Cross country hits the road

From Staff and Wire Reports

The Texas A&M cross country team travels to Waco today to participate in the Baylor Invitational. The meet will take place at the Lakeway Golf Course.

The women's race will start at 6 p.m. and the men will begin at 6:30 p.m.

The Aggies will face Baylor, TCU, Abilene Christian and East Texas State University in their second meet of the year.

The track team is coming off a victory in the Charlie Thomas Invitational last Monday.

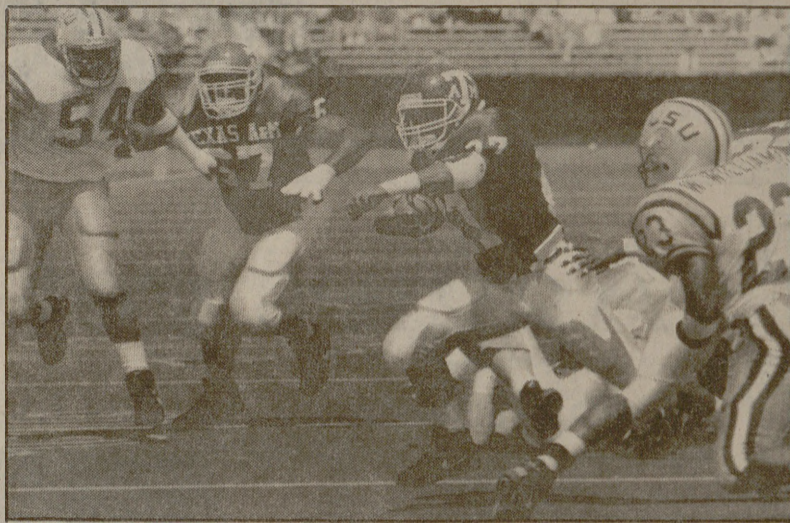

Cross country coach Ed Marcinkiewicz hopes the men's team will run well against a talented group of competition.

"The men will be trying to demonstrate the ability to compete with some of the better teams in the region," Marcinkiewicz said. "I will be watching the freshmen to see how they react to a more competitive field."

The women, who are ranked third in the latest NCAA District VI Cross Country Coaches Poll, are also using this meet to see where they stack up against the competition.

"On the women's side, Baylor is one of the top 20 teams in the country and odds on favorite for the Southwest Conference Championship," he said. "We will be able to gauge how our team is progressing in competing against them."

The Bears are the ranked second in the women's poll behind Arkansas.

The A&M offensive line opened a wide path for Greg Hill to run through for his first touchdown Saturday. The running talk that he might be the next great Aggie running back. And following behind Lewis, the fifth leading rusher in NCAA history, that can put pressure on a young player.

"It was my first college game ever, so I was a little more nervous than usual," Hill said.

Hill was quick to give his teammates credit for accomplishment.

"I had a great game today, but the people you should be interviewing is my offensive line and tight ends," Hill said. "My line was blowing everybody off the ball. I didn't even have to throw a move until I was five yards down the field."

"I don't know what these guys have been doing, but those guys played some ball today. I went and hugged each lineman (after I broke the record) and told them that I loved them," Hill said. "I might have to take them out to eat or something, but I don't know if I can pay the bill. We might have to get some tacos for 59 cents."

Whispers of Hill becoming an All-America and becoming a Heisman candidate abound, but the 19-year-old runner wants nothing to do with it.

"I've never said anything about no Heisman. I'm nowhere near the caliber to win the Heisman. I'm just plain old Greg Hill trying to run the ball."

thought we had good chemistry with this team.

"Before the game we talked about the importance of leaning on each other and counting on each other. Our players seemed to pull together when we lost Bucky and Doug Carter early in the game."

Richardson limped off the field after completing a seven-yard pass to Tony Harrison during the Aggies second drive of the game. Three plays later, Carter sprained an ankle and was forced to leave the game.

Richardson said his foot was stepped on during the previous play when he ran to the left side for a three-yard gain. He said he strained the arch in his foot and will receive treatment for the injury early this week.

Granger and Petty shared the quarterback role the rest of the way and guided the Aggies to 28 unanswered points before the Tigers finally got a touchdown on the scoreboard early in the third quarter.

Granger, who completed five of eight passes for 89 yards, said the A&M team pulled together with the new faces.

"The team on the field was a little nervous - we were down because we had lost our team leader," Granger said. "After the first couple of drives, Kent Petty and myself did our job and the offensive line adjusted to us."

"We came together and showed what a good football team we really are."

Hill took the pressure off the quarterbacks, slashing and cutting up field while carrying the ball 30 times for the Aggies. But the tailback credited the offensive line with allowing him to gain the record-breaking numbers.

"It's a dream right now and I haven't woke up yet," Hill said. "But when I do I will realize it wasn't just me out there - it was the offensive line, the tight ends, the fullbacks, the entire offense that was out there. We played as one today, as a team."

The A&M offense totaled 524 yards on the day, 409 rushing.

end zone and everybody was saying 'you're running and you're already in the end zone.'

"I just wanted to get in the end zone."

LSU struggled for 197 total yards in the game. Hallman said he was displeased with the performance of the Tigers Saturday.

"The game was similar to last week (31-10 loss to Georgia) in that we gave up a touchdown on the first drive," Hallman said. "We just got a good fanny-kicking today."

my offensive line, not me," Hill said. "They were blowing off the line of scrimmage."

"I didn't have to make a move until I was five yards down the field."

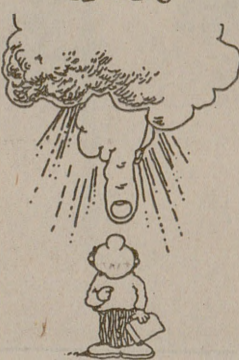

Carter rushed for 50 yards before leaving the game. Thomas replaced Carter and ran for 81 yards.

Groce, a true freshman from A&M Consolidated, rushed for 12 yards but more importantly caught two passes for 27 yards. His first catch, a five-yard pass from Granger, put him in the end zone for the Aggies' fifth touchdown of the half.

"It was real exciting," Groce said. "I didn't know I was in the
