

Loan program receives funding

Loans, the College Access Loans (CAL) for middle-income students, the Supplemental Loan for Students (SLS) and the Health Education Assistance Loans (HEAL) for students in health-related majors.

Engelage said students could go to commercial lenders, such as banks, for every loan but a CAL, but the interest rate would be higher than it would be through Hinson-Hazlewood.

"No commercial lenders offer the College Access Loans," he said. Engelage said the same proposal was voted on in August and failed.

"The proposal primarily failed because its backers assumed that because the money was for students, voters would pass it," he said, "so there wasn't a big push for it."

Another reason it failed the first time, he said, is because of confusing wording.

Scott Sallman, a senior industrial distribution major, said he receives a College Access Loan through Hinson-Hazlewood, and was very relieved that the funding proposition passed.

"If it weren't for the College Access Loan, I wouldn't be here," he said. "If it hadn't passed, and my other funds had run out, I don't know what I would have done."

He said his funds were guaranteed through the end of the year, but he was glad when the proposal was resubmitted for a vote.

Twenty-two percent of the registered voters in Brazos County voted Tuesday and 70 percent of those voted for the proposition.

Jury convicts four men in condo trial

MIDLAND (AP) — Flamboyant Dallas developer D.L. "Danny" Faulkner and three co-defendants were convicted Wednesday of looting $165 million from five thrifts through fraudulent land deals east of Dallas in the early 1980s.

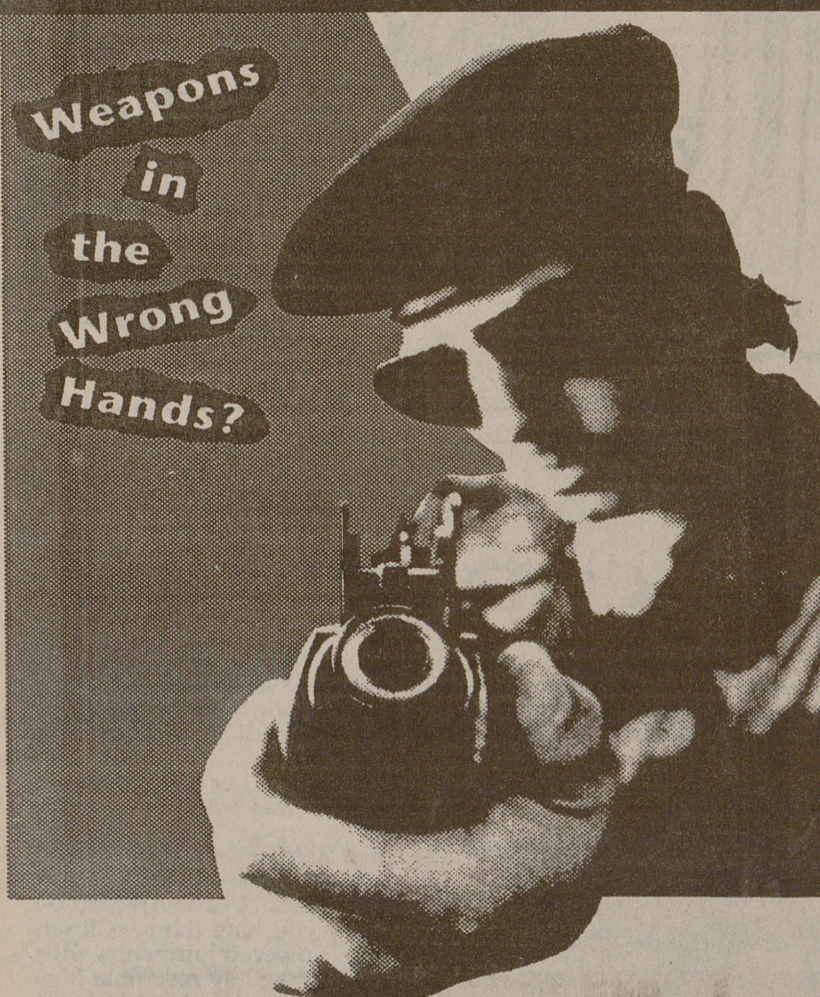

Faulkner was convicted on 42 or 45 counts, including operating a continual criminal enterprise. That conviction would force him to forfeit $40 million in profits from the deals.
