

Tuition hike should be gradual, Mobley says

"There is growing recognition of the need for a tuition increase, but it needs to be phased in gently over a period of time," he said. "There should also be an increase in financial aid to match, and (additional revenue) should stay within the University."

Additional revenue brought into the University by programs like the cyclotron, the Sea Grant College and the Institute for Biosciences and Technology will save these "special item" programs from losing their funding, Mobley said.

"For each state dollar, (these programs) bring in $3, $4 and $5 in federal and private funding," he said. "This money helps support our students, research, equipment and facilities."

Los Angeles police chief announces plan to retire next year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police Chief Daryl F. Gates, under pressure to step down since the videotaped beating of a motorist by police officers, said Monday he will retire next year.

Gates, 64, who has been chief for 13 years, said in a letter to

City Council President John Ferraro that he would step down when a successor is chosen. It's not yet clear how a new chief will be picked.

"Given the uncertain timeline, I have selected the month of April 1992 as the month I will retire," he wrote. "If a permanent chief has not been chosen by that date, I will delay my retirement until that selection has been made." He said he'd pick a specific date later.

Gates, 64, has been under pressure to step down since the March 3 videotaped police beating of black motorist Rodney King. Pressure intensified earlier this month when an independent commission that investigated the department suggested that Gates retire.

Saddam's ruling council declares amnesty for deserters

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Saddam Hussein's ruling council issued decrees Sunday forgiving army deserters and government opponents. The amnesties came as relief officials reported thousands more Kurds were fleeing Iraqi forces.

The decrees follow reports of renewed fighting between government forces and Kurdish rebels in northern Iraq and troop movements in the south into Shiite Muslim areas.

The battles last week have started a new migration of Kurdish refugees, the International Committee of the Red Cross said Sunday in Geneva. It reported about 20,000 Kurds fleeing the city of Suleimaniyah and heading toward the Iranian border.

Red Cross spokeswoman Karen Saddler also said relief workers visited about 1,200 Iraqi soldiers captured by rebels in the Suleimaniyah area.

Separate Kurd and Shiite uprisings after the Persian Gulf War were crushed by Saddam's forces, and more than 2 million refugees fled toward Turkey or Iran. Last week, Saddam urged Iraqis to forget past differences and promised greater political openness.

Allied forces sent to northern Iraq to protect returning Kurds withdrew to Turkey last week, but U.S. commanders had said soldiers could return to quell fighting. There were no indications Sunday of U.S. plans to dispatch troops.

Saddam's amnesty for army deserters was first issued in March after the Kurdish and Shiite rebellions were put down. The Shiites have claimed thousands of deserters joined the rebel forces against Saddam.

But it was not immediately clear if the Sunday decree covered deserters from the Persian Gulf war or those involved in the rebellions. It does not cover officers.

The Iraqi News Agency report

initially said the decree affected all deserters, but then reported the starting date for the amnesty was March 20. There was no explanation for the change.

The ruling Revolutionary Command Council, dominated by Saddam, also granted an immediate amnesty to "political fugitives," an apparent reference to opponents of the ruling Arab Baath Socialist Party.
