Defense also suffers from injury bug

"I can play with it nagging me, but I can't play with it when it feels like rubber and it doesn't act right."

Richardson's injury status has forced the A&M coaching staff to play a guessing game with its offensive strategy against USL.

"With Bucky hurt, there's a considerable portion of our offense that is not that good to us right now because it was put in to take advantage of his abilities," Slocum said.

"We will put in a couple of new things this week to give us a little more offense in the event that Bucky can't play. We've got to go ahead and plan on him not playing. We've got to get us enough offense going where we can play Granger and Petty and say we're not an option team."

Richardson said the rest may improve the injury but may also be detrimental to the quarterback when the Aggies open Southwest Conference play Oct. 5 in Lubbock against Texas Tech.

"I've missed almost two games and its time for me to get back in the lineup," he said. "Certainly I'd like to get out there and stand in the pocket a little bit and run and get the feel of things, and get ready for conference."

Carter will miss his second game of the season Saturday because of an ankle he sprained during the LSU game. Freshman Cliff Groce will start again at fullback in place of Carter.

McAfee, a senior tailback, has practiced this week and may see limited action against the Ragin' Cajuns, Slocum said.

The A&M defense will also be without key players.

Coryatt will be sidelined Saturday with a dislocated shoulder and Wheeler is listed as very doubtful with a pulled groin muscle.

Slocum said the defensive gameplan will be altered because of the losses.

The coach said the Aggies' lack of significant depth and experience at the noseguard and linebacker positions will be tested.

Tucker will also miss the USL game due to a shoulder injury.

ponent's pass go by.

Smith made his mark at A&M in the first start of his Aggie career, by picking off a pass against Houston and returning it for 11 yards. It's been a road to glory for him ever since, and he has been busy rewriting the Aggie recordbooks in the interception categories.

It was a welcomed surprise to see him strip his 19th interception, because the word is out and most quarterbacks avoid Smith like they avoid the plague. Smartly so, although that certainly won't keep Smith from stripping the ball. With his cat-like quickness he is all over the field at any given moment, coming out of nowhere as if he has read the quarterback's mind.

Smith seems to add a special spirit to the game because it's no secret that interceptions are a great momentum rush to the players and also light a fire in the fans.

Tabbed as the pre-season All-America, he is a top candidate for the Thorpe Award which is presented to the outstanding defensive back in the nation. Smith needs eleven more interceptions to secure and break the NCAA title. It's a great task, but not un-reachable. Perhaps an easy gain will come in this weekend's game against USL. That's at least a given one interception right?

It's a shame some of us had to view his record setting steal on TV because it would have been much sweeter at Kyle Field, and perhaps the celebration would have lasted longer. But the rest of the season is definitely marked for Smith to give us a show on his home turf.

The Aggie's better relish it now, because all too soon Smith will be stealing the show in the NFL.

Cobb becomes threat at Rice

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice running back Trevor Cobb has been a well-kept secret for the past few years but now that he's the nation's leading rusher, it's harder to keep him under wraps.

Cobb rushed 193 yards in the season opener against Northwestern and 216 yards in a 28-19 victory over Tulane last week for a 204.5 per game average and the national lead.

Now he's well-known, especially to Iowa State, Saturday's opponent in the Owls' home opener in Rice Stadium.

"I've kept kind of quiet about Trevor other than the normal questions over the past two or three years," Rice coach Fred Goldsmith said. "But in all honesty, he's getting better every day. He was much better in this game than he was the game before."

In two games, Cobb has become Rice's all-time rushing leader with 2,279 yards. He became the Owls' first 1,000-yard rusher last season with 1,325 yards on 283 carries.

Goldsmith calls Cobb the best conditioned athlete he's coached.

"Trevor has 4.6 speed, which is good, but the difference in Trevor is he's 4.6 the whole game because he's so conditioned," Goldsmith said.

Cobb ran 51 yards for a touchdown on his 36th and final carry to ice the victory over Tulane.

"I think I run faster in a game," Cobb said. "There's something about a football un-

Matchup against Giants stirs Johnson's emotions

IRVING, Texas (AP) — New York Giants week brings out the combative nature in Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson.

Johnson got testy Tuesday when pressed about the lack of production by his wide receivers, in particular Alexander Wright, who has only caught three passes for 41 yards in four games.

"Why don't you (the media) just turn in the lineup cards so we'll know who to play?" Johnson said in a half-kidding manner.

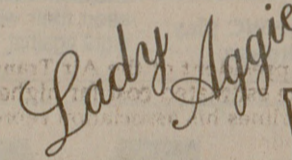

Johnson laughed about it, but owner Jerry Jones was so concerned he issued an off-hand apology, saying: "I understand Jimmy was a little testy today. When you play the Giants you get testy. But I just want to let you know that the policy of the Dallas Cowboys is you can ask any question any way you want to."

"That's part of the ballgame. I've been used to that happening to me since the day I got here."

The Cowboys (2-2) play the Giants (2-2) in a game Johnson sees as a barometer of how far the franchise has progressed since he and Jones took over three years ago.

"Without question a victory over the Giants would put us ahead of schedule of what people might have expected," Johnson said. "We do have a better football team than what we've had the last two years."

There are days when we have setbacks, but there is a confidence that what we are doing is on
