intelligently presented needed information.

their goals accordingly, Callahan said.

"We must think of our lives differently," he said. "We can't count on dying young."

Society also must have a long-term outlook on health care, Callahan said. For example, decreasing infant mortality rates is not enough. He said the children must have health care after they leave the hospital.

"People are oriented toward the cure, and neglectful of the consequences of the cure," Callahan said.

Health care has a powerful claim on resources, he said. The medical community must be careful not to divert all these resources toward short-term goals that cause more problems.

"We accept death as a part of life," Callahan said. "We must accept disease as a part of life."

peatedly have said Schwarzkopf lacks the academic credentials required for the chancellorship.

Faculty Senate criteria call for a chancellor with "a distinguished record of teaching and scholarship commensurate with a tenured professor," an earned doctoral degree and experience in a university's planning.

Dr. Peter Hugill, deputy speaker of the Faculty Senate, said Monday the Senate also wants a chancellor who is a candidate for the National Academy of Sciences or National Academy of Engineering.
