Inconsistency troubles Lady Aggies' season start

by Scott Wudel
The Battalion

The Texas A&M volleyball team started the 1991 season on the bumpy road of inconsistency this weekend.

The Lady Aggies lost two of three matches in the Texas A&M Holiday Inn Invitational. The Aggies lost to Sam Houston State University 15-9, 16-17, 15-9, 15-13 Saturday afternoon and to the University of Alabama-Birmingham 15-13, 15-5, 9-15, 15-11 Saturday night.

A&M defeated the University of Mississippi Friday night 15-6, 5-15, 15-12, 15-12. The Lady Aggies begin the season 1-2.

A&M volleyball coach Al Givens said the team was inconsistent in Saturday's losses.

"Consistency is a word that we're going to learn, and we didn't display that tonight," Givens said. "In a couple of key positions we're kind of young, and we're making young mistakes. We just have to ride that flight out."

He said the inconsistency may be due to the team's mental game.

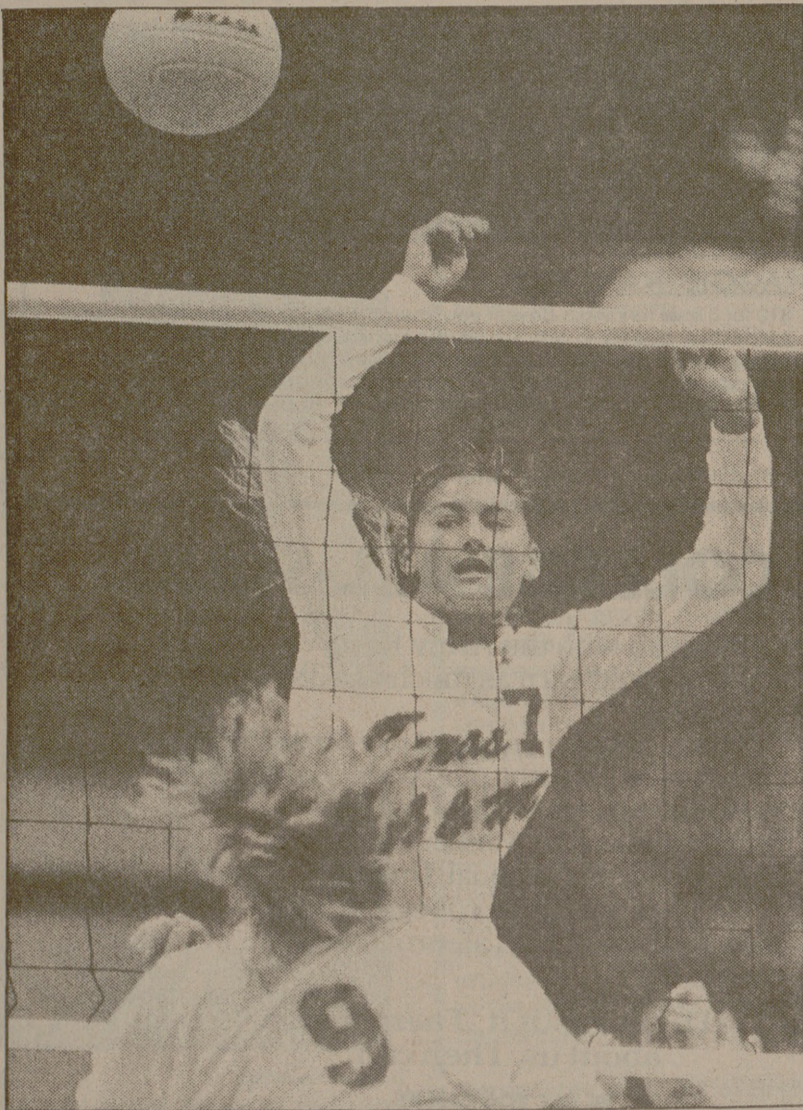

"Athletically we have a lot of talent, but if you watch our team play we're real streaky," he said. "It's a mental part of the game - not being able to stay focused. But we'll get better at that."

The Aggie defense kept the ball alive Saturday night but the UAB defense kept A&M from converting kills.

Senior outside attacker Alysia McMath converted 11 of 31 kill attempts during the UAB match. She said the Lady Aggies' problems were ones of communication.

"We weren't communicating very well, like what defense they were in and what shots were open," McMath said. "Once we start playing the game right, no
